Professors, Associate Professors, Lecturers and other Officers

Staff are shown under faculty and school headings applicable at 1 October 2007. New structures approved by Board will come into effect on 1 January 2008. Functional titles and group descriptions are shown e.g. 'DIRECTOR OF ...'. Individual academic ranks are shown in the form 'Professor of...' and are in order of appointment to the rank; this type is also used for individual appointments within group headings e.g. 'STAFF OFFICE... Staff Secretary'. It has not been possible, however, to achieve total consistency due to the complexity of the institutional relationships. The dates given after the titles of certain offices are those when the posts, or posts with which they are continuous, were founded. For further details the Trinity College Dublin Record volume 1991 may be consulted. Where not otherwise indicated, the degrees stated have been conferred by the University of Dublin. The names of persons not on the ordinary full-time staff e.g. appointments for terms of years are marked with a '†' (other than research fellows and research associates). Members of staff with contracts of indefinite duration are shown with a date of appointment and a '†' (other than research fellows). The names of part-time members of the staff are marked with an asterisk.

For lecturers, the original date of appointment to a full-time post (academic or equivalent grade) is indicated under the column 'Appointed': this information does not indicate whether the holder is, or is not, still subject to the normal review procedures relating to confirmation in appointment. Dates are shown for part-time appointments involving periods in excess of one academic year: no dates are shown where appointment is made annually.

Research centres

ADDICTION RESEARCH CENTRE

The Addiction Research Centre builds on the experience of the School of Social Work and Social Policy in teaching specialist courses on this topic over the past twenty years. The aim of the centre is to provide a source for competent, independent and critical social research into societal management of drug and alcohol-related problems, with a particular commitment to studying the policy process in this sphere.

ANTI-BULLYING RESEARCH AND RESOURCE CENTRE

The Anti-Bullying Research and Resource Centre has been developed to help reduce the incidence of bullying behaviour both in schools and the workplace, through raising awareness, understanding and positive intervention. The ill-effects of bullying behaviour are highlighted through research and development, training and education. Guidelines on good practice on preventing and countering the problem are provided.

The centre also provides in-service and staff development days for schools and the adult workplace. It also hosts conferences and workshops.

Central to the centre is the development of research. The centre has completed a nationwide study on bullying behaviour in schools with financial assistance from the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation, the Department of Education and Science, and the Arts and Social Sciences Benefactions Fund. It has developed and evaluated an anti-bullying programme to prevent and counter bullying in primary schools in Co. Donegal. This programme has formed the basis of a nationwide project which is funded by the Irish Research Council for Humanities and Social Sciences. In addition the first nationwide study to establish the incidence and nature of workplace bullying in Ireland has been completed with the financial assistance of the Health and Safety Authority. It has been a research partner in several of the E.U. projects on violence in schools [Connect initiative 1999-2002]. It has also been a partner in Comenius Action 2.1 – Training of school education staff. It is currently a partner in a Socrates/Minerva project on violence in schools online project (VISTOP) and a Comenius 3 project on European safer school partnerships through education for citizenship. It is also a research partner of Core-Net (www.uis.no/core-net).

CENTRE FOR CIVIL ENGINEERING HERITAGE

The Centre for Civil Engineering Heritage was established in 1995 to provide a focus for research, consultancy and publication in all aspects of civil engineering heritage, including civil engineering biography. The National Civil Engineering Heritage Database is maintained by the centre and includes records of all major civil engineering structures in the Republic of Ireland, such as bridges and viaducts, canals and aqueducts, railway infrastructure, docks, harbours and lighthouses, and water supplies. The centre maintains close contact with the Heritage Society of Engineers Ireland, the Panel for Historical Engineering Works of the Institution of Civil Engineers, and the Industrial Heritage Association of Ireland. Recent publications include Civil engineering heritage: Ireland (1998), Ireland's bridges (2003) and Engineering Ireland (2006).

CENTRE FOR COMPUTING AND LANGUAGE STUDIES

The Centre for Computing and Language Studies (CCLS) was founded in 1996 as a pastoral and administrative home for the interdisciplinary moderatorship (B.A.) course in computer science, linguistics and a language, and as a focus for research collaboration in related areas within College, nationally and internationally. The centre contributes to the organisation of the Dublin computational linguistics research seminar, which is the product of collaboration between Dublin City University, The National University of Ireland, Dublin and Trinity College. The centre also provides support for research initiatives.

