Introduction

Lifelong learning is a continual process for every one of us, whether it is for personal interest or professional development. Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin offers a wide range of evening and short courses in many different fields which result in the gaining of new ideas, new knowledge, and in some instances, new qualifications.

Today, the continuing nature of education is more important than ever. Old skills become obsolete, new skills come to be in high demand. The people who can participate most effectively in our fast-moving modern society are those who are most open to new ideas, most adaptable and willing to continually re-educate themselves and broaden their perspectives.

In addition to degree and diploma courses, there is a wide range of short courses to choose from at Trinity, from history of art to social work, philosophy to psychology, Greek and Roman mythology and religion to physics and a wide variety of languages among others. We hope that you will find a course that appeals to you in this booklet.

Réamhrá

Próiseas leanúnach dúinn uile is ea an fhoghlaim ar feadh an tsaol, bímis ina bun as suim phearsanta nó ar mhaithe le forbairt phroifisiúnta. Cuireann Coláiste na Tríonóide réimse leathan cúrsaí tráthnóna agus cúrsaí gearra ar fáil in ábhair éagsúla – cúrsaí a thabharfaidh smaointe úra agus eolas úr duit agus, i gcás cuid acu, cáilíocht úr freisin.

Sa lá atá inniu ann, tá an t-oideachas leanúnach níos tábhachtaí ná riamh. Tá seanscileanna ag dul as feidhm agus tá éileamh ar scileanna úra. Na daoine a ghlacfaidh an pháirt is éifeachtaí i saol tapa an lae inniu ná na daoine atá sásta glacadh le smaointe nua, atá sásta iad féin a chur in oiriúint do shaol úr, filleadh ar an oideachas go tráthúil agus a ndearcadh ar an saol a leathnú.

Chomh maith le cúrsaí céime agus dioplóma, tá réimse leathan cúrsaí gearra ar fáil i gColáiste na Tríonóide – ó stair na healaíne go hobair shóisialta, ó fhealsúnacht go síceolaíocht, ó mhiotaseolaíocht agus creidimh na Gréige agus na Róimhe go heolaíocht an néarchórais agus rogha leathan teangacha (i measc ábhar eile).

Tá súil againn go dtiocfaidh tú ar chúrsa a thaitneoidh leat sa leabhrán seo. Tá tuilleadh eolais ar fáil ag www.tcd.ie/courses/esc

Autism Diagnostic Observation Schedule (ADOS-2) for the Clinical Setting

ADOS-2 is a semi-structured, standardised assessment of communication, social interaction, play/imaginative use of materials and restricted and repetitive behaviours for individuals who have been referred because of possible autism spectrum disorder (ASD).

Fundamentally new to the ADOS-2 than ADOS-G are the procedures involved in the algorithm computation and the comparison score for module 1 through 3 which were revised on the basis of the findings of recent validation research. The new comparison score provides a way of indicating a participant's level of autism spectrum related symptomatology and it can also be used to interpret an individual's own change in autism spectrum related symptoms over time. ADOS-2 also includes a toddler module, which is designed for very young children who do not use phrase speech but who are between the ages of twelve and thirty months. The toddler module has its own algorithms that provide 'ranges of concern' instead of cut-off scores. A variety of specialists will use the ADOS-2, their use of results in writing reports and making recommendations to inform medical diagnoses, special education classification and occupational therapists and speech and hearing professionals might use for treatment planning.

An Introduction to Woodcarving

Well known Sculptor Conleth Gent (www.conlethgent.ie) will be running a woodcarving course two and a half hours per day one day a week over a five week period based in the Trinity Botanic Gardens at Dartry, Dublin 6 (nearest Luas Station, Milltown).

Conleth Gent has exhibited widely throughout Ireland and has been a multi-award winner at Sculpture in Context in the National Botanic Gardens, Glasnevin. His work has been presented to President Mary Robinson and other dignitaries. He has worked on large scale sculptures for Dun Laoghaire and Galway County Councils.

The course is primarily aimed as an introduction to woodcarving with all tools and materials provided.

The main focus is on creativity and individuality and nurturing it through the medium of woodcarving. All abilities will be catered for, as each participant will receive individual tuition. Participants will be introduced to the tools and how to sharpen, maintain and use them and the materials and characteristics of the different woods. Most will have their own sculpture to take home by the end of the course.

How to Apply

Please email Conleth - conlethgent@eircom.net - to confirm your participation. Places are very few in number and strictly limited.

Fee

The course will cost €160 for five classes. Tea and coffee will be provided and all materials will be supplied. Full payment in advance by 1st July is essential and required to secure your place. Please note all monies are non-refundable except in the event of course cancellation.

Date, Time and Place

Every Monday 11am-1pm for five weeks commencing on 30th July 2018 in the Trinity Botanic Gardens opposite Palmerston Park, Dartry, Dublin 6 (nearest Luas Station, Milltown).

ClassicsAncient Greek Language and Culture - Beginners

This course will run subject to sufficient numbers enrolling – there will be a limited number of places available. This course offers a comprehensive appraisal of the language of ancient Greece. It also explores some central features of Ancient Greek literature. In this course we aim to examine the cultural context surrounding classical Greek and its successors. In the first term, those who have knowledge of Greek grammar will be able to review it at a leisurely pace while people with little or no knowledge will have an opportunity to learn the basics of the Greek grammar. Aspects such as the origins of the language and the dialects will also be considered in the first term. The second term will be devoted to a careful study of the Ancient Greek literary language through samplings of Greek authors, in both poetry and prose, ranging from the archaic to Hellenistic times. We will also consider the relevance of the past in the present and there will be time to explore some favourite topics more in-depth through inclusive but leisurely class discussion.

From Rome to Byzantium: the transition from classical to early Byzantine world in the history, culture, literature and art of the 3rd to the 6th centuries AD

This course will run subject to sufficient numbers enrolling – there will be a limited number of places available. Did the Roman Empire really collapse? Was the transition from Classical civilization to late antiquity the end of an era? Was this decline caused by migrations and the advent of Christianity? In this course we will address these questions and more to explore the period between the third to the seventh century AD, which marked one of history's great turning points and the transition from the ancient to the modern world, from pagan polytheism to Christianity, from Roman Empire to Medieval States. This dynamic world was populated by diverse people (the "barbarians") who deeply influenced the culture, literature and art of the time. In our studies, we will travel to Constantinople and Ravenna to appreciate the artistic continuity with classical tradition and the new inspirations coming from the East, and we will meet fascinating personalities such as Empress Theodora, Justinian, and Julian 'the Apostate', as well as reading exciting sources such as Procopius, Ammianus Marcellinus, and Nonnus, to understand how much of the empire's legacy lived on through the institutions of the church.

