Introduction

Lifelong learning is a continual process for every one of us, whether it is for personal interest or professional development. Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin, offers a wide range of evening and short courses in many different fields which result in the gaining of new ideas, new knowledge, and in some instances, new qualifications.

Today, the continuing nature of education is more important than ever. Old skills become obsolete, new skills come to be in high demand. The people who can participate most effectively in our fast-moving modern society are those who are most open to new ideas, most adaptable and willing to continually re-educate themselves and broaden their perspectives.

In addition to degree and diploma courses, there is a wide range of short courses to choose from at Trinity, from history of art to social work, philosophy to psychology, Greek and Roman mythology and religion to physics and a wide variety of languages among others. We hope that you will find a course that appeals to you in this booklet.

Réamhrá

Próiseas leanúnach dúinn uile is ea an fhoghlaim ar feadh an tsaol, bíodh sí ar bhonn suime pearsanta nó ar mhaithe le forbairt ghairmiúil. Cuireann Coláiste na Tríonóide, Baile Átha Cliath, Ollscoil Átha Cliath réimse leathan cúrsaí tráthnóna agus gearrchúrsaí ar fáil in ábhair éagsúla a chruthaíonn smaointe úra, a chuireann eolas úr ar fáil agus, i gcás cuid acu, cáilíochtaí úra freisin.

Sa lá atá inniu ann, tá an t-oidreachas leanúnach níos tábhachtaí ná riamh. Tá seanscileanna ag dul as feidhm agus tá éileamh ar scileanna úra. Na daoine a ghlacfaidh an pháirt is éifeachtaí i sochaí nua-aimseartha tapa an lae inniu ná na daoine sin atá sásta glacadh le smaointe nua, atá solúbtha agus toilteanach filleadh ar an oidreachas go tráthúil agus a ndearcadh ar an saol a leathnú.

Chomh maith le cúrsaí céime agus dioplóma, tá réimse leathan gearrchúrsaí ar fáil i gColáiste na Tríonóide – ó stair na healaíne go hobair shóisialta, ó fhealsúnacht go síceolaíocht, ó mhiotaseolaíocht agus creidimh na Gréige agus na Róimhe go fisic agus rogha leathan teangacha, i measc ábhar eile.

Autism Diagnostic Observation Schedule (ADOS2) for the Clinical Setting

ADOS-2 is a semi-structured, standardised assessment of communication, social interaction, play/imaginative use of materials and restricted and repetitive behaviours for individuals who have been referred because of possible autism spectrum disorder (ASD).

Fundamentally new to the ADOS-2 than ADOS-G are the procedures involved in the algorithm computation and the comparison score for module 1 through 3 which were revised on the basis of the findings of recent validation research. The new comparison score provides a way of indicating a participant's level of autism spectrum related symptomatology and it can also be used to interpret an individual's own change in autism spectrum related symptoms over time.

ADOS-2 also includes a toddler module, which is designed for very young children who do not use phrase speech but who are between the ages of twelve and thirty months. The toddler module has its own algorithms that provide 'ranges of concern' instead of cut-off scores. A variety of specialists will use the ADOS-2, their use of results in writing reports and making recommendations to inform medical diagnoses, special education classification and occupational therapists and speech and hearing professionals might use for treatment planning.

An Introduction to Woodcarving

Well known Sculptor Conleth Gent (www.conlethgent.ie) will be running a woodcarving course two and a half hours per day one day a week over a five week period based in the Trinity Botanic Gardens at Dartry, Dublin 6 (nearest Luas Station, Milltown).

Conleth Gent has exhibited widely throughout Ireland and has been a multi-award winner at Sculpture in Context in the National Botanic Gardens, Glasnevin.

His work has been presented to President Mary Robinson and other dignitaries. He has worked on large scale sculptures for Dun Laoghaire and Galway County Councils.

The course is primarily aimed as an introduction to woodcarving with all tools and materials provided.

The main focus is on creativity and individuality and nurturing it through the medium of woodcarving. All abilities will be catered for, as each participant will receive individual tuition. Participants will be introduced to the tools and how to sharpen, maintain and use them and the materials and characteristics of the different woods. Most will have their own sculpture to take home by the end of the course.

How to Apply

Please email Conleth - conlethgent@eircom.net - to confirm your participation. Places are very few in number and strictly limited.

Fee

The course will cost €160 for five classes. Tea and coffee will be provided and all materials will be supplied. Full payment in advance by 1st July 2019 is essential and required to secure your place. Please note all monies are non-refundable except in the event of course cancellation.

Date, Time and Place

Every Monday 11am-1pm for five weeks commencing on 27th July 2019 in the Trinity Botanic Gardens opposite Palmerston Park, Dartry, Dublin 6 (nearest Luas Station, Milltown).

