Tuning the Road is the debut solo album by Louise Mulcahy.

It features 14 tracks of inspired traditional music that demonstrates her mastery of flute, uilleann pipes and whistle recorded on the Cló-Iar Chonnacht label. The album has been voted trad album of the month by the tradconnect website and has also set a new record for the website. On this album Louise finely balances the tracks between ensemble numbers and solo tracks. Louise is accompanied by her sister Michelle on piano and harp and Colm Murphy on bodhrán. Throughout the album there is a strong adherence to the core values of the tradition.

Louise is a member of the Mulcahy Family who have previously recorded three albums which have been received with widespread critical acclaim. Louise has performed extensively throughout the world including America, Europe, Asia, Australia and New Zealand. Louise recently toured Vietnam along with her sister Michelle and this years TG4 "Outstanding contribution” award winner, Mick Moloney. The trip was filmed for an RTÉ documentary. The documentary follows the progress of their music and experiences whilst exploring the role of Irish Aid in the country. It will air on RTÉ in the coming months. Louise has appeared on numerous television and radio programmes and has also presented the TG4 Irish Music series “Geantraí”. Louise is the only person in the history of Comhaltas Ceoltoirí Éireann to have won 4 All Ireland Titles on the same day.
