Two Subject Moderatorship Programme Learning Outcomes

Students who have successfully completed their programme of study in the Two Subject Moderatorship will be able to show:

• a comprehension of the theory, concepts, methods and processes pertaining to two distinct fields of learning
• a detailed knowledge, of two specialized areas, some of it at the current boundaries of the subjects
• that they can apply this knowledge and comprehension in a manner that indicates a thorough and informed approach to their work, and have competences typically demonstrated through devising and sustaining arguments, and formulating and solving problems within their fields of study
• that they have a mastery of a number of specialized skills and tools which they can use selectively to address complex problems and, particularly in the case of the major subject, to conduct an advanced research project under closely guided supervision
• that they have the ability to gather, evaluate and interpret relevant data to inform independent judgments which include reflection on relevant social, historical, literary, linguistic, philosophical, aesthetic, scientific or ethical issues
• that they can act effectively, under guidance, in a peer relationship within multiple, complex and heterogeneous groups
• that they can communicate information, ideas, problems and solutions to both specialist and non-specialist audiences
• that they have developed those learning skills that are necessary for them to continue to undertake further study with a high degree of autonomy.