ClassicsAncient Greek Language and Culture - Beginners

This course will run subject to sufficient numbers enrolling – there will be a limited number of places available. This course offers a comprehensive appraisal of the language of ancient Greece. It also explores some central features of Ancient Greek literature. In this course we aim to examine the cultural context surrounding classical Greek and its successors. In the first term, those who have knowledge of Greek grammar will be able to review it at a leisurely pace while people with little or no knowledge will have an opportunity to learn the basics of the Greek grammar.

Aspects such as the origins of the language and the dialects will also be considered in the first term. The second term will be devoted to a careful study of the Ancient Greek literary language through samplings of Greek authors, in both poetry and prose, ranging from the archaic to Hellenistic times. We will also consider the relevance of the past in the present and there will be time to explore some favourite topics more in-depth through inclusive but leisurely class discussion.

Classics

From Rome to Byzantium: The transition from classical to early Byzantine world in the history, culture, literature and art of the 3rd to the 6th centuries AD

This course will run subject to sufficient numbers enrolling – there will be a limited number of places available. Did the Roman Empire really collapse? Was the transition from Classical civilization to late antiquity the end of an era? Was this decline caused by migrations and the advent of Christianity? In this course we will address these questions and more to explore the period between the third to the seventh century AD, which marked one of history's great turning points and the transition from the ancient to the modern world, from pagan polytheism to Christianity, from Roman Empire to Medieval States. This dynamic world was populated by diverse people (the “barbarians”) who deeply influenced the culture, literature and art of the time. In our studies, we will travel to Constantinople and Ravenna to appreciate the artistic continuity with classical tradition and the new inspirations coming from the East, and we will meet fascinating personalities such as Empress Theodora, Justinian, and Julian ‘the Apostate’, as well as reading exciting sources such as Procopius, Ammianus Marcellinus, and Nonnus, to understand how much of the empire’s legacy lived on through the institutions of the church.

Greek and Roman Art and Architecture

This lecture-only module is an introductory survey of the development and major artistic and technical achievements of Greek and Roman architecture, sculpture and painting. The course places art and architecture in its social, political and cultural context. It explores themes such as the representation of the human form, the use of narrative and mythology in art, and urbanization, and it looks at the works of individual artists. It traces the development of architectural forms, such as temples, theatres and Roman baths with attention to many of the iconic buildings and sites of the ancient world, including the Parthenon, Delphi and Olympia, the Colosseum, the Pantheon and Pompeii.

ClassicsGreek and Roman Mythology and Religion

What is myth? How do myths deal with fundamental human concerns about who we are and the world we live in? What is the relationship between myth and religion? Why did the Greeks and Romans worship many gods, believe in oracles, or perform animal sacrifice? This lecture only module is an introduction to the major myths and religions of the classical world using the full range of primary source material: literary, artistic and archaeological. It explores the functions of myth within society and the various theories of myth. The first half of the course will focus on themes such as the creation of myths in the wider context of Near Eastern mythology, the character of the Olympian gods, heroes and their monstrous opponents, divine-human relations, and the major mythic cycles of the Trojan war, and the Atreus and Theban sagas. The second half of the course will explore the nature of Greek and Roman religion in its social context. It considers key elements of ritual action: sacrifice, rites of passage, festivals, as well as the diverse ancient beliefs on death and the afterlife and the role of mystery religions. This lecture-only course will be illustrated.

Classics

Latin Language and Culture - Beginners

This course will run subject to sufficient numbers enrolling – there will be a limited number of places available. This course offers a comprehensive appraisal of the language of ancient Rome. It also explores some central features of Latin literature. In this course we aim to examine the cultural context surrounding classical Latin and its successors. In the first term, those who have knowledge of Latin grammar will be able to review it at a leisurely pace, while people with little or no knowledge will have an opportunity to learn the basics of the Latin grammar. Aspects such as the origins and development of the Latin language, its power of communication, comparisons between formal and informal Latin in antiquity and beyond will also be considered. The second term will be devoted to a careful study of the Latin literary language through samplings of Latin authors, in both poetry and prose, ranging from antiquity to early modern times.

Centre for Gender and Women's Studies Gender: History, Culture and Representation

'The story is no longer about the things that have happened to women and men and how they have reacted to them; instead it is about how the subjective and collective meanings of women and men as categories of identity have been constructed.' (Joan Scott, Gender and the Politics of History, New York). This lecture only module will examine the histories and representations of gender, seeking to understand how gender is constructed by societies, institutions and individuals, through the critical analysis of texts, works of art and public actions. Gender, its role, its construction and its historiography will be brought together by scholars across the school in an interdisciplinary module. The operation of gender 'as a tool of analysis' will be examined in histories of the body, sexuality, medicine, religion, politics, institutions and representations in a variety of texts and contexts which will show the inherent instability and elusive nature of many gendered identities.

