

Trinity College Green Week 2011

Energy Competition – Win a Domestic Energy Meter

As part of College Green Week the “e3” programme and Director of Buildings Office is promoting an energy related competition for all College staff and students. “e3” is an inter University energy reduction programme - standing for – Energy, Environment and Economy. Details of the programme can be found on the web site www.e3.ie. The web site has simple tips to assist people reduce energy consumption throughout the College and in many typical workplaces.

The competition prizes will be 2 whole house energy meters. These meters allow you to measure your house electricity consumption and assist in identifying what items are using most energy and which items are left turned on overnight.

The competition is very simple to enter. If you would you like to win a domestic whole house energy meter as part of Trinity College Green Week 2011 then read on.

Simply answer the question what do the letters “CHP” stand for???

Visit the Director of Buildings Office “College Energy” web page at <http://www.tcd.ie/Buildings/collegeenergy.php> to find the answer.

Send your answer with your name and College address by e-mail to energy.quiz@tcd.ie before 12 midday on Friday 25th February 2011. The 2 winners will be drawn at the end of Green Week.