CENTRE FOR CONTEMPORARY IRISH HISTORY

The Centre for Contemporary Irish History promotes research in recent Irish history. Its graduate students and postdoctoral fellows and associates manage their discrete projects within a framework which facilitates dialogue and interaction with researchers in their own and in related disciplines inside and outside College, as well as the sharing of research tools and experience.

CENTRE FOR GENDER AND WOMEN’S STUDIES

The Centre for Gender and Women’s Studies was established as the Centre for Women’s Studies in July 1988 and has recently expanded its title to reflect the increasing diversity of its interests. Its activities include teaching, research, publications, public seminars and lectures. The centre’s graduate programmes (M.Phil./Diploma, M.Litt. and Ph.D.) address current scholarship on women, gender and sexualities. The centre’s dedicated research unit has undertaken nationally and internationally funded projects on such diverse topics as the gender history, work-life balance, gender and ageing, barriers and facilitators toward the promotion of women, the role of men in the promotion of gender equality, prostitution and women and ambition. The centre fosters links with the community through its extra mural course ‘Identifying gender’ and its public seminars and lectures. Recent activities include an international conference on gender and education, two national conferences – one on women’s history and one on new research in Irish feminism (2007) and the editorship of a special issue of the Journal of Gender and Education.

CENTRE FOR IRISH-SCOTTISH STUDIES

Founded in 2000, the Centre for Irish-Scottish Studies is designed to promote scholarship and teaching in the fields of Irish and Scottish culture. In particular, it seeks to develop research in certain key areas: Irish and Scottish history, Irish and Scottish literature in English, and Irish and Scots Gaelic language and literature. Through the Irish-Scottish Academic Initiative, the centre has links with the Queen's University, Belfast, and the Universities of Strathclyde, Edinburgh and Aberdeen (including the Research Institute of Irish and Scottish Studies).

CENTRE FOR MEDIEVAL AND RENAISSANCE STUDIES

The centre was established with two major aims: to promote interdisciplinary collaboration between scholars working in the fields of Medieval and Renaissance studies both within and outside Trinity; to raise the profile of Medieval and Renaissance studies at a national and an international level. The centre organises conferences and seminars on a regular basis, and also offers a taught interdisciplinary M.Phil. in Medieval Language, Literature and Culture. It has developed close links with a number of other institutions, for example, the Universities of Hull, Wales (Bangor and Lampeter), Manchester, London, Oxford, Paris X and the National University of Ireland, Maynooth. It works closely with the Society for Renaissance Studies and is also a member of CARMEN, the 'Confederation for the Advancement of Research through a Medieval European Network'. It has a refereed book series, 'Medieval and Renaissance court cultures', published by Brepols. A schools liaison programme has also recently been launched.

CENTRE FOR RESEARCH ON ADAPTIVE NANOSTRUCTURES AND NANODEVICES (CRANN)

CRANN, the Centre for Research on Adaptive Nanostructures and Nanodevices, is Ireland's first purpose-built research institute with a mission to advance the frontiers of nanoscience. The disciplines of physics, chemistry and biology converge in the nanoworld. When the CRANN laboratory on the north-east corner of the campus opens in 2007, it will provide the physical and intellectual environment for world-class fundamental research. In addition to close links with

University and College officers

Physics, Chemistry and other schools or departments in the Faculties of Engineering and Systems Sciences, and Science at TCD, CRANN features projects involving partners in the National University of Ireland, Dublin and the National University of Ireland, Cork. CRANN's research is funded by Science Foundation Ireland, with support also from industrial partners Intel Ireland, HP Ireland and four Irish SMEs. The CRANN building is funded by Science Foundation Ireland, TCD and a generous donation from Dr Martin Naughton. See www.crann.tcd.ie

CENTRE FOR NONPROFIT MANAGEMENT

The Centre for Nonprofit Management is an initiative of the School of Business. The centre develops and supports research, education and dialogue on nonprofit organisations and on the third sector as a realm of individual, organisational and social action. In this work we are concerned both with audiences within academe and more general audiences among third sector stakeholders. At programme level we are seeking to contribute to (a) the understanding of nonprofit organisations, their emergence, management and impact on wider society; (b) the development of managerial capacity and organisational leadership in nonprofit organisations; and (c) the facilitation of discussion among sector stakeholders in Ireland about ideas concerning the nonprofit sector here.

