1. Compulsory SS Year (Capstone) Projects General Information 2021-22

From September 2017, all Senior Sophisters are required to take a 20-credit module of independent research, referred to in the Trinity Education Project's nomenclature as a capstone project. This constitutes one third of the final year's work; the remaining 40 credits will consist of Sophister options, as has traditionally been the case in the School.

According to the document presented to Council on 11 May 2016, TEP's definition of the capstone is a project 'that provides students with an opportunity to integrate the knowledge, skills and competencies which they have acquired during their undergraduate studies, and to demonstrate these in a form appropriate to the discipline'.

For 2021-22 the School of English is offering three models for this 20-credit capstone to its Senior Sophister students. These models are the dissertation model, such as the School has traditionally provided; a creative writing model; and an open collections model, founded on a project based in College archives or special collections in conjunction with the Library.

The three models, outlined below, aim to provide a variety of approaches and assessments in the final year project.

The chosen capstone model must be clearly distinct from the other 40 credits being undertaken in your Senior Sophister year and from the modules you took in your Junior Sophister year. You must be careful not to repeat material. So, while you might propose a capstone in an area where you've already done some study in a Sophister option, you must make sure that you're working in a different way with texts, or working on different texts from ones that you worked with in your options

General timeline for application and allocation of capstone projects 2021-22

(Please note: The School will communicate the following information by email for students who are studying abroad or off books in the Michaelmas and Hilary Term immediately preceding their Senior Sophister year.)

For students wishing to apply for the Creative Writing or Open Collections Model:

Week 4 MT 2020: virtual webinar/meeting to explain the options, how to write a proposal, the process of supervisor allocation and to answer questions. A list of sample archival/collections projects and of sample dissertation topics will be available at this meeting.

Weeks 4-5 MT 2020: Students considering applying for either the Creative Writing or Open Collections model should email and/or meet with an appropriate member of staff during an office hour to discuss your ideas and get feedback

Week 7 MT 2020: Creative Writing and Open Collections proposals must be submitted to Elaine in the Sophister office by email by Friday of week 7: maddocke@tcd.ie .

Please use “Capstone Project Proposal” as the subject line of your email.

The proposal for both models should be around 500 words long.

The proposal should provide a context for the work proposed and demonstrate critical engagement with appropriate material. It should include an indicative bibliography.

Creative writing additional information: Students applying for the creative writing model are also required to submit a sample of recent creative writing of around 1000 words and a short covering letter detailing Creative Writing experience.

Forms for the proposals will be emailed to you and will also be available on School website: <https://www.tcd.ie/English/>. Friday of week 7 at 12 noon is the deadline for submission.

Week 11 MT 2020: students receive response/ allocation by email from the Sophister office.

Week 13 HT 2021: students should contact their allocated supervisors to discuss their individual research plans. Over the summer you should begin to work on your research materials, as advised by your supervisor.

For students wishing to apply for the Dissertation Model:

Applications for the dissertation model occur in HILARY TERM

The dissertation model capstone is the most popular capstone model and the School has greatest supervisory capacity in the dissertation model.

Pease note you cannot choose or request your supervisor. Supervisors will be allocated with care --all staff are qualified to supervise UG dissertations and you may be allocated a supervisor who works outside of your dissertation topic.

Week 3-4 HT 2021: Online meeting/webinar for JS students to explain dissertation model options, how to choose a topic, how to write a proposal, and to answer questions

Weeks 4-5 HT 2021: email and/or meet with an appropriate member of staff during an office hour to discuss your proposal (i.e. if you want to write on Irish poetry please contact a member of staff who specializes in that area)

Week 7 HT 2021: The dissertation capstone project proposals submitted to Elaine in the Sophister office by email: maddocke@tcd.ie .

Please use “Capstone Project Proposal” as the subject line.

The proposal for the dissertation model should be a paragraph or two of around 500 words. It should provide a context for the work proposed and demonstrate critical engagement with appropriate material. It should include an indicative bibliography.

Forms for the dissertation proposal will be emailed to you and will also be available on School website: <https://www.tcd.ie/English/>. Friday of HT week 7 at 12 noon is the deadline for submission.

Week 10 or 11 HT 2021: students receive response/ allocation by email from the Sophister office.

Week 13 HT 2021: students should contact their supervisors to discuss their individual research plans. Over the summer you should begin to work on your research materials, as advised by your supervisor.

