What is a Two-Subject Moderatorship?

A joint honours degree by another (quaint) name

- Joint = two subjects
- Moderatorship = honours degree
What is a Two-Subject Moderatorship?

You combine the study of two subjects, selected from a very wide range of possible choices. 26 subjects...183 combinations

- You can study according to one of two Patterns: Pattern A or Pattern B.
Pattern A: Both subjects studied for four years.

Pattern B: Both subjects studied for three years and one subject in the fourth year.

Pattern A is only available in a small combination of subjects

Why choose TSM?

• because of the value of the subjects themselves

• because of the structure of the degree programme

• because of other skills you will learn
Why choose TSM?
Because of the value of the subjects themselves

• You enjoy the subjects; you like studying these subjects; they excite you and make you want to know more; you have a particular aptitude for the subjects...

• You know that you want to combine these two subjects.

• You want to try a new subject.

• You want to spend your time in College broadening your horizons and exploring new avenues
Why choose TSM?
Because of the structure of the degree programme:

• TSM offers you a broad range of subject combinations: it is broader than single honours and more focused that the courses offered in BESS or Sciences

• You can choose your subjects when applying

• It is a four-year degree programme

• It is an Honours Degree in two subjects, with the chance to specialise in one or both

• There is the option of studying abroad for up to one year: fully accredited as part of your degree.
Why choose TSM?

The stimulation of studying alongside fellow students doing a wide range of different combinations, bringing to your subject all the ideas and approaches they have learned in their other subjects.
Why choose TSM at TCD?
Because of other skills you will learn
Where will a TSM degree take me?

• Some 50% of all graduate jobs advertised do not specify a particular degree subject.
• For many careers how well you do in your degree is more important than having studied a particular subject.

So:
1. Choose subjects that really interest you, so that you make the best of your four years.
2. Be ready for further study, training and job mobility.

Two-Subject Moderatorship (TSM): CAO Course Codes

When applying for a TSM/TR001 combination, TR001 must NOT be entered on the application form.

Each permitted combination of two subjects has a unique three-digit code. TR followed by the three-digit code of your chosen TSM combination should be entered on the application form, e.g. TR269 for French and German.

The absence of a code in a grid position indicates that the corresponding combination of subjects is not permitted.

Note: Students are not permitted to commence two new languages, see page 255.