CENTRE FOR TELECOMMUNICATIONS VALUE-CHAIN RESEARCH (CTVR)

The Centre for Telecommunications Value-Chain Research (CTVR) is focused on applying a value-chain perspective to research aimed at realising the next generation of telecommunications networks. It brings together a multi-disciplinary group of researchers drawn from many Irish universities together with a carefully chosen set of industrial partners to work on those engineering and scientific challenges that will make the most difference to the telecommunications networks of the future.

THE CHILDREN'S RESEARCH CENTRE

The Children's Research Centre was established in 1995 as a joint initiative of what are now known as the Schools of Psychology and Social Work and Social Policy. The mission of the centre is to conduct policy and practice-relevant research with children, the family, the community and other contexts in which children and young people live their lives. The centre has experience and strengths in a range of research approaches, including qualitative and quantitative research, policy analysis and programme evaluation. Reflecting the multi-disciplinary nature of the centre, staff and postgraduate students are drawn from a range of professional backgrounds, including psychology, social work, education, anthropology, sociology and social policy. The centre works in close collaboration with members of the College, with practitioners and policy-makers and with Irish and international colleagues in the field of children's research.

The centre has undertaken work in partnership with, or on behalf of, a range of statutory and voluntary organisations. Current studies include: 'AIB schoolmate evaluation 2005-2008' (AIB better Ireland programme); 'The educational experiences of young people aged 17-18 years in long term foster care in Ireland' (funded by the Office of the Minister for Children); 'The process of youth homelessness: a qualitative longitudinal study' (funded by the Homeless Agency); 'Early intervention for children with SEN aged 3-6 years' (NCSE special education initiative). The Children's Research Centre is the lead department in TCD for the 'Growing up in Ireland' study, a seven-year study being carried out in conjunction with the Economic and Social Research Institute (ESRI) and funded by the Office of the Minister for Children.

THE HAMILTON MATHEMATICS INSTITUTE (TCD)

The Hamilton Mathematics Institute fosters mathematics by creating an environment in which researchers can meet, collaborate, discuss and explain the frontiers of fundamental mathematics and related disciplines to each other.

It also facilitates interaction between leading researchers and talented young people, organises public lectures to communicate the challenge and excitement of fundamental research and engages in dialogue both with other disciplines and society at large.

INSTITUTE OF CARDIOVASCULAR SCIENCE

In June 2004, Trinity College established the Institute of Cardiovascular Science, a partnership between College and its two main teaching hospitals: the Adelaide and Meath Hospital, Dublin incorporating the National Children’s Hospital, and St James’s Hospital.

With the exception of sub-Saharan Africa, cardiovascular disease is the single biggest cause of mortality worldwide. The aims of the institute are to increase the understanding of cardiovascular disease in order to improve and develop prevention, diagnostic, treatment and rehabilitation strategies.

The main focus of the institute will be on research; it will also be engaged in the development and delivery of education and research programmes.

The institute’s multi-disciplinary research programme comprises four main themes: cardiovascular risk prediction and health; inflammation and metabolism; imaging and physiological measurement; invasive cardiology and electrophysiology. The research programmes under these themes are representative of collaborative links with colleagues across the founding institutions, external research centres and with industry.

Director

To be appointed

INSTITUTE FOR INTERNATIONAL INTEGRATION STUDIES (IIS)

The goal of the IIS is to conduct rigorous academic research on the global and regional dimensions of international economic, political and cultural integration. By developing new theoretical and empirical perspectives, it seeks to improve understanding about the many dimensions of the integration process. Progress in this area is vital for the improvement of policy making and the promotion of an informed popular debate on the pros and cons of the international integration process. In addition to supporting basic research that furthers the state of knowledge on international integration, the IIS will also seek to widely disseminate its research findings in policy making, business and general media circles.

INSTITUTE OF MOLECULAR MEDICINE

The Institute of Molecular Medicine (IMM) is a state of the art facility dedicated to research into the molecular basis of human disease with significant core technology platforms in cell signalling, high throughput genomics, transcriptomics and houses the Irish Gene Bank. IMM's key research themes are cancer, inflammation, vascular biology and neurosciences. Its location on the St James's Hospital site permits close interaction between basic science and clinical sciences promoting the bench to bedside approach in molecular medicine.

