Purpose of this partnership

This Agreement reinforces the joint commitment of the University and TCDSU to developing and supporting effective student partnership, engagement, and representation.

The purpose of this Partnership Agreement is to present the work being done to improve the student experience in partnership between Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin (hereinafter referred to as Trinity College Dublin) and Trinity College Dublin Students’ Union, and to demonstrate how students can get involved in these activities.

It does not replace other binding strategic documents and further reinforces the obligation of student representation on relevant committees as stipulated by the Universities Act 1997; rather it is intended as a concise and user-friendly document to make students and staff aware of agreed areas for partnership enhancement and focus.

We believe that this Partnership Agreement is an important statement of our commitment to continued efforts in developing as a University community, within which both staff and students have roles and functions to perform, and where both staff and students have rights and responsibilities. This document is designed to promote and encourage the engagement and contributions of students during their time at the University.
Student engagement\(^1\) is a partnership between the University, the Students’ Union and all of our students. Through this, students can engage at all appropriate levels of decision-making in teaching, learning, assessments and the overall student experience, thereby promoting an environment which empowers the student voice.

What is partnership?

This Partnership Agreement recognises that all members of the University community, both staff and students, have legitimate, though sometimes different and possibly conflicting, perceptions and experiences. The University and the Students’ Union value the diversity of the student population and are committed to ensuring all students have a sense of belonging to the University community. By working together to common agreed purposes, steps can be taken that promote dynamic progress in a way that benefits all. The use of the term “partnership” reflects a mature relationship based on mutual respect and understanding between students and staff.

Trinity College Dublin and the Students’ Union are committed to upholding the following values to ensure that students are equal partners in the College environment.

- Democracy
- Students as stakeholders
- Inclusivity and Diversity
- Transparency
- Students as Co-Creators
- Collegiality and Parity of Esteem

The University is committed to involving students in decision-making processes as bound by the Universities Act, as well as QQI standards. All students are automatically members of Students’ Union and are members of the University. TCDSU exists to be an advocate for the Universities diverse student population by representing their rights, needs and opinions. The University and the Students’ Union will endeavour to work closely as partners to ensure that students are represented on all appropriate University committees and are supported and trained to fulfil their roles.

Opportunities to become involved in student representation include:

- Standing for election to become a Sabbatical Officer of the Union or a Part Time Officer. The Students’ Union executives are members of bodies including College Board, University Council, Quality Committee, Finance Committee, Global Engagement Committee, Green Campus Committee, Equality Committee, TAP Steering Committee and Coiste na Gaeilge, to articulate the views of the student body.

- Standing for election as a student member on other committees; including Undergraduate Studies Committee, Disciplinary Committee, Campus Residence Committee, course and programme management committees and various Research Committees.

The undergraduate and postgraduate School Convenors both have a key role in ensuring that there is an appropriate flow of information between the Students’ Union and the Schools.

- Standing for election as a Class Representative. Within each School, each class has the opportunity to elect students to represent their course year. They have regular meetings with staff and other representatives within the School to provide feedback and highlight any issues, having received training from the Students’ Unions to fulfil their roles.

- Standing for election to represent the various clubs, societies, and capitated bodies other than the Students’ Union.

Trinity College Dublin values student representation and input at all levels of the Universities’ governance structures. The Students’ Union takes responsibility for electing and appointing their representatives. These representatives have responsibility for raising the issues affecting their constituency with the relevant Trinity College authorities.

Trinity Students’ Union will endeavour to ensure:

- The elections of Class Rep(s) for representation to the Students’ Union and relevant School/Department.
- Treatment of students as partners, full members, and equal stakeholders in all appropriate decision-making processes in the University.
- The election of academic champions in the form of School Convenors who will represent solely the academic interests of the student body at School Executive and other School meetings.

SECTION B: PARTNERSHIP THEME AND ASSOCIATED PROJECTS FOR 2021-22

Annual Priorities
This Partnership Agreement acknowledges the ongoing collaborative work in strategic areas such as Healthy Trinity, Sustainability, and the Irish Language. This section outlines specific annual priorities agreed between the Students’ Union and Trinity College Dublin.