2021-22 Senior Sophister year MT: you will begin submitting work on your dissertation. There will also be one COMPULSORY webinar on how to plan work for your dissertation.

Each student will agree with the supervisor a timeline for production of work.

This should include: (a) the drafting of a preliminary outline and a working bibliography of primary and secondary sources

(b) specific deadlines for the completion of individual sections/chapters over the course of Michaelmas and Hilary Terms.

(c) The dissertation must be submitted by all students no later than midday on Friday of Week 9 of Hilary Term 2022, either via Blackboard or hard copy to the Sophister office. Details will be provided nearer the date of submission.

2. Creative Writing Model

The purpose of the creative project is to allow students to work on a long writing project, which can be a novel, a novella, or stories, or any other form of creative writing for which we can offer supervision in the School. The project will be an original portfolio of either short fiction, or an excerpt from a longer work of fiction, or short stories, or a piece of narrative non-fiction. The project should be viewed as preparation for a first collection of stories, or as the foundation of a novel.

The portfolio may be:

1. FICTION: 10,000-12,000 words of fiction which can take the shape of several short stories, or an excerpt from a longer work-in-progress.
2. NARRATIVE NON-FICTION: 10,000-12,000 words such as memoir, life-writing.

Assessment:

Assessment (100% assessed):

A Portfolio of creative writing, word counts as above.

Each creative writing capstone project will be read, evaluated, and given an agreed mark by your supervisor and one other member of staff. All Capstones will also be made available for the External Examiners at the School Examination Board.

Timeline:

The creative project will be supervised in the same manner as the dissertation model (see above). Supervision will be offered by the Creative Writing staff of the Oscar Wilde Centre. Spaces are limited and you may not do a Creative Writing Capstone and a Creative Writing Sophister option due to limited places.

Week 4 MT 2020: meeting to explain the options, the process of allocation and answer questions.

Weeks 4-5 MT 2020: email and/or meet with an appropriate member of the creative writing teaching staff to discuss ideas for your proposal.

Week 7 MT 2020: submit proposals to Sophister office. The proposal should be around 500 words long. It should be written with outputs appropriate to the creative writing model and learning outcomes in mind and should include an indicative bibliography.

You are also required to submit a sample of recent creative writing of around 1000 words and a cover letter detailing your Creative Writing experience. (Students applying for Deirdre Madden's Senior Sophister Creative Writing module may submit the same sample work for this application.)

Week 11 MT 2020: students receive response/ allocation via email from the capstone project committee/ Sophister office. You cannot choose your supervisor.

Week 13 HT 2021: students should contact their supervisors to initiate their individual research plans. Over the summer you should begin to work on your research materials, as advised by your supervisor.

2021-22 Senior Sophister year MT: you will begin submitting work on your portfolio. There will also be one COMPULSORY taught preparation class for the creative writing model.

Each student will agree with the supervisor a timeline for production of the portfolio.

This should include: (a) the drafting of a preliminary outline and a working bibliography of primary and secondary sources

(b) specific deadlines for the completion of individual sections over the course of Michaelmas and Hilary Terms. The number of sections will vary from portfolio to portfolio.

(c) The portfolio must be submitted by all students no later than midday on Friday of Week 9 of Hilary Term 2022, either via Blackboard or hard copy to the Sophister office. Details will be provided nearer the date of submission.

Aims:

The main purposes of this module are:

- to enable students to acquire a deep knowledge of their chosen art form and the work of its most notable practitioners
- to develop their practical and creative skills in a specific genre and to encourage them to take risks in their creative practice
- to enable students to undertake independent research relating to their project

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of their project students will be able to demonstrate a practical and critical knowledge of their chosen field in terms of subject, form, genre, language, narrative, appropriate research, synthesis of materials, and the management and delivery of a substantial, coherent and original piece of work.

3. Open Collections Model and List of Potential Project Topics

The open collections model invites students to engage with College's archival and print collections. Lecturers in the School have identified materials in Early Printed Books (EPB) and the Manuscripts & Archive Research Library (M&ARL) on which they would like to work with students – details are below. This model of capstone project has a threefold approach, resulting in three assessed pieces: an analytical essay of c. 5,000 words, an account written by students reflecting on their learning process, and a public-facing digital element such as an online exhibition, podcast, blog, or mapping project.

