Biography: Prof, Patrick Hannon, St Patrick's College, Maynooth

Prof. Patrick Hannon, a presbyter of the diocese of Cloyne, is professor emeritus and former head of Department of Moral Theology at the Pontifical University, Maynooth, where he was also Director of Postgraduate Studies. He holds doctorates in theology (Maynooth) and law (Cambridge) and is a member of the Irish Bar.

Currently a Senior Research Fellow in Religion and Public Life at the Margaret Beaufort Institute of Theology, Cambridge; formerly a Visiting Fellow at St Edmund’s, Cambridge, and in the Law School at Columbia University, New York. Research interests include foundational questions in Christian Ethics, Catholic Social Teaching, and especially the interrelationships between religion, morality, and law.

He has lectured and published extensively in that area, including a monograph entitled Church, State, Morality, and Law (Dublin: Gill and Macmillan 1992; Christian Classics: Westminster, Md, 1992). Has been joint editor Irish Theological Quarterly. Member and sometime chairman of the Irish Theological Association, and member of the UK-based Association of Moral Theologians.