Health Policy and Management Health Economics

This short course looks at the role of economic principles in understanding behaviour of users and providers of healthcare, in setting priorities and in financing access to care. Key issues to be examined include: the ways in which individuals respond to incentives; how we can best set healthcare priorities by evaluating the costs and effectiveness of healthcare interventions; and what are the advantages and disadvantages of different ways of financing health services. By the end of the course, participants should:

- Understand principles of demand and elasticity as applied to health and healthcare, and the implications for policies on charging for services and health promotion.

- Appreciate options for financing health services, and how different methods affect access to care and performance of providers of care.
- Describe the methods used in economic evaluation of health.

Teaching Dates:

This short course is comprised of six three-hour sessions and usually starts in the late autumn. Precise dates would be provided to interested applicants on request.

Flash Points in History

How did the abduction of Helen lead to the Siege of Troy? How did the assassination of Franz Ferdinand spark a World War? How did the refusal of Rosa Parks to give up her seat inspire Civil Rights? This series of lectures explores 'flash points' across the sweep of world history, from the ancient world to the twentieth century. A flash point originally refers to the moment when volatile materials take fire after an initial ignition. In history, flash points often take contemporaries — or at least those wielding power — completely by surprise. The flash point might be an event, a confrontation, or a smouldering social issue that suddenly escalates rapidly into a major conflict leading to rapid political or social change

Introduction to Irish Family History

Family History isn't just about the past: Learning about our origins allows people to get down to the granular details of our ancestors' lives. It enables people to construct their own family narrative and their personal identity. This lecture-only module is taught through a series of eight lectures per term over two terms by Fiona Fitzsimons & Brian Donovan of the Irish Family History Centre (Eneclann). The course covers a broad sweep of Irish history (1650s to 1950s), and is deeply rooted in the sources. The focus is on the records generated by churches, central and local government, enterprises, families and individuals; exploring what section of the Irish population is documented in these records, and how to interpret the evidence. Where record collections were destroyed, do any collateral records survive that contain relevant information? The fee includes free access to the largest Irish collection online, www.findmypast.ie as well as free access to EPIC and the Irish Family History Centre in CHQ. It will also provide support for all participants to construct a simple family history portfolio over sixteen weeks, including creating a family profile; research to collect documentary evidence; building a family tree; and writing a simple report.

Please note: This is a lecture-only course and does not include access to computers on campus. Participants must have access to their own computers at home for follow up clinics and research.

Irish Family History: Intermediate Level

Building on the theoretical foundations of the first year, we begin to move into experiential learning with the option of project work in term 2. We explore the Irish diaspora in all its aspects (military, mercantile, civilian, political and criminal exiles and convicts, adventurers, orphans) anywhere they went, and where sources survive, in Irish and overseas archives. In term two we will turn a spotlight on demographic groups that are more challenging to trace: finding women in the sources; researching Irish Travellers before 1950; and children in care 1840s to 1952. There will be a continuing emphasis on the appropriate methodology to use in family and social history, for a successful research outcome.

HistoryEurope 1500-1800:
Power and Culture

This module explores the political and cultural history of Europe during the early modern period. It analyses the efforts of reformers to revive their churches and societies during the sixteenth century. It then examines the legacy of these reform movements and considers how cultural divisions as well as competition for power led to prolonged periods of conflict within states and between states during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. This module then charts the emergence during the eighteenth century of new ways of thinking about private life and popular culture and of new ideas about science, society and the self of the Enlightenment. Finally, it explores how these ideas contributed to political crisis following the French Revolution.

History

Imperialism to Globalism: Europe and the World 1860-1970

Global integration is not only a fact of modern life, but of modern history writing. The interconnectedness of distant societies and states, and powerful forces making for social, cultural and economic interaction have prompted significant scholarly assessment. This lecture-only module investigates some of the events and processes which have led to a more integrated world order between the mid-nineteenth century and the later twentieth century. For most of that period much of the world was carved up between a number of inter-continental empires centred in Europe. How those empires grew, exerted control and in due course retreated will be the particular focus of the module. But other processes, too, will be considered, not least the integrating force of economic changes and the spreading power of capitalism across the globe.

Attention will be given to the evolution of ideologies of imperialism and social Darwinism and to whether or not such ideologies impacted upon changing global power relationships. The module, while broadly chronological in approach, will focus on a wide range of themes in cultural, economic and political history.