Assessment components:

1. Analytical essay (5000 words): students will be required to complete this aspect of the project first. It will take the form of an essay, in which students must articulate why this research project matters and apply appropriate theoretical readings. It is not necessary for the essay to include any consideration of digital humanities (DH). (40%; submit in week 12 MT 2021);
2. Reflective account of process (no strict word count): students will keep a (physical or digital) project notebook, in which they reflect on their learning process, the technical and intellectual demands of the project, such as copyright or palaeography, and will identify the target user(s) of the public-facing digital element. Students will submit entries to their supervisor on 3 occasions (see Timeline below), and the journal will be given an overall mark at the end of the capstone process. (20%; submit by week 8 HT 2022);
3. Public-facing digital element that will translate the ideas and findings of the essay into a more accessible register and visual format such as online exhibitions; podcasts; blogs; mapping projects, etc. (40%; submit in week 9 HT 2022).

The capstone must be submitted by all students no later than midday on Friday of Week 9 of Hilary Term 2022, either via Blackboard or hard copy to the Sophister office. Details will be provided nearer the date of submission.

Platform for public-facing digital element:

The platform to be used for these projects is WordPress. Each supervisor will direct the student toward helpful YouTube tutorials for designing WordPress sites, and will flag a number of excellent WordPress / blog sites that the student (and markers) can keep in mind as models. Here are some such sites:

Assessment

Each Open Collection capstone project will be read, evaluated and given an agreed mark by your supervisor and one other member of staff. Capstones will also be made available for the External Examiners at the School Examination Board.

Grading scheme

The analytical essay and reflective journal will be marked following the marking guidelines in the Sophister handbook. We will also follow these guidelines for the public-facing digital element, with these additional considerations:

1. The student will be assessed on how successfully the digital element translates some of the scholarship, research and ideas of the analytical essay into a more accessible register and visual format
2. In the reflective journal, the student will indicate the target user(s) for the digital element – this will be taken into account by the markers

Copyright considerations

The digital element of all projects will be designed to be public-facing. However, we require that all WordPress sites are password-protected while they are works-in-progress, until they have been marked. Students will reflect on copyright issues as part of their projects, so all projects will ideally become freely available once they are marked, but the password-protection may need to be retained if a finished WordPress site infringes copyright.

Images / Library

Students will identify any photographs or scans of material from EPB or M&ARL to be included in their WordPress sites in good time, and will liaise with the library team to arrange suitable images. Supervisors will encourage students to consider using images that have already been digitised by DRIS (Digital Resources and Imaging Services), and should also ensure that the student knows how to fill in a request form for photographs/scans and assist students as they liaise with the library team to arrange images, but it will be the student's responsibility to complete and submit any such requests.

Timeline

- Week 4 MT 2020: meeting to explain the options, how to write a proposal, the process of allocation and answer questions. A list of sample archival projects and of sample dissertation topics will be available at this meeting.
- Weeks 4-5 MT 2020: meet with/email an appropriate member of staff to discuss proposal.
- Week 7 MT 2020: students submit proposals to Sophister office via email. The proposal should be around 500 words long. It should provide a context for the work proposed and demonstrate critical engagement with appropriate material. It should include an indicative bibliography.
- Week 11 MT 2020: students receive response/ allocation from the capstone project committee/Sophister office via email.
- Week 13 HT 2021: students should contact their supervisors to initiate their individual research plans. Over the summer you should begin to work on your research materials, as advised by your supervisor.
- Students undertaking the open collections model will be required to complete the analytical essay first – they will commence work on this essay over the summer of 2021.
- Week 12 MT 2021: students will be required to submit the 5000 word analytical essay (40%).

- Week 8 HT 2022: students will complete the reflective project notebook in 3 phases and will show their supervisors each of the 3 parts during meetings throughout the year but the notebook is to be submitted as one final overall mark (20%).
Week 9 HT 2022: completion and submission of public-facing element (40%). The capstone must be submitted by all students no later than midday on Friday of Week 9 of Hilary Term 2022, either via Blackboard or hard copy to the Sophister office. Details will be provided nearer the date of submission.

In addition to the supervisory involvement each student will have from the lecturer who is overseeing work on a particular set of archival materials, there will be online meetings for the entire group of students undertaking this open collection model to provide further information about aims and methodologies; outputs for assessment; deadlines and time management; the importance of respecting the time and space of our colleagues in Early Printed Books and the Manuscripts & Archives Research Library.