Classics

Greek and Roman Mythology and Religion

What is myth? How do myths deal with fundamental human concerns about who we are and the world we live in? What is the relationship between myth and religion? Why did the Greeks and Romans worship many gods, believe in oracles, or perform animal sacrifice? This lecture-only module is an introduction to the major myths and religions of the classical world using the full range of primary source material: literary, artistic and archaeological. It explores the functions of myth within society and the various theories of myth. The first half of the course will focus on themes such as the creation of myths in the wider context of Near Eastern mythology, the character of the Olympian gods, heroes and their monstrous opponents, divine-human relations, and the major mythic cycles of the Trojan war, and the Atreus and Theban sagas. The second half of the course will explore the nature of Greek and Roman religion in its social context. It considers key elements of ritual action: sacrifice, rites of passage, festivals, as well as the diverse ancient beliefs on death and the afterlife and the role of mystery religions. This lecture-only course will be illustrated.

Classics

Latin Language and Culture - Beginners

This course will run subject to sufficient numbers enrolling – there will be a limited number of places available. This course offers a comprehensive appraisal of the language of ancient Rome. It also explores some central features of Latin literature. In this course we aim to examine the cultural context surrounding classical Latin and its successors. In the first term, those who have knowledge of Latin grammar will be able to review it at a leisurely pace, while people with little or no knowledge will have an opportunity to learn the basics of the Latin grammar. Aspects such as the origins and development of the Latin language, its power of communication, comparisons between formal and informal Latin in antiquity and beyond will also be considered. The second term will be devoted to a careful study of the Latin literary language through samplings of Latin authors, in both poetry and prose, ranging from antiquity to early modern times.

English

Fear in Literature

In this series of lectures members of the School of English will survey the literature of fear from the Anglo-Saxons up to the present, exploring how literary works have set out both to frighten their audiences and to reflect on the very nature of fear itself.

Beowulf's Grendel, Hamlet's ghost, Frankenstein's monster, and many other figures inspire fear in the fictional worlds they haunt. Plays, poems, and novels can themselves have the capacity to scare their audiences and readers. Literary works have been especially attuned to the anxieties prevalent in particular junctures in history, although the capacity of literature of the past to continue to unsettle readers long after the time it was written down is well known.

Centre for Gender and Women's StudiesGender: History, Culture and Representation

'The story is no longer about the things that have happened to women and men and how they have reacted to them; instead it is about how the subjective and collective meanings of women and men as categories of identity have been constructed.' (Joan Scott, Gender and the Politics of History, New York). This lecture-only module will examine the histories and representations of gender, seeking to understand how gender is constructed by societies, institutions and individuals, through the critical analysis of texts, works of art and public actions. Gender, its role, its construction and its historiography will be brought together by scholars across the school in an interdisciplinary module. The operation of gender 'as a tool of analysis' will be examined in histories of the body, sexuality, medicine, religion, politics, institutions and representations in a variety of texts and contexts which will show the inherent instability and elusive nature of many gendered identities.

Histories and Humanities

History on the Big Screen: Separating Fact and Fiction

This weekly series of lectures explores how key events and characters in history have been represented — and often misrepresented — on the ‘big screen’. Each week the course will examine a different historical film, with subjects ranging from classical times to the twentieth century. Lecturers will discuss how and why cinematic dramatizations of the past depart from ‘real history’. The course will also consider the success of some filmmakers in capturing history on screen and assess the broader influence of genuinely popular representations of the past.

Introduction to Irish Family History

This course will run subject to sufficient numbers applying.

Family History isn't just about the past: learning about our origins allows people to get down to the granular details of our ancestors' lives. It enables people to construct their own family narrative and their personal identity.

This lecture-only module is taught through a series of eight lectures per term over two terms by Fiona Fitzsimons & Brian Donovan of the Irish Family History Centre (Eneclann). The course covers a broad sweep of Irish history (1650s to 1950s), and is deeply rooted in the sources. The focus is on the records generated by churches, central and local government, enterprises, families and individuals; exploring what section of the Irish population is documented in these records, and how to interpret the evidence. Where record collections were destroyed, do any collateral records survive that contain relevant information?

The fee includes free access to the largest Irish collection online, www.Findmypast.ie as well as free access to EPIC and the Irish Family History Centre in CHQ. It will also provide support for all participants to construct a simple family history portfolio over sixteen weeks, including creating a family profile; research to collect documentary evidence; building a family tree; and writing a simple report. Please note: This is a lecture-only course and does not include access to computers on campus. Participants must have access to their own computers at home for follow up clinics and research.

How to Apply

Closing date for online and postal applications is Friday 24th August 2018 for Michaelmas (September) term and Friday 11th January 2019 for Hilary (January) term.

History

20th Century Ireland

Drawing on aspects of political, social, economic and cultural history, this module will consider the nature of Ireland's twentieth century and the forces that shaped it. While this module will analyse the political changes that shaped the century from Home Rule and Unionism to revolution and independence, from dominion to republic, from self-rule to direct rule, from 'ourselves alone' to the EEC, it will also question the emphasis historians of the century have placed on the centrality of the political narrative. Throughout, the module will consider how methodologies from social, economic and cultural history raise significant challenges for the traditional study of Ireland's twentieth century north and south.

By examining a wide range of sources and by considering a diverse range of experiences of Ireland's twentieth century, this module will introduce students to the ways in which the historiography of twentieth century Ireland is changing and how it might continue to change. Placing the Irish twentieth century in a variety of broader contexts the module will also question certainties about Irish insularity and challenge assumptions that have taken Irish exceptionalism for granted.

History

Cataclysm and Renewal: History of Continental Europe 1918 to Present

This one-term module encompasses some of the most dramatic events and developments in European and world history: The First World War, the rise of fascism and communism, the Second World War, the Holocaust. It explores the reconstruction and recovery of Europe after 1945 - both as a divided continent during the Cold War and in light of moves towards and challenges to European solidarity and unity. Furthermore, it considers shifting conceptions and geopolitical configurations of a continent in flux, as well as the global dimensions of European history throughout the century.