History

Kingship and Warfare: Ireland, c.1000-1318

This module begins with the rise of Brian Boru from modest origins to become Ireland's most famous high king—a spectacular career that ended in the iconic battle of Clontarf in 1014. We explore how Irish society and kingship changed in the aftermath of Clontarf as a result of inter-provincial warfare and the changing role of the church. The second half of the module examines the causes and implications of the English (or Anglo-Norman) invasion of the late 1160s, perhaps the single most formative development in Irish secular affairs. We study the interaction of cultures in its aftermath and the Irish opposition to English rule that saw the emergence of England's ongoing Irish problem through later centuries. The module closes with the most serious challenge to English power in medieval Ireland: the Scottish invasion (1315-18) led by Edward Bruce, brother of Robert Bruce king of Scots.

History

Life in Modern Ireland

What do we mean by modern Ireland? Where is modern Ireland and when did it begin? Having broached these questions, this course will investigate what life was like on the island of Ireland across the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Reflecting the increased focus on social and cultural themes in Irish historiography, this course addresses the ways in which historians are tackling a broad range of societal questions. What characterised peoples' family, working and social lives? How did people interact with the apparatus of the state and of religious bodies? How did the evolution of media affect daily life? What forces and ideas shaped the provision of education and welfare? What impact did emigration have on both host and home societies? Key to the course is an understanding of what differentiated experiences; how did gender, class, geography and moral/status hierarchies of different kinds shape individual lives? It will also place the social history of Ireland in comparative and global contexts, in order to question ideas of Irish insularity and exceptionalism.

History

Religion and Society

1095 – 1517

At the beginning of the twelfth century western Christendom had a new optimism: a commercial and urban boom, new religious orders, new church buildings, the codification of religious law, a flourishing of religious art, a movement to “recover” the Holy Land. Between 1250 and 1500 war, plague and religious dissent had a profound impact on European life. This module offers a thematic survey of religious practices and the impact of religion on society more generally in the central and later medieval west, where everyday life was carried on to a soundtrack of church bells and sermons, but where the culture allowed for a surprising amount of diversity of belief and practice as well. Lectures and tutorials focus on the practice and impact of religion in medieval society, on social structures (such as family and community) and on relations with other cultures.

HistoryThe Hundred Years War
c.1337-1453

The Hundred Years War was in reality a series of wars, on both land and sea, arising primarily from the political and dynastic conflicts of the kings of England and France. It was fought mainly in France but also engulfed Brittany, Scotland, the Iberian kingdoms, the Netherlands and other countries. The first part of the wars is retailed in considerable detail by the contemporary chronicler, Jean Froissart, whose powerful portrait of warfare and political rivalry is set against a backdrop of chivalric endeavour and glory. The module takes its lead from Froissart's vivid chronicles. The first four tutorials are focussed exclusively on various aspects of his chronicles and students will be expected to write an essay on Froissart's work. The remaining tutorials are devoted to a study of texts on Joan of Arc. Lectures concentrate on key themes associated with Froissart's world, such as kingship, chivalry and warfare, diplomacy and popular revolt.

History

War and Peace in Modern Europe

In this module, we discuss how Europe was defined and redefined through war, military occupation, civil conflicts, and peace agreements in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Drawing on examples of various—through often interrelated—conflicts, we discuss several major questions: How did international and civil conflicts shape European culture and politics? Why was the twentieth century so violent? How did Europe become divided into “right” and “left,” and “East” and “West”? How are these conflicts and political extremes remembered or forgotten today? Comparing writings and films from across the continent, including Britain, Poland, Spain, Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Germany, we ask how the map of the continent has changed over the past century and whether it is possible to write a single history of Europe.

History of Art

Antiquity and Innovation in Early Medieval Art

The reign of King, later Emperor, Charlemagne (768–814) marked a flourishing of the visual arts that had not been seen since the fall of the Roman Empire. Often styled the 'Carolingian Renaissance', the artistic culture of the period was characterised by a politically-motivated evocation of the classical past, fused with elements of existing art styles and innovation in areas such as monastic planning and the commission of new types of fine metalwork and illuminated manuscript. This module aims to introduce students to key works of art and architecture in Western Europe during the period c. 315-900AD. It will examine the development of distinctive artistic traditions leading up to the reign of Charlemagne (including Late Antique, Byzantine, and northern European art and architecture), the forging of the unique characteristics of Carolingian art during the King/Emperor's supremacy, and its legacy both within the Carolingian Empire and beyond.

History of ArtPainting and Sculpture in the Italian Renaissance

This module is an exploration of Italian art and its contexts from c.1300 to the late 1400s. The era is distinguished by a revival of interest in Italy's classical past and the emergence of humanist philosophies; the impact of both on artistic production will be investigated. Traditional themes in art, such as religious subject matter, will be analysed as will the development of new secular themes including portraiture and classical mythology. The role of patronage, civic and private, the dissemination of Italian Renaissance ideas throughout Europe and the rising status of the artist will be considered and formal issues of style, art processes and production will figure prominently.

