

Two-Subject Moderatorship (TSM)

TSM is a joint honors degree that allows students to choose two subjects (from a list of 26, see below) and study both to honors degree level. The two subjects are taught separately and the overall workload is similar to that of a single honors degree. In most combinations both subjects are studied equally for the first three years and one subject only is studied in the fourth year.

Each combination of two subjects has a different CAO course code (see page 32).

Minimum entry points for each TSM combination: see www.tcd.ie/study/eu/undergraduate/admission-requirements/leaving-cert/minimum-points/

Note: Students are not permitted to commence two new languages. Students wishing to combine two of: Greek, Italian, Latin, Russian, Spanish within TSM are required to present at least one of the chosen languages at grade C3 or better on a higher level Leaving Certificate paper or equivalent.

Possible combinations

Possible combinations of subjects for TSM are indicated by ✓ or * in the grid below.

- ✓ indicates combinations in which both subjects are studied for three years, and one subject only is studied in the fourth year (both subjects are studied to honors degree level).
- * indicates combinations in which students may choose to study:
 - both subjects for three years and one subject only in the fourth year,
 - OR
 - both subjects for four years.