Trinity College Dublin and Trinity College Dublin Students’ Union (TCDSU) have agreed to work together on the principal themes described below during the Academic Year 2021-22. This work will be guided by feedback from student surveys, feedback from Student Councils, the Students’ Union, Faculty Assemblies, the manifestos as outlined in the sabbatical elections, and in guidance with the strategic plan of both the College and the Students’ Union. Monitoring and oversight of the Student Partnership Agreement will be undertaken by the Students’ Union and the Office of the Vice-Provost. These groups will meet biannually and request progress reports as standing agenda items.

The overarching theme identified for Academic Year 2021-22 for all students is: ‘Student life and partnership in Trinity Education and Renewal’.

Following the completion of Trinity Education Project (TEP), undergraduate students and staff must work hand-in-hand to target key problem areas surrounding assessment, workload, feedback, and the wider learning experience. Undergraduate student engagement in this context relates to the 7 key features of Trinity Education, shown below. Students and staff should actively engage in the continued development, implementation, and evaluation of these features.

Seven Features of a Trinity Education

4. An enriched Structured PhD framework, facilitating mobility, intersectoral engagement and interdisciplinary collaboration, delivering highly employable world class researchers prepared to meet the demands of a knowledge-based society.
5. Flexible supports and processes to enable Schools to achieve their objectives in postgraduate teaching and research and deliver on the College Strategic Plan 2020-2025 and beyond.
6. An adaptive digital infrastructure delivering next generation teaching and learning in all aspects of postgraduate education and responsive to the emerging opportunities of short courses, micro-credentials, as well as continuing professional development.

1. Participation in the governance of the Students’ Union and the University

By taking a proactive approach to representation and communication, we will widen understanding of how the institution (Trinity College) and the student representatives (the Union) work together. Representation on principal committees of the University, for example, College Board and University Council, which discuss the changes, developments, and future plans on an ongoing basis. This is central to ensuring that students remain a part of the decision-making process. The Students’ Union this year will effectively communicate the discussions regarding Trinity Education and the decisions made by committees such as Continuity of Learning and Student Activities Working Group (COLSAG) and Trinity Living with COVID (TLC) to address the impact of the pandemic on student learning and the College experience. We will also explore opportunities for student input in University-wide projects and encourage and support student-led initiatives. We will strive to improve committees within schools, such as Executive meetings and Student-Staff Liaison Committees.

There is a strong focus on the integration of the student voice into teaching and learning practices in the Academic Year 2021-22, including, but not limited to, assessment, feedback, and workload.

The Strategic Plan of Trinity College Dublin outlines the need to “embed the innovations of the Trinity Education Project (including Electives, Pathways, Capstones, and the supporting structures of a fixed timetable), mainstreaming a process of continuous pedagogical renewal.” 8 With this in mind, it is evident that our students have a wider scope within their area of study than before. It is important, therefore, that students remain involved in the shaping of programme and module organisation, delivery and assessment strategies.

APPENDIX 1: PARTNERSHIP EXAMPLES IN THE UNIVERSITY

Partnership Example 1: Trinity Ability Co-op and The Forum for Disabled Staff and Postgraduate Students

The Disability Service in Trinity has always been committed to student partnerships and listening to the voices of our customers, students with disabilities. Over the years this has taken many forms, most recently the Student Ambassador programme has developed into the Trinity Ability Co-op. From May to September 2020 the Disability Service (DS) employed a full-time student intern to assist with DS operational activities and to provide a student perspective on service development projects. Among the tasks undertaken by the DS Intern was the development of the Trinity Ability co-op, which was founded in May 2020. The Trinity Ability co-op was established as a student-led initiative in collaboration with the DS to embody the values of the Trinity Student Partnership Agreement and to provide a platform for students, staff, and other stakeholders in the university community to work together to improve and promote disability inclusion and belonging in Trinity. The Trinity Ability Co-op's mission is to help make Trinity College Dublin a more accessible and inclusive university for students with disabilities. The Co-op achieves this by working on disability awareness and acceptance projects such as the “Defining Disability” film and the “Towards Inclusive Clubs and Societies” Project. The Co-op currently has 55 members, and this number continues to grow as there is an increasing interest in disabled students getting involved in activities that will develop their transferable skills whilst getting to know other students with disabilities.