IrishIrish Palaeography

This lecture-only course in Irish palaeography will present a history and taste of Irish palaeography from the oldest sources up to the present day. The series will begin with the oldest writing system used in Ireland, Ogam, and will then proceed to the manuscripts. Selections of important Irish-language manuscripts from the Library of Trinity College Dublin, the Royal Irish Academy and the National Library will be examined, including the famous Book of Leinster and the Book of the Dun Cow but also law manuscripts, annals, genealogies, sagas, poetry collections and so on. The study will take us down to the controversies of the late nineteenth century regarding the choice between cló Gaelach and cló Rómhánach, the ‘h’ and the ‘ponc’. Selections will be read and explained each week in class. No preparation will be required though preparation would enhance the experience. The emphasis will be on transcription and understanding the writing system but translations of texts read will also be provided. The course will extend over a twelve-week term commencing on Monday 9th September, at 6pm, with a one-week break in the term (21st – 25th October 2019). Suitable for new and continuing students.

Duration

Duration of the course is 21 weeks over two terms commencing on Wednesday 18th September 2019 and recommencing on Wednesday 22nd January 2020. There is a one-week break in each term (21st – 27th October 2019) and (2nd – 8th March 2020) when no classes will take place.

Languages (Slavonic)

Russian, Beginners

This course gives students a basic knowledge of Russian language, culture and contemporary Russian society. By the end of the year students are expected to have a reasonably good level of spoken Russian in a number of real-life situations and to be able to read and write simple texts.

The class consists of two one and a half hour sessions per week of grammar, listening and reading comprehension and conversation. The total number of contact hours is sixty-three (twenty-one weeks). At the end of the course students have an option of a final written and oral assessment.

This course will normally run if there is a minimum of twelve students enrolled for the year. Groups will normally be closed when twenty students have enrolled.

How to Apply

Application forms are available from the Department of Russian and Slavonic Studies either in hardcopy or electronic form (www.tcd.ie/russian/courses/evening-courses/index.php). The completed application form accompanied by payment (course fee and photocopying levy, if applicable) in the form of a bank transfer proof, personal cheque/postal order or bank draft, payable to Trinity College Dublin no. 1 account, should be returned by 6th September 2019 to: Executive Officer, Department of Russian and Slavonic Studies, Room 5045, Arts Building, Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin, Dublin 2. T: 01 896 1896, E: slavonic@tcd.ie.

Fee

€690 payable in advance. This fee is non-refundable once the course has commenced. A concession rate (€480) is available to Trinity undergraduate students who are not taking this course for ECTS credits, to Trinity postgraduate students with a letter from their head of department or supervisor indicating that they are required to develop their Russian-language skills, and those in receipt of a social welfare pension. If you are unemployed or in receipt of a social welfare payment, contact the facilitator in your local social welfare office. You may be entitled to certain assistance in funding. The number of concession rate places in any given class is restricted to twenty per cent. Payment must accompany applications.

Near and Middle Eastern Studies Certificate in Holocaust Education

The Herzog Centre in the Department of Near and Middle Eastern Studies with Holocaust Education Trust Ireland offers a Certificate in Holocaust Education which provides in-depth tuition on the historical significance and contemporary resonance of the Holocaust. This programme provides participants with information, tools and skills to address this subject in their area of work and to develop pedagogic expertise to complement their knowledge. The programme is divided into four modules, all of which must be completed by participants who wish to attain the certificate. (Continuous Professional Development) Special Purpose Award at NFQ Level 7 carrying 20 ECTS. This programme is ideally suited for teachers and those involved in community and outreach education.

Physics

The following course is particularly aimed at graduates in earth or life sciences that did not take physics as part of their degree and who wish to teach physics up to Junior Certificate level. Successful completion of this course will serve as part-fulfilment, along with a post-graduate qualification in education and an appropriate primary degree, of the Teaching Council's conditions for registration as a post-primary teacher in Ireland. Students registered on a full-time course in Trinity will need the written permission of their Course Director or Head of School to be allowed take this course concurrently with their degree. Other interested people are also welcome to take this course and their attention is drawn to the entry requirements.

Physics

Foundation Physics for Earth and Life Sciences

This course is aimed at students who may have no prior background in physics but who would like to learn about how physics affects the world around them, in particular the impact physics has on the earth and life sciences. This course may be of particular interest to those considering a career in post-primary teaching. It carries 10 credits (ECTS).

It is a foundation course of 44 hours of lectures or tutorials and 12 hours of experimental laboratory work and includes the following topics: physics of motion (mechanics), biomechanics, physics of hearing and seeing (waves), electricity and magnetism and bioelectricity, radioactivity, nuclear physics and related medical applications, heat, pressure and fluids and some of their biological, geological and medical applications.