Learning Outcomes

This module equips students to:

- Conduct original archival research
- Work both as independent scholars and in a collaborative research group
- Create public-facing digital outputs
- Engage in critical thinking
- Build on skills acquired in traditional assessment models throughout the degree
- Develop transferable archival and digital skills
- Communicate academic insights to the general public

AREAS IN WHICH PROPOSALS FOR OPEN COLLECTIONS CAPSTONES ARE ENCOURAGED:

**We have expert supervisory capacity and excellent archival/manuscript library resources in the following areas****

3.1 Medieval and Early Modern

1. Marginal Annotations in Early Printed Books
2. Chaucer / Gower / Lydgate
3. Sixteenth-Century Bibles

1. EARLY PRINTED CHAUCER

The TCD Library holds several important early editions of Chaucer, including major examples of the folio editions of his Works. Over the summer, students choosing this option would study the development of the “Great Tradition” of editing Chaucer, from Caxton through the folio editions and the beginnings of the modern editorial tradition. They would then begin an overview of early printed editions of Chaucer in the TCD collection, situating the collection within the larger tradition. The public-facing element would be an online exhibition of the major volumes, featuring images of the major works, together with descriptions of the volumes (including publication details, ownership marks, and marginal annotations where relevant).

2. CHAUCER / GOWER / LYDGATE

This suite of Capstone projects looks at manuscripts containing the works of three major late medieval authors (Chaucer, Gower, and Lydgate) held in M&ARL in TCD. The principal public-facing output for each will be a 1000-word exhibition-catalogue style description of the relevant manuscripts and their significance to enhance the outline of the College’s holdings of Middle English manuscripts that currently appears on the M&ARL site (<https://www.tcd.ie/library/manuscripts/collections/middle-english.php>). Students choosing these options may find it useful to take the Sophister option on the Medieval Book or attend M. Phil research training to give them prior grounding in handling, analysing and discussing medieval manuscripts.

a) Chaucer manuscripts

This will focus principally on MS 432 which has a copy of Chaucer’s lyric ‘On Steadfastness’ as well as a short poem inspired by his romance The Knight’s Tale, but may also consider MS 389, an Alchemical treatise (falsely) attributed to Chaucer.

b) Gower manuscripts

This will focus particularly on MS 213, a copy of Gower’s great Latin poem, Vox clamantis (‘The sound of one crying out’), but may also consider MS 519, which, though not containing any works by Gower, appears to have been copied in the same scriptorium or workshop as a manuscript of his Confessio amantis, now in the British Library. Students interested in this project should note that some knowledge of Latin may be an advantage as no complete translation of Gower’s poem is available.

c) Lydgate manuscripts

This will focus on MS 516, which contains two short works by Lydgate, but may also refer to MS 423 that has a stanza from his Life of the Virgin Mary. There may also be scope to consider manuscripts of texts that Lydgate used as sources, e. g. MS 519 with its copy of Guido de Colonne's Historia Destructionis Troiae, the source for Lydgate's Troy Book.

3. SIXTEENTH-CENTURY BIBLES

A project focused on College's extensive collection of 16th century Bibles. It would involve working with the catalogue to identify and describe the editions that we have of Matthews/Coverdale/Bishops/Great Bible.

3.2 18th and 19th Centuries

4. Jonathan Swift / John Kells Ingram / Maria Edgeworth
5. Victorian Materials in Early Printed Books
6. Bram Stoker
7. The Pollard Collection (19TH Century)

4. JONATHAN SWIFT / JOHN KELLS INGRAM / MARIA EDGEWORTH

TCD MS 1050 Jonathan Swift, autobiographical fragment

- The manuscript has been transcribed and published. Digital photographs are also available. Possible projects (of which there are many) might include comparing and contrasting the fragment in Swift's hand with a contemporary (and amplified) copy, also in the library; or, consideration of the way in which the narrative of the fragment has been used over the centuries by Swift scholars

TCD MS 10259 Notebooks of John Kells Ingram (Professor of Oratory, TCD 1852-1866)

- Contains lecture on Oliver Goldsmith (evening lecture or talk). Ingram was very involved in the erection of the Foley statue of Goldsmith in front of College. The project would involve transcription and consideration of the nature of Goldsmith's 19th century reputation.