While some sessions will focus on particular European nations, others will focus on key events or themes in comparative and transnational perspectives. The module thus provides an overall view of the history of modern Europe since the early 20th century and of the foundations of contemporary Europe.

History

Early Christian Ireland 400-1000

This module deals with what has traditionally been known as Ireland's "Golden Age". Having begun with a brief introduction to prehistoric Ireland, it covers in more detail the period from the arrival of Christianity in the fifth century to the eve of the first Viking attacks at the end of the eighth. The focus is wide-ranging, from early Irish politics and the emergence of a high-kingship to St Patrick and the impact of Christianization, from Brehon law and the bonds of society to the study of landscape and settlement and early Irish farming, and from Hiberno-Latin and Gaelic literature to the visual art that culminated in the creation of the greatest masterpiece of the Golden Age, the Book of Kells.

History

Imperialism to Globalism: Europe and the World 1860-1970

Global integration is not only a fact of modern life, but of modern history writing. The interconnectedness of distant societies and states, and powerful forces making for social, cultural and economic interaction have prompted significant scholarly assessment.

This lecture-only module investigates some of the events and processes which have led to a more integrated world order between the mid-nineteenth century and the later twentieth century. For most of that period much of the world was carved up between a number of inter-continental empires centred in Europe. How those empires grew, exerted control and in due course retreated will be the particular focus of the module. But other processes, too, will be considered, not least the integrating force of economic changes and the spreading power of capitalism across the globe. Attention will be given to the evolution of ideologies of imperialism and social Darwinism and to whether or not such ideologies impacted upon changing global power relationships. The module, while broadly chronological in approach, will focus on a wide range of themes in cultural, economic and political history.

History

Kingship and Warfare: Ireland, c.1000-1318

This module begins with the rise of Brian Boru from modest origins to become Ireland's most famous high king—a spectacular career that ended in the iconic battle of Clontarf in 1014. We explore how Irish society and kingship changed in the aftermath of Clontarf as a result of inter-provincial warfare and the changing role of the church. The second half of the module examines the causes and implications of the English (or Anglo-Norman) invasion of the late 1160s, perhaps the single most formative development in Irish secular affairs. We study the interaction of cultures in its aftermath and the Irish opposition to English rule that saw the emergence of England's ongoing Irish problem through later centuries. The module closes with the most serious challenge to English power in medieval Ireland: the Scottish invasion (1315-18) led by Edward Bruce, brother of Robert Bruce king of Scots.

History

The Hundred Years War c.1337-1453

The Hundred Years War was in reality a series of wars, on both land and sea, arising primarily from the political and dynastic conflicts of the kings of England and France. It was fought mainly in France but also engulfed Brittany, Scotland, the Iberian kingdoms, the Netherlands and other countries. The first part of the wars is retailed in considerable detail by the contemporary chronicler, Jean Froissart, whose powerful portrait of warfare and political rivalry is set against a backdrop of chivalric endeavour and glory. The module takes its lead from Froissart's vivid chronicles. The first four tutorials are focussed exclusively on various aspects of his chronicles and students will be expected to write an essay on Froissart's work. The remaining tutorials are devoted to a study of texts on Joan of Arc. Lectures concentrate on key themes associated with Froissart's world, such as kingship, chivalry and warfare, diplomacy and popular revolt.

History of ArtArts of Japan

This lecture-only module will examine cultural highpoints in the arts of Japan from the fourteenth to the nineteenth centuries. Artefacts in all media – painting, ceramics, lacquer and textiles – will be examined in the context of the influence of China on Japan, the creation of the Shogun Court, the rise of the merchant classes and the establishment of the pleasure districts in burgeoning Tokyo. Particular attention will be paid to lacquer ware created for the domestic and European market, the arts associated with the tea ceremony and traditional Japanese theatre. Themes of Japonisme will be explored, particularly in nineteenth century Ireland as Japan emerged after 250 years of self-imposed isolation from the outside world.

City Court Campagna: The Foundation of Early Modern Architecture in Europe

The dominant patterns and typologies of western European architecture in the early modern period originate in Italy in the fifteenth century. In the cities and courts of central and northern Italy a virtual laboratory of architectural form generated new typologies of domestic, civic and ecclesiastical architecture. In particular the development of domestic or residential design as a subject of focused architectural endeavour reflects the increasing secularisation of European society. This course aims to introduce students to the formal characteristics of architecture in the period 1400-1700, to examine the relationship of function, form and patronage in architectural design and to consider in particular the development of the villa and palace form.

History of ArtInsular Art

Perched in the northwest corner of Europe, the islands of Ireland and Britain in the early medieval period were considered to be on the edge of the western world. Far from being remote outposts however, they were the location of a rich cultural interface created by missionary activities, trade and the presence of significant centres of learning. This module aims to introduce students to the rich variety of art-forms produced in Ireland and parts of Britain and during the period spanning c. 600 to 1000 AD. The distinctive characteristics of manuscript illumination, fine metalworking and stone carving reflected in masterpieces such as the Book of Kells, Ardagh chalice and high crosses will be considered in the context of their wider, complex, artistic ancestry. Issues such as the technical difficulties overcome by artists and the iconographical conventions adopted by them will be explored. The unique legacy of the style, which has been the subject of several revivals, will also be examined as an example of how nationalist politics and historiography can impact on modern perceptions of particular periods of art history.

History of Art

Painting and Sculpture in 17th Century Europe

This lecture-only course examines painting and sculpture at European courts in the seventeenth century, paying particular attention to works produced in papal Rome and the courts of Brussels, London, Madrid and Paris. The relationship of artists and their patrons is examined. The development and function of religious art in a Counter-Reformation context is studied in depth in the work of such artists as Caravaggio, Bernini and Rubens. Also included is a detailed account of evolving stylistic debates around the values of classicism during the period. The use of portraiture and mythology in the projection of courtly and royal ideals will be analyzed through the works of Velasquez, among others. Close attention will be paid to the rise of secular art in the seventeenth century in the form of genre, still life, and landscape painting.

This module will examine some of the wealth of artistic production in the Netherlands in the seventeenth century. The module will be based around the study of Rembrandt and Vermeer as contrasting and complementary figures who represent some of the diverse tendencies of the time. This will entail the study of the development of individual styles and subject matter ranging from history painting to portraiture, landscape and genre painting. The distinct artistic character associated with centres of production, even ones that were geographically close, will be assessed with an emphasis on Amsterdam, Delft and Utrecht. The final block of the module will look at the posthumous reputations of Rembrandt and Vermeer, examining questions of attribution, authenticity, canonicity and rediscovery.

