Module description

This compulsory module offers students the opportunity to pursue a research question of their choice from any area of Identity Studies with expert supervision, presenting their findings in a substantial multi-chapter dissertation.

Assessment

The module is assessed through a 15,000- to 20,000-word dissertation.

Learning outcomes

Upon successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

- LO1 Formulate a research question appropriate to the discipline or sub-discipline.
- LO2 Identify suitable sources, primary and secondary, that can be used to address the research question.
- LO3 Assess the strengths and weaknesses of these sources with reference to the research question.
- LO4 Develop an appropriate plan for answering the research question within the constraints of time and word count associated with the module.
- LO5 Write, to this defined plan, a 15,000- to 20,000-word paper that answers the research question.
- LO6 Use appropriate scholarly conventions and modes of referencing fluently and accurately.
- LO7 Use oral and written supervisor feedback effectively.
