

The weekly newsletter from the Botany Department at Trinity College Dublin

News

- Botany wishes the Plant Scientists (photo below), Environmental Scientists, Functional Biologists and Zoologists the best of luck on their final examinations starting next week!

Publications and Outreach

- Jane Stout gave a talk on the role of urban gardens in pollinator conservation to the Irish Garden Plant Society at the National Botanic Gardens, Glasnevin last week. Click here for more details.
- Jane Stout also had a piece on the need for more women at senior level in STEM in the Irish Times on Monday. Click here to read the article.

PHYTOBYTES needs your input, yes you!

Whether you are student or staff, please send any news you have, big or small, to Anne (dubearna@tcd.ie) with the subject heading Phytobytes. Let's share the latest news and always be aware of what is happening at Botany!

Ellen Hutchins exhibition

The Ellen Hutchins exhibition will open its doors to the public one last time, this Thursday 27th April at 6:30 pm in the entrance of the Anatomy Building. The highlight of this event will be the presence of award-winning botanical artist Shevaun Doherty, who will demonstrate botanical illustration as she paints one of the first specimens collected by Ellen Hutchins on Whiddy Island, some 212 years ago.

Part Two of the exhibition is currently on display with new specimens, illustrations and letters, and will remain open for staff and students until Friday 28th April at lunchtime.

[Click on the banner above for more information.]

PHYTOBYTES needs your input, yes you!

Whether you are student or staff, please send any news you have, big or small, to Anne (dubearna@tcd.ie) with the subject heading Phytobytes. Let's share the latest news and always be aware of what is happening at Botany!