The Trinity Ability Co-op aligns with the Disability Service’s Strategic Plan 2020-2025 as 'Our drive towards inclusion is the most critical development within this strategic plan, while real and meaningful student partnerships will be central to its success'. The Co-op similarly aligns with the Student Partnership policy, particularly Chapter 5 - Student Services - 'Trinity Students and Trinity College Dublin student services will endeavour to work as partners in the enhancement of the accessibility in Trinity College Dublin for students with disabilities'. The Co-op provides the Disability Service with valuable feedback regularly around service delivery and have worked collaboratively on events such as Students with Disabilities pre-orientation day. We believe that is a truly dynamic and equal partnership as it has benefitted both the service and the students with disabilities. Increasingly all disability service areas and projects have disabled student and graduate partners to ensure active stakeholder engagement throughout our developments.

Forum for Trinity staff, PhD, and Post-docs with disabilities

The Forum for Disabled Staff and Postgraduate Students in Trinity College Dublin provides a voice for disability equality within the University. It offers disabled people an opportunity to meet new people, share experiences and acts to inform and enhance institutional policy. The Forum has been established and is run by disabled staff and PhD researchers, supported by the EDI Unit. The Forum takes a very relaxed and open approach and you do not have to disclose your disability. The Forum has a large membership from across the University.

Activities

Established in March 2020, the Forum has already had a significant impact, resulting in the appointment of a Disability Officer from the Forum membership to the Graduate Students’ Union.
It has presented to the Equality Committee on a range of issues affecting disabled people in the College leading to agreement to form a Sub-Group of the Equality Committee the Staff Disability Working Group. The Forum holds a range of events throughout the year decided by its membership. Events so far have included themes such as:

- Barriers and enablers to engagement in the TCD (Trinity College Dublin) community
- Supports available for disabled PhD students
- Ableism and academia

The organisation of these events has been supported by a range of different departments and individuals from across the institution with an interest, lived experience or expertise in disability equality.

On Friday 3rd December 2021, the Forum launched a new report – “Ableism in Academia in Ireland” – to mark International Day for Persons with Disabilities. The report paints a picture of under-representation of disabled people in academic employment in Ireland and underlines that those employed face several significant hurdles linked to ableism. The report will act as a catalyst for further discussion and action within academia and inform developments at national level involving the Department of Further and Higher Education, Research, Innovation and Science. The report was launched at an online event where a panel of experts discussed the report and the theme for 2021 International Day for Persons with Disabilities – Leadership and participation of persons with disabilities toward an inclusive, accessible, and sustainable post-Covid-19 world.

We look forward in seeing future student partnerships formed in Trinity and hope the Trinity Ability Co-op and the Forth Level Forum are notable examples of what a successful student partnership looks like.

Partnership Example 2: Student 2 Student Mentor Programme (S2S)

S2S does not treat the volunteers as stakeholders in the service – our staff are the stakeholders, and our student volunteers are the leaders of the organisation. Whilst we provide training and guidance specific to each voluntary role being undertaken, we base the ongoing work, promotion and direction of the service on input and feedback from the student body, and especially from the S2S volunteers themselves. It is a strong ethos of the service that they know more about the student body than we do, so their expertise is what we work by.

Mentors and Peer Supporters are trained and supported to deliver information and support to their fellow students and are personally responsible to follow-up on the commitments they make to group and one-to-one work. The service relies heavily on their own motivation and direction and it has developed a model of Head Mentor and Committee training to allow fellow volunteers to develop their leadership roles and to act as a first point of call for queries, support and encourage.

There is a much stronger engagement from the S2S volunteers as a result of the ownership they have over the programme; there is a space for learning about responsibility, delegation and leadership from a hands-on perspective, and there is a space for their voices to be heard and their opinions acted on. They take on the development and promotion of their own service and become hugely confident, creative and committed as a result. It also means that they benefit more from the programme themselves, and we’re committed to ensuring that student volunteers gain as much as they give within the S2S service.

