

TCD School of Physics Policy on conferences organised in the School and gender: 30 September 2014

The School of Physics has set a normal target of minimum 25% female participation as plenary and invited speakers at conferences organised in the School of Physics.

School staff acting as conference organisers/Chairs who are employed by TCD School of Physics should be able to demonstrate that minimum 25% females have been invited to participate as plenary and invited speakers at conferences organised in the School, unless the staff member has evidence that fewer than 25% females engage in that particular research area nationally or internationally as appropriate.
