Module Name	Archaeological Practice
ECTS Weighting	5 ECTS
Semester taught	Semester 1
Module Coordinator	Dr Hazel Dodge
Module Learning Outcomes with embedded Graduate Attributes	On successful completion of this module, students should be able to: LO1. Understand and apply a range of practical archaeological techniques LO2. Identify and analyse the distinctive features of landscapes, sites and monuments explored in the module LO3. Record and reflect on archaeological and analytical skills through a diary format LO4. Plan and execute and independent research paper on a topic arising from the completed experience
Module Content	This module provides the opportunity to develop practical skills and experience outside the classroom. Students taking this module participate in an archaeological project, museum or cultural heritage work, or an approved study tour whereby they engage with landscapes, sites and museums in the Mediterranean. The practical element is usually undertaken over the summer period prior to the academic year to which the credits contribute. In 2020-21 the module will be largely virtual, with research conducted through online digs and blogs.
Teaching and Learning Methods	Practical module, with five contact hours for organisation and guidance.