History of Art

To the Glory of God: the Art and Architecture of the Medieval Church c.1100-1220

Medieval cathedrals and churches are numbered amongst the great monuments of European culture. However modern visitors have a very different experience to that of their medieval predecessors, as they encounter these buildings stripped of their treasures and often in a fragmentary state. This course will consider medieval churches as gesamtkunstwerks (or total works of art). It will address the surviving architecture, sculpture, wall-painting, stained-glass, metalwork and manuscripts associated with medieval churches to try to reconstruct the original appearance of these buildings. In doing so the course will explore questions of making, function and meaning. It will also consider the roles of patrons, artists and critics in determining what was appropriate for the house of God. Taking the period c.1100-1220 and the region of modern France as its focus the course will address the major stylistic change that occurred with the development of the Gothic style, and question what this meant for religious art and architecture.

Irish

Irish Palaeography

This lecture-only course in Irish palaeography will present a history and taste of Irish palaeography from the oldest sources up to the present day. The series will begin with the oldest writing system used in Ireland, Ogam, and will then proceed to the manuscripts. Selections of important Irish-language manuscripts from the Library of Trinity College Dublin, the Royal Irish Academy and the National Library will be examined, including the famous Book of Leinster and the Book of the Dun Cow but also law manuscripts, annals, genealogies, sagas, poetry collections and so on. The study will take us down to the controversies of the late-nineteenth century regarding the choice between cló Gaelach and cló Rómhánach, the 'h' and the 'ponc'. Selections will be read and explained each week in class. No preparation will be required though preparation would enhance the experience. The emphasis will be on transcription and understanding the writing system but translations of texts read will also be provided.

The course will extend over a twelve-week term commencing on Monday 10th September, at 6pm, with a one-week break in the term (22nd - 26th October). Course co-ordinator: Damian McManus

Sciences

Physics

The following course is particularly aimed at graduates in earth or life sciences that did not take physics as part of their degree and who wish to teach physics up to Junior Certificate level. Successful completion of this course will serve as part-fulfilment, along with a post-graduate qualification in education and the appropriate primary degree, of the Teaching Council's conditions for registration as a post-primary teacher in Ireland. Students registered on a full-time course in Trinity will need the written permission of their Course Director or Head of School to be allowed take this course concurrently with their degree. Other interested people are also welcome to take this course and their attention is drawn to the entry requirements.

Physics

Foundation Physics for Earth and Life Sciences

This course is aimed at students who may have no prior background in physics but who would like to learn about how physics affects the world around them, in particular the impact physics has on the earth and life sciences. This course may be of particular interest to those considering a career in post-primary teaching. It carries 10 credits (ECTS).

It is a foundation course of 44 hours of lectures or tutorials and 33 hours of experimental laboratory work and includes the following topics: physics of motion (mechanics), biomechanics, physics of hearing and seeing (waves), electricity and magnetism and bioelectricity, radioactivity, nuclear physics and related medical applications, heat, pressure and fluids and some of their biological, geological and medical applications.

Learning Outcomes

- Demonstrate the application of classical physics within the biomedical and earth sciences
- Connect the study of wave phenomena and electromagnetism with ultrasound diagnostics and vision
- Relate basic knowledge of atomic and nuclear physics to radiation diagnostics and therapy, and to geological applications

- Prepare a brief report, including error analysis, on a simple physical experiment
- Through homework: (i) to identify the appropriate concepts, principles, and relations that apply to the problem; (ii) to provide a reasonable and appropriate explanation of why they apply; and (iii) to solve physics problems at a foundation level

Admission Criteria

Applications will be considered from students or graduates of degrees in earth or life sciences or from others who can demonstrate the necessary ability in mathematics e.g. have completed first-year mathematics in an undergraduate degree in a technical subject.

How to Apply

Interested applicants should contact the Administrative Manager, School of Physics, Dr. Colm Stephens, E: colm.stephens@tcd.ie
T: +353 (1) 896 2024.

Fee

€1,000 (waged)
€500 (unwaged)

Date

This is a daytime course and the next intake of students will be in Michaelmas Term (Semester 1) 2018/19. The course will begin in the week beginning Monday 10th September 2018 and be completed by Friday 30th November 2018. Lectures/tutorials are likely to take place on Mondays at 14.00, Tuesdays at 14.00 and 15.00 and Wednesdays at 14.00. The 3-hour practical class will be either Friday morning or afternoon (two groups). The end-of-course examination will be in the period of Monday 3rd December to Friday 14th December 2018.

Note that the course is likely to run again in Hilary Term (Semester 2) January-April 2019 with a separate intake of students.

Psychology

Psychology: The Science of Behaviour and Mind

This lecture course will present an overview of contemporary psychology and introduce participants to cutting-edge research undertaken by School of Psychology staff. Topics include:* how babies learn to talk, brain imaging, experimental neuropsychology - revelations from the broken brain, using emotions to overcome emotional distress, perceiving our world, early adversity and later development, social neuroscience, childhood sexual abuse & its psychological consequences and many more. Participants who attend at least seventy-five per cent of the course will receive a certificate of attendance.

* Lecture topics may vary depending upon staff availability.

How to Apply

Apply in advance by sending an application form, available for download (from the first week in August 2018) at <http://psychology.tcd.ie/evening-course/>, together with a cheque/bank draft/postal money order, made payable to Trinity College Dublin no. 1 account and sent to: Psychology Evening Course Coordinator, School of Psychology, Áras an Phiarsaigh, Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin, Dublin 2. Applicants may also pay by Credit or Debit Card via our PayPal Facility available on the Evening Course website (from late August). An application form must also be sent in for online payment applicants.

Fee

€220 for eighteen weeks. Concession rate (€140) is available to second and third level students, unemployed persons and those in receipt of a social welfare pension. Please note, if applying at concession rate, proof of status must accompany application form e.g. letter from second/third level institution, proof of receipt of social welfare pension/unemployment benefits.

Time and Place

7pm – 8.20pm on Wednesdays in the Burke Theatre, Arts Building, Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin, Dublin 2.

