Introduction

The Foundation Scholarship examinations provided by the Political Science department for 2018-19 will be similar to those provided from 2015-16 onwards, and different from those provided in the years prior to this.

The examination “Political Science 1” requires students to write an essay on a topic related to one of the broad areas of political science covered in Senior Fresh (SF) modules—international relations, comparative politics, history of political thought—but addressing materials that are outside the Michaelmas Term SF module syllabi. An additional reading list will be provided to cover these topics. Students will therefore focus on one of these topics in advance and write one essay on that topic in a two-and-a-quarter-hour examination. The exam will contain only one essay question for each of the three topics for which reading lists have been provided. Students may, at their discretion, prepare more than one topic in advance, but they will answer only one essay question in the examination.

When writing essays for “Political Science 1”, students are expected to know relevant materials and concepts from the related SF modules, but they must demonstrate engagement with and mastery of the materials contained on these additional reading lists. Similarly, students may choose to do additional reading, beyond the materials contained in the provided reading lists, on these political science topics, but, again, students are expected primarily and above all to demonstrate engagement with and mastery of the materials contained on these reading lists. There is no requirement to do any additional outside readings and indeed these reading lists are already extensive and demanding. If a student wishes to refer to additional readings outside these reading lists (or materials contained on module syllabuses), the student is recommended to provide a reference, indicating author, title, and year of publication if possible.

No special tutorials are to be provided by academic staff on the topics to be examined in “Political Science 1”.

Reading lists for the topics for 2018-19 are contained in this document, as well as sample questions. Students, however, are advised to prepare broadly for a variety of possible questions addressing this material.

Readings for these topics will be available on reserve in the library (in the case of books) or available as hard copies or electronic articles through the library (in the case of articles), please search for the title of the academic journal through the library website to find any electronic version in the first instance, although some papers/journals may only be available in hard copy.

The examination “Political Science 2” is also a two-and-a-quarter-hour examination. It requires students to write three essays, two of which will relate to materials covered in the three Michaelmas-Term SF Political Science modules, and one of which will be a more general question about the nature of politics. There will be a total of twelve questions on the exam. Nine of these questions will relate to the three Michaelmas-
Term SF Political Science modules—three for each module. The other three questions will be more general questions about the nature of politics. Each student must answer two of the nine module-related questions and one of the three general questions, for a total of three questions.

To repeat: students must answer three questions out of a total of twelve questions on the Political Science 2 Foundation Scholarship examination, two of which MUST be from the questions drawing on materials from the Senior Fresh modules, and one of which MUST be from the general questions.

For the questions relating to the materials in the SF Political Science modules, a mastery of the materials taught in those lectures and contained on those syllabi (including of course any optional or additional reading suggestions) up to the end of the Michaelmas Term is sufficient preparation.

Sample questions for the “Political Science 2” examination are contained in this document.

As a reminder, this guidance relates only to the content and format of the Foundation Scholarship examinations provided by the Political Science Department. Many students also have questions about which papers they should choose to sit for the Foundation Scholarship examination. For those questions, please consult the regulations of your specific degree programme (BESS, PPES, Law and Politics, European Studies, Political Science and Geography, History and Political Science etc.) Some “Frequently Asked Questions” are also answered on the Political Science Department’s website.

We wish all students good luck with the Foundation Scholarship examinations.
TOPICS AND READINGS FOR POLITICAL SCIENCE PAPER 1

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS
HISTORY OF POLITICAL THOUGHT
COMPARATIVE POLITICS
INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS A

William Phelan

Topic: The Politics of International Investment Agreements, and Investor-State Dispute Settlement

The International Relations A essay question will deal with political science explanations for the development and effectiveness of international investment agreements, with a particular focus on the readings below. It will not deal with the strictly legal-doctrinal analysis of international investment agreements of the sort sometimes produced by professional lawyers. In answering this question, students should write with political science, and not law, in mind.

Readings:

Books:

Articles:

Book Chapters:

Sample Questions:

1. Why do states enter into agreements providing for “investor-state dispute settlement”?
2. What is new and different about investor-state dispute settlement compared to other international agreements?
Plato is widely recognized as the first major feminist political philosopher in the western tradition—the first major political philosopher to make a case for the political and social equality of women. This year's History of Political Thought A question for the Political Science 1 paper will focus on the second major feminist political philosopher—Mary Wollstonecraft (1759-1797). Specifically, the question will deal with Wollstonecraft’s primary work of feminist political thought, A Vindication of the Rights of Woman, first published in 1792.

Readings:

Please use the Third Norton Critical Edition of this book, which you can find in the library. This edition contains the complete text of the Vindication. It also includes over two dozen secondary readings relating to Wollstonecraft, including background material, works by her contemporaries, and critical commentaries from a variety of perspectives. All of the readings from this edition are assigned for this Political Science 1 paper.

Sample Question:

In what ways did Wollstonecraft reject the ideas of Jean-Jacques Rousseau?
This year's scholarship general question for Comparative Politics A will focus on the topic of populism and extremist parties. Issues to consider include the following:

- Is their rise overstated?
- What regional differences exist?
- Can we identify a type of voter who favours them?
- What are the differences between far left and far right parties?