This multidisciplinary research institute also serves as the focus for a range of postgraduate programmes, including the M.Sc. in molecular medicine and the four year Ph.D. programme in molecular medicine. The institute builds on the strong support of the TCD teaching hospitals at St James's Hospital and the Adelaide and Meath Hospital, Dublin incorporating the National Children's Hospital to provide for integrated education and research at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels.

IRISH ART RESEARCH CENTRE (TRIARC)

This centre was established in the Department of the History of Art in April 2002 to promote and facilitate the study of Irish art and architecture, and began operations in October 2003. Located in the renovated Provost's House Stables, it serves as a focus for academic research and is responsible for organising seminars, conferences and postgraduate courses. It also has responsibility for a visual archive. By exploiting the exceptional resources available in the centre of Dublin, both in Trinity College and in the major cultural institutions nearby, the centre builds on the department's existing achievements in the field of Irish art. The centre is run by a director who reports to a management committee.

IRISH CENTRE FOR EUROPEAN LAW

The Irish Centre for European Law Limited is a company limited by guarantee established in May 1988. The primary purpose of the centre, which has charitable status, is to increase knowledge and understanding of all aspects of European law, in particular European Union and human rights law. To this end the centre organises conferences, seminars and refresher courses on the legal aspects of topics such as institutional reform, human rights, free movement, social law, competition, consumer protection, recognition and enforcement of judgments and intellectual property. These events are organised with the co-operation and participation of experts throughout Europe and are aimed at all those involved with, or concerned about, European law. The results of many of these activities are published in a series of books.

THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY

The National Institute for Intellectual Disability was established in 1998 and is committed to promoting the full inclusion for people with learning disabilities through: influencing policy in all aspects of their lives; developing education programmes focused on the lifelong learning needs of people with learning disabilities and undertaking high quality multi-disciplinary research and creating a network of researchers.

The institute's activities and strengths include multi-disciplinary and inclusive research that is focused upon policy and practice as it affects the lives of people with learning disabilities across the life span, provision of an inclusive full-time certificate programme for students with learning disabilities, and involvement in collaborative initiatives both within and outside of Trinity that promote inclusive communities. The institute undertakes public seminars, round table discussions as well as producing a publication series. The institute welcomes postgraduate students and visiting fellows wishing to pursue disability research. Links are fostered with the community, and in particular those with learning disabilities, through contact with service agencies, interest groups and advocacy groups both nationally and internationally. Reflecting the multi-disciplinary nature of the institute, staff and associate staff are drawn from a wide range of backgrounds, including psychology, education, social studies, clinical speech and language studies, economics, occupational therapy and law.

POLICY INSTITUTE

The Policy Institute is a multi-disciplinary public policy research institute. It has close links with the School of Social Sciences and Philosophy, the School of Social Work and Social Policy and the School of Business. The institute acts as a forum for interaction between the College and the diverse policy communities of the city of Dublin. It runs a series of seminars, lectures and occasional conferences on issues of major importance; it hosts a visiting research fellow in conjunction with the University and College officers

Combat Poverty Agency and it publishes a series of studies in public policy (informally known as 'Blue papers'), which provide short, rigorous, but accessible analyses of policy issues.

THE TRINITY CENTRE FOR BIO-ENGINEERING

The Trinity Centre for Bio-Engineering (TCBE) was established in May 2002. The aim of the centre is to further develop biology-based bioengineering research in Trinity College, and to support interdisciplinary teaching initiatives in the field of biomedical engineering. The specific areas of research focus at present are: tissue engineering, mechanobiology, and testing and design of orthopaedic and cardiovascular implants. The Centre for Bio-Engineering is located in the south east corner of College, see www.biomechanics.ie

THE TRINITY CENTRE FOR THE ENVIRONMENT

The Centre for the Environment was set up in 1998 as an evolutionary development from the Environmental Sciences Unit founded in 1979. The role of the centre is to promote interdisciplinary activity between schools, departments and individuals throughout College. The School of Chemistry and the School of Natural Sciences (comprising the Departments of Botany, Geography, Geology and Zoology) are currently affiliated.