Duration

Eighteen weeks over two terms: Michaelmas term, commencing Wednesday 10th October 2018 (nine weeks). Hilary term, commencing Wednesday 23rd January 2019 (nine weeks). T: 01 896 1886, E: psychology@tcd.ie

A Survey of Islamic Theology, Philosophy, and Mysticism (Sufism) from its Origins to the Modern Period

This module is a survey of some of the most important schools and movements in Islamic intellectual history, from the beginning of Islam to our own time. It covers the development of Islamic theology (kalām), in both the Sunnite and Shi’ite contexts, the emergence of a distinct philosophical tradition in Arabic inscribed in the continuity of Greek philosophy (mostly Aristotelianism and Neoplatonism), and Islamic mysticism or Sufism. We will discuss some of the main figures who shaped these traditions in the medieval and modern periods and read some of the seminal texts they produced. The course will introduce students to key concepts and terms, as well as to some enduring themes and issues focusing on God, prophecy, human knowledge, and society, which Muslim theologians, philosophers and mystics all sought to address in their own way. Many of these issues still resonate throughout the Islamic world today, and so we will also look at the response of modern Muslim intellectuals to these questions.

Religions and Theology

Approaches to the Study of Religion Religion as a cultural phenomenon is interrelated with all aspects of human life.

A broad range of approaches are applied within the academic study of religion. After a short overview of the disciplinary history of this subject, the course will provide an introductory understanding of ‘classical’ approaches such as the sociology, the anthropology and the psychology of religion, and of more recently emerging concepts such as the economy or the aesthetics of religion.

Religions and TheologyChristianity in the Cultures of late Antiquity

Who were the early Christians? How and where did they eat, pray and love? How did they practise their religion and interact with other cultures around them? What did their Roman, Greek or Syrian neighbours think about them? The purpose of this module is to investigate the historical and cultural environment in which early Christianity developed. Using literary as well as material evidence (archaeological finds, artwork, inscriptions), the module explores customs, beliefs, institutions and identities of the early Christians within the social, political, religious and cultural context of the Roman Empire. In particular, the module will emphasise the relationship between doctrinal and ethical developments in the early church (e.g. the idea of God, the 'discovery' of the self, the rejection of blood sacrifices, the role women in family life and society, and the diffusion of asceticism) and corresponding tendencies in the philosophies and cults of the Graeco-Roman world.

Classical Islamic Religious Thought in Dialogue with Philosophical, Jewish and Christian Sources

Classical Islamic Religious Thought emerged as a result of complex interactions with the Ancient Greek, Christian, Jewish, and Iranian traditions in a period when the Levant and Mesopotamia were constituted by highly cosmopolitan societies. These interactions were sometimes polemical and based on controversy, but they also resulted in intensive collaboration and cultural cross-pollination. This module will explore the religious and philosophical exchanges between these various groups during the classical Islamic period (roughly from the eighth to the thirteenth centuries C.E.) by focusing on key theological issues, such as conceptions of God's nature and His attributes, inter-religious discussions of the Trinity and the Incarnation, and the place of logic and Aristotelian philosophy in the theological method. We will also study the translation movement from Greek and Syriac to Arabic and the development of Qur'anic exegesis (tafsīr) and theology (kalām), which decisively shaped Islamic thought during this period and determined the nature of the religious dialogue between Muslims, Christians, Jews, and alleged heretics and pagans. Finally, in addition to these issues, we will also examine the establishment of the medieval Islamic university (madrasa) and the role it played in the religious and intellectual life of its time.

Religions and TheologyClassical Thinkers on Religion

This course will explore "classic" attempts to develop theories of religion, mainly from a religious studies' perspective. Reflecting on religion has been an important element of the intellectual history of European modernity. Thinking about religion also meant to think about societies and power, about culture and what makes a human being human. We will reconstruct the transformations of the concepts of religion within the early study of religion and identify the historical, philosophical and social contexts. While most of the course is dedicated to these classical positions, we will keep track of how the theories responded to the problems of their time, and how they have shaped our understanding of religion until today.

Contemporary Ethical Issues

The course analyses contemporary biomedical debates in their underlying philosophical and theological principles, values, and views of the human being. It examines the different Irish, European and international argumentations and legislations that these debates have produced. Issues at the beginning and at the end of human life, the possible conflict between parents' and children's perspectives, and the visions of society and humanity implied in positions on advance care directives, on the new reproductive technologies, genetics, healing, enhancement, and cloning will be discussed. Films and excerpts from (what used to be?) science fiction will provide additional avenues to the topics.

Eras and Classical Authors in the History of Christianity

This course introduces discourse about God in Eastern and Western European Christianity from the patristic to the modern eras. It examines key turning points in theological history: the role and achievements in Christology of the Ecumenical Councils in the patristic period with a focus on Nicaea (325); Byzantine Iconoclasm, the Schism East and West in relation to theologies of the Holy Spirit; the rise of the monasteries with a focus on the Rule of St Benedict;

the medieval synthesis of Aristotelian philosophy and Christian theology (Aquinas); the Reformation (Luther) and Counter-reformation (Council of Trent); theology in Modernity (Schleiermacher) and contemporary theology, including the reception of humanist atheism (Feuerbach) and 'nihilism' (Nietzsche).

Ethics in Sport and Media

Beginning with an overview of traditions of ethics, this module treats two key areas of applied ethics. Sport in contemporary society has been described both as an expression of the highest human and social values, and as a legally secured parallel world of the elite pursuit of victories and medals. On the one hand, as a sphere of physical self-realization, social formation and of moral training in fairness, it is seen as an area with standards of excellence that can be closely aligned to ethics. On the other hand, individual sport stars and the institutions of organized sport have been subject to multiple enquiries and critiques: for example, on doping, corruption, sponsorship, the power of mentors and child protection. The variety of facets to the question of ethics in the domains of sport requires a multidisciplinary response. In order to connect to the necessary element of "field work", an integral part of this module will be attendance in a conference on Ethics in Sport which will take place in the Trinity Long Room Hub on a Saturday in November 2018.

It will feature some leading personalities in Irish sport of the past and present to give the practitioners' perspective on ethics and sport. The concluding part of the module will deal with Media Ethics. At a time of "fake news" and of debates on the effects of social media, its importance is inescapable.

