

Dr. Anne Wren holds a Ph.D in Political Economy and Government from Harvard University and is a former member of the Political Science Department at Stanford University. At IIS she has directed a Marie Curie Excellence Team project, funded by the European Commission, on “Political Responses to Economic Change: De-Industrialization, Globalization, and Service Sector Development”. Her current research focus is on the institutional underpinnings of growth and employment creation in traded knowledge-intensive service sectors, the distributional and political implications of service expansion, and the political economy of the great recession. Samples of recent work include The Political Economy of the Service Transition, (Ed.) Oxford University Press (2013); “The End of Consensus?: Labour Market Developments and the Politics of Retrenchment” (with Philipp Rehm), Socio-Economic Review, (2014) (12); “The Political Economy of the Service Transition”, Renewal: A Journal of Social Democracy (2013) 21 (1); “The neo-Liberal model in (the) Crisis: Continuity and Change in Great Britain and Ireland” (with Lucy Barnes) in Bermeo and Pontusson (Eds.), Coping with Crisis: Government Responses to the Great Recession, (2012) Russell Sage Foundation.