The centre co-ordinates the moderatorship (B.A.) course in environmental sciences and the taught M.Sc. course in environmental sciences.

Another major role of the centre is the promotion and facilitation of interdisciplinary environmental research.

THE TRINITY CENTRE FOR HIGH PERFORMANCE COMPUTING

This centre, established in 1998, co-ordinates activity in high performance computing in Trinity College. Its functions are to support research using high performance computing, to develop training initiatives for users of high performance computing and to identify and develop innovation in the area of high performance computing in Trinity College. The centre's activities are overseen by the Dean of Research.

TRINITY COLLEGE CENTRE FOR IMMUNOLOGY

The Trinity College Centre for Immunology was established in March 2000 as an interfaculty and interdepartmental initiative whose aim is to bring together immunologists within Trinity College. The area of immunology is one of the fastest-growing disciplines in biomedical research and is a key component of the biotechnology industry. Discoveries within immunology are giving rise to new therapies for a wide range of diseases, most notably in cancer, arthritis and infectious diseases. In TCD, research in this area is carried out in the School of Biochemistry and Immunology and the School of Medicine. The aims of the centre will be to promote the development of immunology in College; to foster links between immunologists within College; to provide a focus for the raising of funds; and to co-ordinate present and future teaching in immunology. This initiative will build on what is already a strong aspect of research in College, the ultimate aim being to identify the centre as one of international renown in immunology.

TRINITY COLLEGE INSTITUTE OF NEUROSCIENCE (TCIN)

TCIN is Ireland's first purpose-built research institute to advance the frontiers of neuroscience. The disciplines of biochemistry, computer science, electronic engineering, genetics, mathematics, microbiology, neurology, pharmacology, physiology, psychiatry, psychology and zoology converge to understand the most complex entity in the known universe – the human brain. It is here that discoveries will be made and technologies and therapies developed which will change our lives in the coming decades. The philosophy of the institute is that a meaningful research programme in the neurosciences crosses traditionally distinct academic boundaries focusing on and anticipating the needs at the cutting edge of neuroscience.

The research areas at TCIN are drawn from molecular, cognitive, behavioural and clinical neurosciences. The strategic themes of research include ageing, neurodegenerative and neuropsychiatric diseases with strengths and expertise in neurogenetics, neuroplasticity, synaptic plasticity, neuropharmacology, neurophysiology and neurochemistry. TCIN will house novel technologies including functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI), animal MR brain imaging and functional neurogenomics.

The TCIN physical infrastructure is the focal point for research that extends across subject, faculty and disciplines and will provide the framework and facilities to complement the existing expertise in their quest to explore the complexity of brain chemistry, networks and how they function.

The College programme for joint university industry projects was initiated in 1986, with the appointment of the Director of Innovation Services. The Innovation Centre attached to the O'Reilly Institute, the Trinity Technology and Enterprise Campus on Pearse Street (acquired from the IDA in 1999), part of the Biotechnology Institute and the St James's Hospital Biocubator are the location for the College's Research Office, innovation and technology transfer activities, spin-off, campus company and entrepreneurship programmes. Research and Innovation Services (R&IS) has had a promoting role in many high tech initiatives such as the College's High Performance Computing Centre and the BioResearch Ireland programme in College. R&IS co-ordinates and manages policies on new research programmes and manages intellectual property for the College generally. The R&IS programme to stimulate entrepreneurship and train postgraduates is in its fifth year.

In 2006, the Director moved to the new post of Director of Entrepreneurship to strengthen College's ability to support new ventures and to co-ordinate R&IS work with the School of Business and with external entrepreneurship programmes in the region and in the country. R&IS is active in a number of European-wide innovation projects, such as Cluster Entrepreneurship, and will contribute to the EuroOffice Network project which started in September 2006, among other entrepreneurship activities.

The Hitachi Dublin Laboratory, a part of the Research and Development Centre of Hitachi Europe Ltd, operates from No. 16 Westland Row, adjacent to the Innovation Centre. The laboratory employs researchers in computer science applied to bioinformatics. Its sister laboratory is at the University of Cambridge, England. The laboratory carries out research projects, which are sponsored by Hitachi's laboratories in Japan, and some of these are co-operative projects with Trinity College.

The following research unit has moved to College management control, assisted by funding from Enterprise Ireland.