Maria Edgeworth

- EPB (especially through the Pollard collection) holds many volumes of Maria Edgeworth's writings for children from the 1790s though to the 1820s (and in reprinted form through the nineteenth century). Many projects are possible here: the relationship between the fiction and Edgeworth's educational writing; Edgeworth's use of the sequel; the relationship of Edgeworth's fiction to other contemporary works for children.

5. VICTORIAN MATERIALS IN EARLY PRINTED BOOKS

A student-led online exhibition or blog series using Victorian EPB materials.

- The project(s) will draw upon 19th Century materials from the EPB, and/or possibly from the Pollard Collection, alongside digital 19th century materials from databases of newspapers and periodicals (ProQuest British Periodicals; Wellesley Index to Victorian Periodicals; Nineteenth-Century British Library Newspapers; ProQuest Historical Newspapers; The Times Digital Archive).
- The project will focus upon 19th century periodicals and popular fiction housed in the EPB collection. The student(s) may choose to focus on a particular 19th c author of popular fiction, a particular 19th c popular genre, or a particular 19th c periodical, or a combination of all three: e.g. L.T. Meade, detective fiction, The Strand Magazine.

6. BRAM STOKER

Students are free to identify projects based on the Bram Stoker material in M&ARL. Students can work individually on 2 or 3 projects, and the public facing output will be a blog.

7. THE POLLARD COLLECTION (19th CENTURY)

The following projects are based on the Pollard Collection held in Early Printed Books:

- Object biographies and It-Narratives 1860-1880 in the Pollard Collection of Children's Books
- The Short Stories of E. Nesbit in the Pollard Collection of Children's Books
- Toy narratives in the Pollard Collection of Children's Books

Public facing element

The public-facing element of each of these projects will be the creation of several 500-word abstracts of significant texts identified during the research project that will be uploaded to the National Collection of Children's Books database.

3.3 Modern

8. The Pollard Collection (19th-20th Centuries)
9. The essayist Hubert Butler / Icarus magazine
10. Dolmen Press / Michael Freyer

8. POLLARD COLLECTION (19th-20th Centuries)

Three small projects on which students will work individually. Each project will draw on material from Early Printed Books. Each project will focus on the Pollard Collection of Children's Books.

- a) Ireland and Irish Children's Literature in the Pollard Collection of Children's Books, 1890-1914.

This project offers an opportunity to investigate a range of texts for children published during the cultural revival and the period leading up to independence, including myths and legends, big house narratives, folktales, histories, and adventure stories. It is envisaged there will be a number of outputs. As the project develops, student and supervisor will decide together on the most appropriate form of public facing output(s). One output will be the creation of several 500-word abstracts of significant texts identified during the research project that will be uploaded to the National Collection of Children's Books database.

b) Boyhood and the Pollard Collection of Children's Books, 1880-1900.

This project offers an opportunity to explore a wide range of texts published for children toward the end of the nineteenth century, often regarded as part of the Golden Age of children's literature. From Empire adventure stories to sports stories to periodicals for boys, there is a wealth of material for an enthusiastic researcher to examine. It is envisaged there will be a number of outputs from this project. As the project develops, student and supervisor will decide together on the most appropriate form of public facing output(s). One output will be the creation of several 500-word abstracts of significant texts identified during the research project that will be uploaded to the National Collection of Children's Books database.

c) Representations of Land and Home in Irish Children's Literature in The Pollard Collection of Children's Books, 1870-1903.

This project offers an opportunity to explore a range of texts for children that engage directly or indirectly with the Land Wars in Ireland. It is envisaged there will be a number of outputs from this project. As the project develops, student and supervisor will decide together on the most appropriate form of public facing output(s). One output will be the creation of several 500-word abstracts of significant texts identified during the research project that will be uploaded to the National Collection of Children's Books database.

9. THE ESSAYIST HUBERT BUTLER / ICARUS MAGAZINE

The Butler papers (M&ARL - MS 10304) contain a wealth of information and could generate any number of different projects.

- I would encourage any students working on this project to first look at the published writings of the Irish essayist Hubert Butler, then consult the detailed catalogue of the Butler papers in the library, after which we would have a meeting and decide the approach to be followed. I propose that one of the following three approaches would be particularly fruitful, but am happy to revise this proposal according to the interests of the students who undertake the project:
  - a) Butler and Yugoslavia: students would consult his diaries, articles, speeches, notes, and letters to and from him on this topic – and would identify ways in which this material offers a new perspective on the works published in Balkan Essays (Irish Pages, 2016)
  - b) Butler and Refugees: students would focus on Butler's work in Vienna in 1938-39, helping to save Jewish refugees, arranging for their travel to Ireland, and onward from Ireland, since they were not welcome. Butler's activities were illegal at the time. He described this period as 'one of the happiest times of my life'. Students might compare his attitude to that of the Irish government at the time, and to the current Irish and European attitudes to the contemporary refugee crisis.