Learning Outcomes

- Demonstrate the application of classical physics within the biomedical and earth sciences
- Connect the study of wave phenomena and electromagnetism with ultrasound diagnostics and vision
- Relate basic knowledge of atomic and nuclear physics to radiation diagnostics and therapy, and to geological applications
- Prepare a brief report, including error analysis, on a simple physical experiment
- Through homework: (i) to identify the appropriate concepts, principles, and relations that apply to the problem; (ii) to provide a reasonable and appropriate explanation of why they apply; and (iii) to solve physics problems at a foundation level

Admission Criteria

Applications will be considered from students or graduates of degrees in earth or life sciences or from others who can demonstrate the necessary ability in mathematics e.g. have completed first-year mathematics in an undergraduate degree in a technical subject.

How to Apply

Interested applicants should contact the School Manager, School of Physics, Dr. Colm Stephens, E: colm.stephens@tcd.ie T: +353 (1) 896 2024.

Fee

€1,000 (waged) €500 (unwaged)

Date

This course will be run once in each semester of the academic year 2019/20 with two separate intakes. Students complete the course in the semester selected. The dates are as follows.

Semester 1:

The application deadline is Monday 2nd September 2019. Teaching will begin on Monday 9th September and conclude by Friday 19th November 2019. The end-of-course examination will be in the period of Monday 2nd December to Friday 13th December 2019.

Semester 2:

The application deadline is Monday 13 January 2020. Teaching will begin on Monday 20th January and conclude by Thursday 9th April 2020. The end-of-course examination will be in the period of Monday 27th April to Friday 1st May 2020.

Lecture and Lab Class Times

In each semester lectures/tutorials are likely to take place on Mondays at 2pm, Tuesdays at 9am and 3pm and Wednesdays at 2pm. The 3-hour practical class will be either Friday morning or afternoon.

Psychology

Psychology: The Science of Behaviour and Mind

This lecture course will present an overview of contemporary psychology and introduce participants to cutting-edge research undertaken by School of Psychology staff. Topics include: how babies learn to talk, brain imaging, experimental neuropsychology revelations from the broken brain, using emotions to overcome emotional distress, perceiving our world, early adversity and later development, social neuroscience, childhood sexual abuse & its psychological consequences and many more*. Participants who attend at least seventy-five per cent of the course will receive a certificate of attendance.

* Lecture topics may vary depending upon staff availability.

How to Apply

Apply in advance by sending an application form, available for download (from the first week in August 2019) at <http://psychology.tcd.ie/evening-course/>, together with a cheque/bank draft/postal order, made payable to Trinity College Dublin no. 1 account and sent to: Psychology Evening Course Coordinator, School of Psychology, Áras an Phiarsaigh, Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin, Dublin 2. Applicants may also pay by Credit or Debit Card via our PayPal Facility available on the Evening Course website (from early August). An application form must also be sent in for online payment applicants.

Fee

€220 for eighteen weeks. Concession rate (€140) is available to second and third level students, unemployed persons and those in receipt of a social welfare pension. Please note, if applying at concession rate, proof of status must accompany application form e.g. letter from second/third level institution, proof of receipt of social welfare pension/unemployment benefits.

Time and Place

7pm – 8.20pm on Wednesdays in the Burke Theatre, Arts Building, Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin, Dublin 2.

Duration

Eighteen weeks over two terms:

Michaelmas term, commencing Wednesday 9th October 2019 (nine weeks). Hilary term, commencing Wednesday 22nd January 2020 (nine weeks). T: 01 896 1886, E: psyeve@tcd.ie

ReligionApproaches to Theological Ethics

This module will offer an overview of traditions of philosophical ethics and of the sources and approaches to theological ethics, and will analyse and discuss the argumentations they provide for concrete ethical issues. Specifically, after exploring differences in the use of key terms such as justice in Aristotelian and Communitarian, Kantian, Utilitarian and Contract Ethics, the module will introduce students to the four sources of theological ethics: 1) Scripture, 2) its reception in the practice of Christian communities and in the traditions of theological thinking, 3) a philosophical, general concept of the ‘normatively human’, and 4) the human sciences. How different approaches to theological ethics use these sources will be analysed subsequently: virtue ethics, classical and revisionist natural law, autonomous ethics, feminist theological ethics. The debate on the role of religion for “public reason” in pluralist democracies will be treated in conclusion.

ReligionCatholic Life and Thought in the Age of the Enlightenment

The purpose of this module is to survey the political, cultural and religious context in which Catholic theology developed in the Age of Enlightenment. An important aim will be to introduce the student to some representative figures in the theology of the period. Particular attention is given to the French Enlightenment as, arguably, it is the French Enlightenment that impacted most on theological thought in the Irish context. The Enlightenment made its contribution to theology through the development of more rigorous historical critical methods. The importance of documents of the first Vatican Council will also be studied.