Great Controversies in the Histories of Monotheism

European thinking has been marked by great disputes in the encounter between the monotheistic religions with the philosophical and ethical thinking of their times. The module will treat key questions and turning points in the history of thinking from Antiquity to Modernity: the conflict between Gnosticism and a positive biblical understanding of creation, debates about free will and human sin between Augustine and Pelagius, and on reason and revelation in Islamic religious thought. The polemics on God as One or as Triune between Islam and Christianity will be investigated, before turning to the early modern ages with Las Casas' defense of the humanity of the natives of Latin America. The controversy between Luther and Erasmus is followed by the religion versus science dispute of Galileo. The challenge of Kant's demolition of the proofs for God's existence for theology and Schleiermacher's response will conclude the study of the series of conflicts that have constituted key elements of the West's intellectual history.

Introduction to World Religions

This course seeks essentially to give students an experience of religion in Southeast Asia.

Emphasising the heterogeneity of religion in Asia, it will present an overview, while concentrating on Hinduism, Buddhism and Jainism. There will be an examination of the various cosmologies, gods and goddesses, and important concepts dharma, bhakti, samnyasa as well as the caste system.

Students will engage critically with the scriptures, notably the Vedas, the Upanishads and the Bhagavad Gita. The course will deal with the question of Hindu identity and the more recent politicisation of Hinduism in the Hindutva movement. The use of iconography is an important element of the course as it will help to give students an understanding of the wider cultural world of Asian religions.

Religions and TheologyKey Themes in Theology

This module first presents key systematic themes in theology: the truth claim of monotheism and its alleged link to violence, understandings of humans being made in the image of God, of Adam's sin and of salvation in the history of Christian thinking, theodicy and eschatology. Secondly it will introduce key modern contextual theologies: political, liberation and feminist theologies. Its third part will discuss the question of theology at the university since 1800.

Religions and TheologyPaul and the Development of Early Christianity

This course is concerned to introduce a figure who has had a profound impact on the formation of both early Christianity and ancient Judaism: Paul from Tarsus. Issues are raised about intellectual developments in Paul's writings and the methodologies used to assess them. Key themes and current debates that have come to define Pauline Studies in the last decade, especially the so-called "New Perspective on Paul" (i.e. Paul's relationship to Palestinian Judaism), are given significant attention.

Religions and TheologyPauline Letters in Context

In this module we explore Paul's letters within their literary and historical contexts. Significant attention is given to the study of ancient genres, especially the practice of letter writing in the Hellenistic and Mediterranean world, before assessing Paul's (and Pseudo-Pauline) epistles. Paul's use of Jewish scripture and the study of intertextuality are studied in order to appreciate key theological themes. Paul's letters are analysed alongside contemporary writings (e.g. Philo of Alexandria, Greek philosophical schools, Dead Sea Scrolls) in order to assess influences, continuities, and discontinuities.

Philosophical and Theological Approaches to God

This module commences by reflecting on the key theological and philosophical terminology in which the question of God's essence and existence has traditionally been debated. It examines the case for and against natural theology, drawing on the classical arguments for the existence of God (ontological, cosmological, teleological), before considering how the God question may be interpreted under the contested conditions of modernity. The course concludes with a discussion of the notion of revelation and of God's action in history, as well as the debate on key attributes of God, such as freedom, love, wisdom, justice and mercy.

Religion in Public: Great Images

Religion is too often seen as a matter of reading and interpreting holy books and doctrinal formulations. Religious expression, however, is also a function of the eyes, where seeing and being seen play a central role in the public expression of religious thoughts. "Great Images" are visual examples of the public understanding of religion from antiquity to contemporary society which will be studied at different levels (political, social, and cultural). Students will be offered the opportunity to reflect on examples of religious visual culture such as the depiction of crucifixion in early Christianity, the role of icons in Orthodox Christian devotion and worship, important landmarks of Islamic architecture, the role of artistic expression in the theological debate of European modernity, as well as its role in religious propaganda, conflict and contemporary interreligious dialogue.

Religion in Public: Great Speeches

This module investigates “Great Speeches” – famous, influential, remembered speeches that made an impact on cultural and political changes in different areas of the world – with a special focus on the many and diverse roles religion has been playing in important moments of cultural change.

The goal of the module is to provide different scholarly perspectives on the diversity of how religion is mediated and has been part of public debate in many, and often unexpected ways. Through the lenses of Biblical, Islamic and Literary Studies, Theology and the Cultural Study of Religion we will analyse the speeches and their contexts, from politics and cultural life, linked to the relevance of religion as argument, as rhetoric and as value background. Names such as Mahatma Gandhi and Martin Luther King, Arundhati Roy and Albert Camus, Mohammad the Prophet and Friedrich Schleiermacher at the turn of the Enlightenment into Romanticism, demonstrate the scope of backgrounds we will address. Knowing about the impact of religion as a cultural force will build up a competence which is most important for encounters within a multi-cultural globalized world.

Religions in the Ancient Mediterranean

Why did the ancient Egyptians build the pyramids and mummify the dead? Did the Phoenicians practise human sacrifice, as some ancient sources say? Did the Greeks and the Romans believe in their myths? This module investigates the religious beliefs of the people who lived and prospered in the ancient Mediterranean world with particular emphasis on Egypt, Syria, Palestine, Carthage, Greece and Rome. We shall study literary sources, inscriptions and archaeological evidence in order to understand the religious institutions, rituals and burial customs of some of the most significant civilisations of the ancient Mediterranean in their socio-cultural contexts. The module will focus on Mediterranean myths and mythologies, with special emphasis on dying and resurrecting Mediterranean deities, the theory and practice of sacrifice and prayer in the ancient world, and the difference between public and private religious devotion in ancient societies.

The Qur'an and its History of Reception

This is an introductory course on the Qur'an, the sacred text of Islam, and on its reception both in the classical Islamic period and modernity. The course does not require prior knowledge of the subject and will introduce students to some of the major Qur'anic themes and to the ways in which this foundational work has been interpreted by generations of medieval and modern readers. Topics to be discussed include the social, religious, and historical circumstances surrounding the emergence of the Qurʾān; the structure, style, and literary techniques underlying the Qurʾānic text; the tradition of religious exegesis (tafsīr) that developed in Islam; and key Qurʾānic narratives and themes. Students will acquire a basic understanding of the place of this scripture in the Islamic tradition and of its role in Muslim worship and cult. The class will consist of both lectures and student discussion on key themes covered by the readings. We will also be reading various Qurʾānic verses in a comparative perspective with the other monotheistic traditions.