- c) Butler on the Local and International: students would consult a wide range of the different types of materials in the Butler papers, in order to construct an argument about the ways in which he developed his theory about the historical, ethical and intellectual relationships between the local and international.
- Based on which project students choose, a number of different public outputs are possible. Given the diversity and variety of Butler's interests, and of the materials on which students will be drawing, a mapping project might work well (something along the following line: <https://rylandscollections.wordpress.com/2016/09/08/mapping-the-friends-and-collaborators-of-jeff-nuttall/>). Alternatively, an online exhibition, series of blog posts focusing on particular materials, or podcast (perhaps featuring interviews with those who knew Butler – this would be a valuable record in and of itself) would all make great.

Icarus magazine (EPB) was founded in 1950 by Alec Reid and has been published three times a year since. It will produce its 200th issue in 2018, so the public output for this project should engage with this legacy and present an overview of the magazine, to be used in promoting its anniversary.

- I would encourage any students undertaking this project to consult the back catalogue of the magazine in EPB, then to do some research on digital research projects on comparable magazines, such as this British Library blog on little magazines: <https://www.bl.uk/20th-century-literature/articles/among-friends-little-magazines-friendship-and-networks>
- The public outputs might take the form of a blog, podcast or online exhibition on the back catalogue of the magazine. I would encourage students to reflect on the different elements of the magazine: the writing in different genres, the visual art throughout, the cover images, the changes and consistencies in presentation over the decades: any and all of these elements will reward study and analysis.

10. DOLMEN PRESS / MICHAEL FREYER

These projects will be of interest students who are particularly engaged by twentieth-century Irish poetry and cultural history and book history, publishing, and design. There is considerable overlap in the holdings in the Dolmen and Michael Freyer collections in Early Printed Books, so projects (a) and (b) below have been designed for students to work across the collections. These projects would demand close attention to the design ambitions and achievements of the Dolmen Press in terms of typography, illustration, and layout. The third project is concerned with assessing the Michael Freyer collection on its own, and would require in addition significant research in newspapers, periodicals, and other publications held in EPB.

a) Revival Legacies: Liam Miller's professed personal obsession with W. B. Yeats was one of the driving forces behind the Press's commitment to publishing titles about or commemorating the poet and other key figures in the Revival, including J. M. Synge. Moreover, the Dun Emer and Cuala Presses were important precursors to and influences on Miller's Dolmen. This project could investigate the reception and construction of these Revival legacies in Dolmen's output; there would also be the potential to examine links with items in the Cuala Press Archive, which Trinity also holds. It would also encourage reflection on Yeats's legacies for those generations who followed him into poetry, given Dolmen's founding commitment to championing contemporary Irish poets.

Public-facing output: illustrated blog series, perhaps borrowing the model/idea of Dolmen's 'Illustrated Bibliography'

b) Early Ireland and the Dolmen Press: Miller's commitment to making old and middle Irish texts accessible to a contemporary readership led him to encourage a number of writers to undertake translation projects – most notably, of course, Thomas Kinsella, whose celebrated version of the Táin was published by Dolmen in 1969, with illustrations by Louis Le Brocquy. Alongside Kinsella's work (Longes Mac Unsnig; Thirty-Three Triads; The Breastplate of St Patrick and others) it would consider Dolmen editions of the Book of Leinster, the Book of Kells, A Treasury of Irish Saints, and The Gaelic Alphabet.

Public-facing output: An illustrated blog series (copyright permitting); or illustrated timelines of the originals alongside the contemporary versions.

c) Dublin's cultural life in print: the Freyer Collection includes a wealth of printed ephemera gathered by Michael Freyer – theatre programmes, show cards, exhibition catalogues etc – dating especially from the 1960s. Considering these together would offer an engaging portrait of one man's experience of and engagement with Dublin's cultural life in the mid-20th century; contextualising them, at the same time, with research around those involved in the events and their host institutions, would offer new vantage points on key figures in literature, theatre, the visual arts, and publishing at this time.

