Paula Flynn presented on the initiation of a new learner voice research study, 'I'm Me' (Inclusive Methods in Mainstream Education) at the NAPD conference in Galway, 18th October 2013. This study is located within the vision of the research group, Inclusion in Education and Society (IES) in the School of Education and supported by the National Association of Principals and Deputy Principals (NAPD) and the Department of Children and Youth Affairs (DCYA). The large scale study is a response to the findings and recommendations from Paula’s doctoral research, 'Authentic Listening to Student Voice' from which the I'm Me Programme emerged.