Theological Cosmology and Anthropology

Cosmology traces developments in the mythological and natural-scientific study of the universe in its complex history. This module will investigate these developments as they have been interpreted and received from biblical, theological and philosophical perspectives. Natural-scientific descriptions of the world have implications for how theology conceives of God's action in creation (pantheism, deism, panentheism). This course will examine the complex history of the doctrine of creatio ex nihilo in the Abrahamic faiths. The second part of the module will focus on theological anthropologies under several themes: the human person as created in the image of God (imago Dei), as steward of creation, as embodied and free, contingent and subject to frailty and failure (sin). Throughout it explores how specific cosmologies and anthropologies, theological and philosophical, can influence politics and ethics, using case studies from the natural, social and environmental sciences.

World Christianities: Africa and Asia

This module will give students an insight into Christianity away from its European centres on the peripheries in Africa and Asia. It will look at traditional 'indigenous' Christianities dating back to the third century: Coptic Christianity in North Africa and the Syrian Orthodox, Syro-Malabar, the Syro-Malankara and other rites in India. There will be an examination of both the 16th and 19th century missionary movements and finally a look at more recent developments in Africa Initiated Christianity and the wider Pentecostal development on both continents. The course will look at some of the theological and pastoral issues emerging: healing, deliverance and faith gospel, the place of Christ in salvation, subaltern theologies, and the importance of inter-religious dialogue.

Contemporary Literature and Cinema in Bulgaria and the Question of Balkan Identity

This course provides an overview of Bulgarian contributions to the narrative arts of fiction and cinema today. Bulgaria is known for its folklore, choirs, opera singers and Christo (Yavashev and Stoichkov), but its literature is rarely translated and its cinema is seldom screened. This course shows why this attitude is unwarranted, but also what stands behind it: what are the likely cultural and historical, aesthetic and stylistic, marketing and publicity issues for such a notorious non-presence.

The course focuses exclusively on masterpieces: 5 books – (Ivaylo Petrov, Before I Was Born and Afterwards, Vera Mutafchieva The Case Djem, Yordan Radichkov, Fierce Mood, Georgy Gospodinov, The Physics of Sorrow and Milen Ruskov, Thrown into Nature) and 5 movies (Methodi Antonov, The Goat's Horn, Georgy Djulgerov, Advantage, Rangel Valchanov, The Unknown Soldier's Patent Lather Shoes, Yavor Gardev, Zift, Kamen Kalev, Eastern Plays). All these books and movies pose the question “Who are we, where do we come from and what is our destiny?” All of them address the question of identity and try to grasp what makes “us” different – what makes us “us” (if there is such thing). Balkanness is not on the surface, national and social identity seems to be more apparent markers. The lecturer will argue that the Balkan aspect is crucial for both the formation and understanding of Bulgarian narratives past and present. The mystery of Balkanness as the internal other of Europe will thus appear as an optics towards a European self-perception. The course is subsidised by the Ministry of Education of the Republic of Bulgaria.

Czech Theatre and Political Change

The aim of this course is to examine the place of the theatre in the life of the Czech nation.

The National Theatre in Prague (first opened in 1868) stands as the chief symbol of Czech patriotism, and the city is the home of an extraordinary network of theatres of various types and traditions. The Czech national anthem sprang from a song in a nineteenth-century play. When the Velvet Revolution broke out in November 1989, it was in theatres that many of the revolutionary strike committees held their meetings; and when the communist regime fell, Václav Havel, the dissident playwright and intellectual, was elected president of Czechoslovakia. We shall discuss the works of some of the most significant playwrights from the nineteenth-century to the present (such as J.K. Tyl, Karel Čapek and Václav Havel), considering the contexts from which they emerged, and the impact they have had on Czech (and international) audiences. The theatre's potential to bring about political change will be among the topics discussed. The course is subsidised by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Czech Republic.

Key Works of Czech Literature

As this year we are marking the centenary of the foundation of Czechoslovakia as well as the 25th anniversary of the emergence of the Czech Republic, the aim of this course is to reflect on the main developments in Czech literature in the last one hundred years, with a special focus on the contemporary period.

Through the works of some of the most significant Czech authors (including, for example, Jaroslav Hašek, Bohumil Hrabal and Patrik Ouředník) we shall explore the various trends, genres and themes prominent in Czech literature in different periods of its history. In addition, we shall aim to establish whether there is a ‘specifically Czech’ theme or feature running through the whole body of writing. We have invited a Czech writer to join us for a discussion at the end of the course.

The course is subsidised by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Czech Republic.

The Best of Czech Cinema

The aim of this course is to provide a concise overview of the history of Czech cinematography since the foundation of Czechoslovakia one hundred years ago. The course will open with a full lecture on the evolution of Czech film, its greatest achievements and most significant personalities. The relationship between theatre and film, the role of the interwar literary avant-garde, the 'miracle' of the 1960s New Wave, and the question of national vs. international cinema in the Czech context will be among the topics discussed. This will be followed by four screenings of films by some of the best contemporary filmmakers, showcasing different aspects of the art of Czech cinema. Each screening will be introduced by a short lecture.

The course is subsidised by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Czech Republic.

Acting and Irish Theatre

This four week intensive course is for students who wish to expand, explore and deepen their awareness of Irish theatre. The course draws on the central aspects of The Lir Academy's core teaching, focusing particularly on twentieth and twenty-first century Irish plays and playwrights. The course is aimed at professional actors or those who are undertaking serious training elsewhere and are about to set out on a professional acting career. This course is worth 10 ECTS (European Credit Transfer Accumulation System). Participants on the course will engage with some of the greatest plays in the history of the English language written by some of Ireland's leading writers including J.M. Synge, Sean O'Casey, Samuel Beckett, Brian Friel, Tom Murphy, Conor McPherson, Martin McDonagh, Marina Carr and Enda Walsh.

Acting, Voice and Movement classes will focus on the unique demands of performing Irish plays. Voice classes will focus on the particular requirements of Irish texts including a wide range of Irish contemporary and historic dialects. The actor will explore the notion of body and movement in Irish play texts through different periods of history in relation to culture, clothing, dance, beliefs and superstitions, urban and rural environments, physical embodiment of work, past-time and muscularity of text. A further class will explore the production and performance history of some of the most iconic plays in the Irish repertoire.