ReligionChristianity and Society

This module is to give students an insight into the sequence of radical critiques which constitutes the history of modern ethics from Kant and Kierkegaard to Nietzsche. Their mutually challenging theories form the background to current philosophical and theological debates on the foundations and applications of ethics, such as the ethics of memory, cosmopolitanism, or feminist discussions of Kierkegaard's theory of the self. Poetry, music, literature and film will offer additional avenues to core concepts of the approaches, such as freedom, promise, good will, hope, despair, the postulate of God and life as power.

The aims of the course are to recognise the continuity of problems and the opposite answers given by these thinkers in classical texts of Western thought to identify their legacy and transformation in critical theory, existentialist, feminist and postmodern ethics, and in the interactions of theological ethics with them. The course examines the turn to the modern subject and its critique in the realm of ethics, continuing the systematic and historical theological analyses of the role of Christian theology in the rise and development of Western thinking.

Religion

Christology

Drawing on primary sources and critical scholarship, the course will devise a historical and theological framework in which to assess theoretical presuppositions and consequences of different interpretations of the person and work of Christ through the ages. The significance of Christology for a Christian anthropology will be tested by analysing the Christological formulations of early, medieval and modern Christianity and by discussing feminist interpretations as well as current ethical issues, such as transhumanism, and questions arising in the theology of religions. The course will also investigate the history of reception in culture with a focus on Christ in music and film.

Religion

Contemporary Theories of Religion

This module provides a survey of both “classical thinkers” on religion and contemporary developments in the academic study of religion that combine cultural with cognitive, evolutionary and economic approaches. Theories are explored on the basis of case studies that help to understand the role of religion in a diversity of historical and contemporary settings.

The first part of the module introduces how, in 19th century, thinking about religion also meant to think about the cultural, economic and political crises of the era. The sciences started to explain “religion” as a natural phenomenon, and theories of religion implicitly questioned what makes a modern society, the relation of “the West and the World” and the place of humans within. Engaging with original texts we will assess their impact both as documents of their time and as a starting point for an analytical understanding of religion. We will keep track of how theories responded to the problems of their time, and to their historical, philosophical and social contexts which shape the role of religion until today.

The second part of the module starts from the “cultural turn” in the Study of Religion. Methods and theories provide a sound basis for the production of independent and critical knowledge about the role of religion in the cultures they emerged from. Differing from a religious or common sense understanding, and applying aspects of gender, post-colonial theory, economics and social change to concrete cases, contemporary theories help to think through the ongoing, sometimes surprising, impact religions have on many people’s lives and in political and private realms.

Religion

Current Expressions and Movements in Christianity, Islam and Hinduism

This module offers undergraduate students an insight to a number of key examples of contemporary manifestations of the religious imaginary drawn from Christianity, Islam, and Hinduism, along with a range of methodological approaches to their analysis. It invites a more critical approach to manifestations of the religious that questions popular essentialist or reductionist interpretations. The module will focus on these three religions because of their demographic significance but also because of various dynamics both within and between them.

ReligionHermeneutics

This module traces the history of the interpretation of texts in modernity, which includes the methodological underpinnings of the discipline developed in the work of the founding ‘father of hermeneutics’ F. Schleiermacher, the ontological approach of H.G. Gadamer (hermeneutics of tradition) and J. Harbermas’s critique of it, as well as the development of the ‘hermeneutics of suspicion’ and of action (P. Ricoeur). Their insights into the nature of language and subjectivity, text and translation, narrative and action are employed in critical reflections on the theological and philosophical presuppositions that influenced Biblical interpretation, translation and application in the history of the text’s reception. The module will explore case studies in hermeneutics in contemporary biblical studies, in relation to historiography, to ecology and ethics and in inter-cultural encounter.

Messengers of God: Prophets and Prophecy in the Hebrew Bible

This module introduces the phenomenon of 'prophecy' as we find it represented in the 'Latter Prophets' of the Hebrew Bible/Old Testament. In doing so, it explores writings associated with the pre-exilic, exilic and post-exilic periods including Amos, Ezekiel, Daniel, Malachi and especially Isaiah, whose voice resonates throughout these periods, echoes down into the Common Era and is heard prominently in the Christian tradition.

ReligionReligion, Media and the Public Sphere

Religion is prominent in public debates, in the media, and in the cultural imaginary of people's daily life, no matter whether they see themselves as believers or not. In turn, religions also "make use" of media and mediation, creating symbolic representations and special experiences, be it through architecture and music, images and narratives, or through clothes, body practices or TV and the internet.

The course focuses on how the relationship between religion and media can be studied and how this can help to better understand the role of religion in the public sphere. Our concept of media will reach beyond TV and internet – scripture and dance, money and microphones are means of mediating religion as well. We will ask, what is a medium, how are religions depicted in the media, how do religions act on and react to new media, and how can religion be understood as mediation while often claiming to provide "immediate" experiences? Students will sign up for an "expert group" on one of the weekly readings, and will engage in studying and presenting a self-chosen case.