Volunteers give consistent feedback that they learn more about themselves in training and supervision than they had anticipated, that they gain personally from the work they undertake, and that they feel their experience as a volunteer has helped them to build personal and emotional intelligence as well as key graduate attributes/transferable skills.

Partnership Example 3: TCD Headspace Student Advisory Group (Student Counselling Service)

TCD Headspace, TCD Student counselling service early intervention initiative, is a new collaborative programme created and supported by students and the Student Counselling Service.

TCD Headspace and the Student Advisory Group aim to:
> Share positive mental health resources for staff & students across the campus.
> Empower online communities where students can engage in discussion, have access to resources and share their learning
> Provide education, openness and awareness about mental health that may act as a gateway for further engagement with student services.

The TCD Headspace Student Advisory Group is a group of 20-25 students who work in partnership with staff in advising and guide TCD Headspace. The Student Advisory Group’s input is felt in all areas of its work – in getting TCD students talking about mental health, reshaping student attitudes and creating new fun ways of towards interactive campaigns.
Partnership Example 4: Trinity Access 21 (TAP)

Trinity Access 21 (TA21) is a TAP outreach programme which supports the educational aspirations of secondary school students through the provision of three core activities. These activities include Pathways to College, Leadership through Service and Mentoring. The mentoring programme is a good example of best practice. The programme harnesses the cultural and social experiences of the TAP-TCD undergraduate population and provides a supportive environment for these undergrads to engage with younger students in secondary schools within their own communities, and form trusting networks through which younger students can learn about the benefits of Higher Education. Over the course of 2014 – 2017 over 300 TAP-TCD past, and present, students have gone out into their communities and become mentors to young people. They have developed lengthy relationships with these students which emphasise College and career development. They meet a minimum of 6 times per year with their mentees, each time working through structured activities aimed at building student aspiration, hope, resilience and knowledge. In 2016 the Trinity Access 21 initiative saw a sharp rise in young people from TAP-linked schools aspiring progress onto a degree course in TCD; this growth in aspiration was due primarily to the significant engagement these young people have had with the TA21 mentoring programme.

Partnership Example 5: School of Chemistry Student-Staff Liaison Committee

The School of Chemistry has currently adapted a student-staff liaison forum specifically to address issues that students may be having with their teaching and learning. The forum meets with freshman reps and Sophister reps separately. The class representatives are the student representatives on the forum. The School Convenor is the chair of the forum, and the administration of the forum is carried out by the School. By having a student as the chair of the forum, there is increased engagement and dialogue between all members of the Committee. Members of staff are invited to attend, with the Director of Undergraduate Teaching and Learning (DUTL) being the primary representative. The forum acts as a Quality mechanism, as well as an example of collaboration and partnership. Issues that the students and staff are having are raised at this form, and a problem-solving exercise with equal roles and responsibility ensues. The items due for resolution are left at standing items for the next meeting for discussion. The students have found this to be an extremely important mechanism in the School’s governance structure in facilitating the concept of students as partners in the teaching and learning, as well as all the processes which support it.
Partnership Example 6: Laidlaw Undergraduate Research and Leadership Programme

The Laidlaw Undergraduate Research and Leadership Programme is an innovative scholarship designed to help self-motivated and ambitious undergraduate students from all disciplines and walks of life to develop strong research and leadership skills that will allow them to excel in both their degree programmes and their future careers.

The Laidlaw Programme was first introduced in Trinity in 2018 and is led by the Careers Service. Prior to its launch, several consultation sessions were held with student representatives from several Schools to get their input to shape the programme design and to advise on how best to reach out and engage students with the opportunities this new programme has to offer.

Student input informed the application process and the timing and structure of the Programme. It let the Careers Service know what type of support students would need right from the start of the application process through to the monitoring of progress and learning for the successful Scholars. It also resulted in clear communications to students on how the Laidlaw Programme would help them gain valuable skills in research, communication and leadership and improve their employability through participating in workshops designed to develop self-awareness, initiative, motivation and creativity.