Public-facing output: An online and/or physical exhibition, or a more creative representation of the institutions and venues involved, matched with mini biographies of key figures, reproductions of photographs and exhibited images, etc (all copyright permitting).

4. Dissertation Model

The Senior Sophister dissertation is an extended piece of writing of 10,000-12,000 words (split into a number of smaller chapters), based on supervised research. It will normally involve the critical analysis of primary texts, the evaluation of critical or historical context, the application of a critical or theoretical methodology, a literature review or account of sources, and the presentation of a research bibliography. In order to prepare the dissertation, you will work on your own, under the supervision of a member of staff, from the end of your JS year to the submission date in Hilary Term of your Senior Sophister year.

Students choosing the dissertation model meet their supervisor regularly, based on the timeline agreed with the supervisor, building up to submission of the completed dissertation in Week 9 of Hilary Term in the Senior Sophister year. They will also maintain e-mail contact, as directed by the supervisor. The dissertation option has no taught element, but students choosing this model are required to attend a training session in the Michaelmas term of their Senior Sophister year, the date for which will be announced in Michaelmas term.

The nature of the dissertation and allocation of supervisors:

The dissertation is your own piece of work. The role of the supervisor is to advise on research skills, help refine your ideas, and give feedback on drafts, but the supervisor does not teach you the topic.

All lecturing staff in the School are qualified to give dissertation supervision and you may be assigned a supervisor who is not a specialist on the topic you have chosen.

Assessment

Each dissertation will be read, evaluated and given an agreed mark by your supervisor and one other member of staff. Senior Sophister dissertations will also be made available for the External Examiners at the School Examination Board. The dissertation option is worth 20 ECTS.

Timeline

Week 3 HT 2021: meeting to explain the options, the process of application, allocation and to answer questions. A list of sample dissertation topics will be available at this meeting.

Weeks 4-5 HT 2021: email and/or meet with an appropriate member of staff during an office hour to discuss your proposal.

Week 7 HT 2021: The dissertation capstone project proposals submitted to Elaine in the Sophister office by email: maddocke@tcd.ie. Please use "Capstone Project Proposal" as the subject line. You should have already sought advice from a member of the academic staff about your proposal.

The proposal for the dissertation model should be around 500 words long. It should provide a context for the work proposed and demonstrate critical engagement with appropriate material. It should include an indicative bibliography.

Forms for the dissertation proposal will be emailed to you and will also be available on School website: <https://www.tcd.ie/English/>. Friday of Week 7 at 12 noon is the deadline for submission.

Week 9 or 10 HT 2021: students receive response/ allocation of supervisor via email through the Sophister office.

Week 13 HT 2021: students should contact their supervisors to initiate their individual research plans. Over the summer you should begin to work on your research materials, as advised by your supervisor.

2021-22 Senior Sophister year MT: you will begin submitting work on your dissertation.

Week 3 and/or 4 MT 2021: There will also be one COMPULSORY online preparation class for the dissertation model and one COMPULSORY online library session on using the library e-resources for dissertations.

MT and HT 2021-22: Students will agree with their supervisors a timeline for production of the dissertation.

This should include: (a) the drafting of a preliminary outline and a working bibliography of primary and secondary sources early in Michaelmas Term of the Senior Sophister year, as well as an agreed -upon critical approach or methodology for the dissertation.

(b) specific deadlines for the completion of individual sections or chapters in the dissertation over the course of Michaelmas and Hilary Terms. The number of chapters or sections will vary from dissertation to dissertation.

Each student should arrange to meet with the supervisor at least twice per term. However, it is likely that more frequent meetings will be necessary.

A possible schedule of work might be as follows (note that this is only an example and not intended to be prescriptive):

MT Week 1 - meet supervisor, discuss work done over summer, agree structure

MT Week 4 - submit initial piece of writing (introduction, detailed plan or other work, as agreed)

MT Week 11 - submit draft of first full chapter (c.4000 words)

HT Week 1 - submit draft of a second piece of work/chapter for discussion in week 2 or 3

HT Week 5 - submit redraft/work for discussion in week 6

HT Week 7 - submit full draft of dissertation*

HT Weeks 7-9 – revise and redraft final version

HT week 9 – submit final dissertation

* Please be aware that most staff have multiple students to supervise and will not be able to read drafts from all of them in the weeks immediately before the deadline. The latest you should expect to submit writing for feedback is week seven of Hilary Term.
