Reading Ireland A

Michaelmas Term 2019
10 ECTS

Module description
This team-taught module introduces students to a broad range of texts, authors and issues in Irish writing. Students work across genres and forms, encountering canonical and less often studied works. This comparative module proposes various ways of thinking about Irish literary texts, while at the same time providing a sound knowledge of the social, cultural and political conditions in which these texts were written, produced and read.

Learning outcomes
Upon successful completion of this module, students will:

- Be confident discussing some key figures and texts in Irish writing
- Employ a well-developed range of critical terms in discussion of the texts and genres
- Show a sound critical awareness in evaluating the relationship between texts and contexts, situating literary analysis within broader cultural and historical frameworks
- Relate the texts studied to relevant debates in criticism and theory, within and beyond Irish literary studies
- Generate questions, and robust comparative arguments, about these texts and authors, and pursue independent research to develop them