ReligionThe End of the World: The Johannine Writings

The book of Revelation depicts a series of end-time judgments that lead to cosmic catastrophe followed by a new heaven and new earth. The author of the Apocalypse, John at Patmos, is not alone in believing that there is more than just this world—there is another world. As such, the book of Revelation is participating in the apocalyptic genre and worldview wherein reflection upon another world and otherworldly beings are dominant themes. Expectations of the end are not only thought about in terms of time (i.e. a linear progression from past, to present, to future), but also space (e.g. the world above and below; material vs. spiritual). To better understand the Apocalypse of John this module sets it among: (1) other Johannine Writings and their conceptions of “the world,” and (2) ancient Jewish apocalyptic writings (e.g., Book of Watchers, Animal Apocalypse, 3 Baruch). Themes such as Jewish and Christian anti-imperialism, responses to suffering, and conceptualizations justice come into focus within the broader context of the ancient phenomenon of apocalyptic.

ReligionThe Historical Jesus & the Gospels

The aim of this module is to provide a critical overview of research on the historical Jesus and, within this context, the role and significance of the gospel traditions for this discipline.

Who was the historical Jesus – the Jewish Galilean whose activities and death resulted in the emergence of Christianity?

This module explores questions about Jesus the man, his world, his social and literary environment, his disciples, and their literary activities. The history of research on the historical Jesus (i.e., the so-called “three quests”) orient this module before turning to a sustained study of the earliest witness to his life and those of his followers, namely the synoptic gospels: Matthew, Mark, and Luke. When studying the context of Jesus and the gospels their environments and social milieu are introduced vis-à-vis material culture and archaeology. Key themes, particularly ancient Jewish “Messianism” as it relates to the portrayal of Jesus as “Christ,” are considered in light of Qumran Discoveries (e.g., so-called “4QMessianic Apocalypse”). Students are also inducted to the various historical and literary methods and approaches used when studying the synoptic gospels. Prof. Benjamin Wold.

Czech Theatre: Artistic Experiment, Political change and Irish Connections
This 5-lecture course examines the place of the theatre in the life of the Czech nation from the nineteenth century to the present. We shall discuss the most significant artistic movements, consider the theatre's potential to both reflect and drive political change, as well as explore some interesting Irish connections.

The National Theatre in Prague, which first opened in 1868, stands as the chief symbol of Czech patriotism – and the city, famously, is home to an extraordinary network of theatres of all kinds. Even the Czech national anthem sprang from a song in a play. When fascism became a real threat in the 1930s, the Freed Theatre (Osvozené divadlo) offered fearless political satire. When half a century later the Velvet Revolution broke out in November 1989, it was in theatres that many of the revolutionary strike committees held their meetings. And when the communist regime fell, Václav Havel – the dissident playwright and intellectual – was elected president of democratic Czechoslovakia. Havel and Beckett had written plays for each other across the Iron Curtain: Beckett dedicating Catastrophe to the imprisoned Havel in 1982; the Czech writer returning the favour a year later, with Mistake.

We shall discuss the works of some of the most significant and unique Czech playwrights, such as J.K. Tyl, Karel Čapek, V+W and Václav Havel, consider the larger context of their work, as well as the impact they have had on Czech and international audiences.

The Lir Academy

Introduction to Acting

The Lir Academy's Introduction to Acting course is perfect for those who are both inquisitive about a future career in acting and those who simply want to challenge themselves by stretching their creative muscles. Led by some of The Lir Academy's core teachers, this workshop-based evening course is taught over 10 weeks. Each two and a half hour session consists of a physical warm-up followed by a voice or movement/improvisation class and culminates with a 90 minute acting workshop. The course will cover key elements of actor training including Voice, Movement and Improvisation, but will also introduce participants to classical and contemporary play texts, using both scenes and monologues to hone your craft. These workshops act as both a taste of drama school training and as a broad and basic introduction to the craft of acting.

The Lir Academy

Introduction to Screen Acting

Participants will learn the differences between what is effective on stage versus the demands of the screen. As well as developing strategies for meeting the demands of screen acting, students will become more familiar with the filming process, acting for camera, the equipment and roles of the crew members including the terminology used.

The course will allow each participant to experience the fundamentals of screen acting technique, such as hitting marks, staying in your light, finding the light in a tracking shot, working with sound crew and continuity as well as dispelling some of the myths surrounding the process of screen acting.

The course will begin with camera-based classes that are designed to show students how the camera can aid a performance rather than hinder it. At the end of the course all participants will have an edited recording of their own scenes filmed in class.