The impact of this collaboration was a successful launch and proactive student engagement with the application process resulting in 18 Laidlaw Scholars being selected from across Trinity for the first year of the programme. These Scholars are now actively engaged with the Careers Service in providing feedback on their experience of the programme to date. In addition to contributing extensively to marketing, they have organised student-led information sessions, lecture presentations, and peer-to-peer recruitment activities. This will be used to inform our plans for the second group of Scholars in 2019. This active student partnership approach will continue to enhance the Laidlaw Programme at Trinity into the future.

Partnership Example 7: Consent Workshops

Trinity Sexual Consent Workshops have been running since 2016. The Consent Workshops utilise a unique model which is based on strong collaboration between staff and students. The Students Union, Student Counselling Services and the Senior Tutor’s Office work together on Consent. Each workshop is delivered by one staff member and one student. We have found this to be one of the leading factors in our success thus far. In a recent focus group carried out with students, it was found that being friendly, personable, and relatable were the most important factors in creating lasting and meaningful student engagement.
Partnership Example 8: Student Spaces

The ‘Zón Mac Léinn’ initiative strives to provide a campus-wide network of student spaces where students can come together in a social setting and relax. This project follows a decision made by the Student Life Committee in 2015 and is a collaborative effort between the Student’s Unions and the Student Life Committee. Work is primarily carried out on these projects by the President of TCDSU and Declan Treanor, with assistance from the Dean of Students and Student Services. The project aims to identify areas across campus that can be utilised as student space and then converted into such. Recent examples of this are the foyer of D’Olier Street, the new space in TBSI amongst others. These areas have helped alleviate the problem of students having nowhere to eat their food or sit and chat with their friends. These spaces can also provide areas for students to study, as demonstrated by some of the furniture in place in the new space in TBSI, which is a direct result of these rooms being designed and organized by students for students. At present we have eight Zón Mac Léinn: room 4017 in the Arts Building, the Buttery Vaults, Hamilton Panoz Mezzanine, The Parlour and the Student Room in Goldsmith Hall, TBSI, Old Stone Building in the Trinity Medical Centre, St. James’ and the School of Nursing and Midwifery on D’Olier Street. This is a project which is constantly expanding and evolving thanks to the efforts of all involved.

Partnership Example 9: Trinity Inclusive Curriculum Project Student Partner Programme

The Trinity Inclusive Curriculum believes that an Inclusive Curriculum in Trinity can only be achieved with the involvement of students from communities who often face the most barriers to their learning. The Trinity Inclusive Curriculum Project commenced in October 2020 and sits within the Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Office in Trinity College Dublin. Their mandate is to support the integration of the principles of diversity, equality and inclusion across the curriculum at Trinity. Trinity-Inc defines an inclusive curriculum as one in which all students, regardless of personal circumstances, or learning backgrounds, abilities or strategies, have equitable opportunity to engage fully in their studies and achieve their learning goals.

The Trinity-INF Student Partner Programme is a student-as-partner initiative involving Trinity students from all walks of life and communities which are commonly underrepresented and/or disadvantaged in Higher Education, from across the nine grounds of equality (gender, Travelling Community, disability etc.) and others, including socio economic circumstances, caregiving responsibilities, and experience of homelessness. The aim of the Trinity-INF Student Partner Programme is to raise awareness of experiences of inclusion and exclusion within curricula at Trinity, and inform the direction of Trinity-INF project including training for teaching and learning staff. Our student work has progressed in phases. Firstly, they carried out several consultative meetings with Trinity students and student groups as well as reviewed other universities’ approaches in this space. Secondly, Trinity-Inc initiated a summer workshop programme over the course of the summer of 2021 to learn more from students’ experiences and perspectives, and ‘test out’ our Student Partnership approach. They have now moved into the third phase: the Student Partner Committee.
Committee members attend monthly meetings with the Trinity-INC team, are invited to attend workshops and take part in other consultative and training activities with other academic staff. Key to their student partner model is co-creation, recognition of labour and flexibility: collaboration with students has shaped every step of the Student Partner Programme; students are paid the living wage for their involvement; and we recognise that many students have busy complex lives, therefore involvement is flexible and on an opt in/ opt out basis.