Introduction to Acting

The Lir Academy's Introduction to Acting course is perfect for those who are both inquisitive about a future career in acting and those who simply want to challenge themselves by stretching their creative muscles. Led by some of The Lir Academy's core teachers, this workshop-based evening course is taught over 10 weeks. Each two and a half hour session consists of a physical warm-up followed by a voice or movement/improvisation class and culminates with a 90 minute acting workshop. The course will cover key elements of actor training including Voice, Movement and Improvisation, but will also introduce participants to classical and contemporary play texts, using both scenes and monologues to hone your craft. These workshops act as both a taste of drama school training and as a broad and basic introduction to the craft of acting.

Introduction to Screen Acting

Participants will learn the differences between what is effective on stage versus the demands of the screen. As well as developing strategies for meeting the demands of screen acting, students will become more familiar with the filming process, acting for camera, the equipment and roles of the crew members including the terminology used.

The course will allow each participant to experience the fundamentals of screen acting technique, such as hitting marks, staying in your light, finding the light in a tracking shot, working with sound crew and continuity as well as dispelling some of the myths surrounding the process of screen acting.

The course will begin with camera-based classes that are designed to show students how the camera can aid a performance rather than hinder it. At the end of the course all participants will have an edited recording of their own scenes filmed in class.

Catholic Theology in a Secular Age: A Critical Introduction

The purpose of this course is to introduce the student to the foundational concepts of Catholic theology as a living tradition with deep roots of intellectual enquiry, and to do so in the context of the secular age in which we live. There is a study of the concept of secularity and post secularity.

There will be an examination of the argument that there is a sort of 'buried' theological narrative in western culture and its consequences explored. Theological method will be introduced, including hermeneutical theory and the debates about the 'systemity' of Catholic theology, which encompasses the efforts to create an intellectual and integrated synthesis. There will be a short introduction to the thought of Thomas Aquinas.

Ethics and Society in Catholic Traditions

This course studies the modern tradition of Catholic social thought. It has a dual focus, namely, on the social encyclicals of different pontiffs in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, and on the diverse theological traditions of interpretation in different historical, cultural and geographical contexts.

Key concepts including solidarity, subsidiarity and common good will be considered through the lens of these texts and the interpretative traditions. Theological analyses of, and responses to, specific social and political issues will be assessed. Among the issues that will be considered will be: religious liberty, economic justice, war and political conflict.

Foundations for Theological Ethics

This course studies central concepts and key debates in theological ethics, including natural law and the universality of ethics; the nature and role of conscience, moral reasoning and the role of moral principles; the role of church teaching authority in the Catholic tradition (the magisterium) in the moral area. It studies the nature of moral experience and its relation to religious faith and, in this context, will consider the role of the bible in theological ethics from both historical and contemporary perspectives. The course will introduce students to the diversity of methodological approaches in Catholic theological ethics including the moral area, the deontological, and the teleological and virtue-based approaches. There will be reflection on the impact of feminist and post-colonial perspectives on the shape of contemporary theological ethics.

God: One and Three

This course studies how the Christian understanding of God as Trinity emerges from the Christology of the New Testament. It studies the subsequent development in the patristic era, most notably in the texts of the early councils of the Church. The Trinitarian theologies of some major theologians in the Western tradition, particularly Augustine and Aquinas, will be studied, and the distinct path taken by the Eastern tradition sketched. The course studies the work of contemporary theologians, whose work has contributed significantly to the renewal of Trinitarian theology. A study of the theology of the Holy Spirit will be an important part of this course.

The Loyola InstituteThe Ethics of Embodiment

This module will examine the central importance of embodiment and incarnation in Christian theological traditions generally and Catholic Christian thought in particular. We will explore how Christian theo-ethical traditions think with and have defined (or not) bodies and flesh. Centred on the embodied themes of “vulnerability” and “resilience”, this module will ask how those carnal traditions might inform personal ethical stances and public politics.

We will reflect upon a number of themes including embodiment as everyday practices like eating or bathing, sexual ethics, LGBTQ identity, race, ideas of the “body politic”, the politics of empathy, and embodied affect.

The Making of Catholic Theology: The Medieval Period

This course will study the political, cultural and religious context in which Catholic theology developed in the medieval period.

For three centuries monastic schools, alongside cathedral schools, were the context in which a flourishing Christian literature thrived. The introduction of Greco-Arabic thought in the final decades of the twelfth century, as well as the development of university charters, led to new synthesis of previous lines of theological exploration in the works of Aquinas. Towards the later centuries of the medieval period new forms of social life, including new feminist roles, are the context in which notable movements of women mystics flourished. Some works of these women mystics will be studied.

The Making of Catholic Theology: The Modern Period (c. 1900-2000)

This course will study the political, cultural and religious context in which, through a series of movements of thought, Catholic theology changed profoundly in the period 1900- 2000. Among these factors are the effects of the First and Second World Wars, the anti-modernist regime that was in the ascendant at the beginning of the twentieth century, the movement known as 'resourcement', the liturgical movement, the opening to critical and historical Catholic hermeneutics in biblical studies, and the Second Vatican Council.

The Making of Catholic Theology: The Patristic Period

This course will study the early centuries of the Church's history. These witnessed the search for true Christian identity in relation to the acknowledged ancestry in Judaism. It was a period of developing dialogue with the surrounding cultures, and the critical appropriation of some of the best elements of the philosophical schools. The variety of genres of patristic writings will be explored and students will be encouraged to adopt a 'hands-on' approach to reading selected patristic texts.

Theological Anthropology

This course studies what it means to be human from the perspective of theology. The study begins within the horizon of Jewish experience as articulated especially in the early chapters of the Book of Genesis and chapters in Exodus which narrate the gift of Covenant. Within these chapters the themes of the human reality as the imago Dei as well as the theme of deep seated human alienation are studied. Early Irish iconography, including the great High Crosses, will be studied as a distinctive treatment of these themes. Graced humanity is a central topic of the course. This course studies its deployment through the centuries, alongside contemporary re-workings.

Theology in the Reformation and the Counter-Reformation

This course will study the political, cultural and religious context in which Catholic theology developed in the Reformation and the Counter Reformation period. The contribution of the major figures of the European Reformation such as Luther and Calvin will be evaluated critically. The crucial role of the bible, its translation and commentary both by the reformers and by Catholics, will be studied. A clearer statement of Catholic theology will be studied alongside the re-invigorating of the mystical tradition (especially in the works of Teresa of Avila, John of the Cross and the spiritual exercises of Ignatius Loyola) and a vigorous visual restatement of Catholic beliefs in the work of artists like Michelangelo and Caravaggio.
