1. GENERAL PROGRAMME INFORMATION

1.1 Introduction

The Department of Near and Middle Eastern Studies is a dynamic and diverse hub for teaching and research focused on the societies and cultures of the Middle East, North Africa, as well as Jewish and Islamic civilizations.

Our Joint Honours (TJH) undergraduate programme in Middle Eastern, Jewish, and Islamic Civilisations (MEJIC) offer foundational modules in the first year, allowing students to explore various areas of expertise. From the second year onward, students can tailor their studies by selecting a pathway that aligns with their interests. Additionally, students may choose to study a language starting in the second year, with options including Arabic, Turkish, and Modern or Ancient Hebrew.

2. SCHOLARSHIPS AND PRIZES

2.1 Foundation Scholarships

The primary objective of the Foundation Scholarship examination, which is sat in early January of the Junior Fresh Year, is to identify and recognize outstanding academic potential in the fields covered by the degree course in Middle Eastern, Jewish, and Islamic Civilisations. The examination encompasses material taught during the two semesters of the Junior Freshman year and the first semester of the Senior Freshman year. Further details and specific guidance regarding the examination will be provided by the Schols coordinator for MEJIC. In 2026-2027 this is Dr Lesley Grant.

2.2 Prizes

MEJIC students are eligible for a number of prizes:

Haddick Memorial Prize This prize was founded in 1967 by Dr H. G. K. Haddick as a memorial to his brother, the Rev. Dr James E. K. Haddick. The prize is to be awarded to the best answerer in the department of Near and Middle Eastern Studies at the Junior Sophister examination in Hebrew, provided sufficient merit is shown. Value, €191.

Hincks Memorial Prize This prize was founded in 1944 by a gift from J. H. Magee in memory of Edward Hincks, Fellow 1813-20, to encourage the study of the language, history, religion, literature, culture and ideas of the Hebrews in Old Testament times, and of Old Testament archaeology.

The prize is awarded in two parts, one to an undergraduate of the Junior Sophister year and the other to a postgraduate student in the department of Near and Middle Eastern Studies. In each case the award is made for a dissertation within the areas designated. The topic chosen should be approved in advance, and the dissertation should be submitted not later than 1 October. In the event of two or more dissertations being judged to be of equal and sufficient merit, the prizes may be divided. Value: Undergraduate prize €381; Postgraduate prize €2,540.

3. ACADEMIC WRITING

3.1 The Use and Referencing of AI (Artificial Intelligence)

The School's guidelines on the use of Generative AI (Gen AI) are available on the School website.

Acknowledging and referencing AI

The Library of Trinity College Dublin has developed guidelines on acknowledging and referencing GenAI. GenAI is evolving rapidly and there is not yet general consensus on how to acknowledge and reference it. This guidance will therefore continue to be reviewed and updated.

3.2 Academic Integrity and Referencing Guide

It is clearly understood that all members of the academic community use and build on the work and ideas of others. However, it is essential that we do so with integrity, in an open and explicit manner, and with due acknowledgement. Any action or attempted action that undermines academic integrity and may result in an unfair academic advantage or disadvantage for any member of the academic community or wider society may be considered as academic misconduct.

4.3 Coursework Requirements

Submission of assessed work

All assessed work must be submitted with the appropriate coversheet, which can be downloaded from Blackboard or obtained from the module coordinator. All submissions should be through Blackboard.

4.4 Capstone Project

This information is for MEJIC students planning to do their capstone in NMES, and for MEELC students who plan to do their capstone with an NMES supervisor. It does not apply to MEELC Dual Degree students, who should refer to the MEELC Dual Degree Handbook.

The Capstone Project is weighted at 20 ECTS. It requires a significant level of independent research by the student. The Capstone should:

1. be an integrative exercise that allows students to showcase skills and knowledge which they have developed across a range of subject areas and across the four years of study
2. result in the production of a significant piece of original work by the student
3. provide students with the opportunity to demonstrate their attainment of the four graduate attributes: to think independently, to communicate effectively, to develop continuously and to act responsibly.

At the start of your Senior Sophister year you will be enrolled on the relevant Blackboard module (NMU44CPY), which will contain information about deadlines, word length, citation format, etc. You should refer to the Blackboard page as the only authoritative source of information on such things (in the event that any such information is missing, you should contact the module coordinator).

While the precise word limit will be on the Blackboard page, it will not be less than 10,000 words (excluding bibliography). It will need acknowledgments, a table of contents, the main text, conclusions, the bibliography, and any appendices (for raw data, not for additional discussion).

The main text should include:

- an introduction
- review/survey of existing scholarly literature
- explanation of the data set (i.e. of the sources you are using)
- explanation of the methods you will be using
- how you will be circumventing any methodological problems which attach to the project
- your own analysis (which will constitute the lion's share of the work)

Choosing a topic and research question

As well as a topic, you will need a specific research question. This needs to be carefully chosen, as the markers will be interested in how well you answer it. It is quite normal for the research question to be refined along the way (many students start off with one which is too broad to be answerable, and/or clumsily worded), and the same is true of the title.

Capstone supervisor

While the capstone is your own original research, and you have ultimate responsibility for it, you are supported by a supervisor. For MEJIC students doing their capstone in NMES this will be a member of NMES academic staff.

Your supervisor's role is to make suggestions, answer your questions, advise you on what is and is not likely to work well, make critical-constructive comments on writing and content, and generally help you achieve your and the project's potential.

You can expect five hours of contact supervision hours over the year, and how you divide them up (five 1-hour slots, ten 30-minute slots, etc.) is to be agreed between yourself and the supervisor. You can also expect your supervisor to read one full draft of the piece, providing you send it to them a reasonable length of time (stipulated in advance) before the deadline.

It is advisable to meet with your supervisor before the start of the summer, and to update them on your progress by email throughout the duration (every month at least).

Capstone deadlines

NMES will have a series of deadlines in advance of formal submission. While only the final submitted work (and not the earlier deadlines) will count towards the mark, it is important to meet them: they are there to help you break down the large task into manageable chunks.

Your first deadline will be in the first week of Michaelmas teaching Term. You will need to send your supervisor a brief document including: the research question (and sub-questions), a description of the primary sources to be used (data set), a list of relevant scholarly literature which you have already read, and a list of works which you plan to read. The document does not need to be long (a page or a page and a half should do it), but it should reflect actual work and thinking rather than being a last-minute scramble.

It is, therefore, advantageous to do as much preparatory work as possible over the summer.

Capstone research

For the capstone, the student will conduct independent analysis of a topic based on a strong reading of secondary literature, supported by specific primary sources. The student will be responsible for:

- Identifying a topic, research question, and reading list that will be approved by their supervisor
- Devising a research plan with the guidance of their supervisor
- Conducting a thorough secondary literature review

- Finding and analyzing primary sources to help develop an argument
- Consulting with their supervisor about their work and their progress
- Writing a well-cited capstone, complete with abstract, table of contents, relevant chapters, bibliography, and if necessary, appendices.

Research Ethics

If you plan to do interviews you will need authorisation from the School of Languages, Literatures and Cultural Studies' Research Ethics Committee and to submit paperwork through the REAMS system well in advance of any work on the project.

Finally: particularly with issues in current affairs, it is important to distinguish academic research from activism. The two do sometimes overlap, but for the purposes of planning a capstone, it is useful to think of them as being different.

- Capstone website

4.5 Marking Scale

The following grade boundaries apply:

- I: 70 - 100%
- II.1: 60 - 69%
- II.2: 50 - 59%
- III: 40 - 49%
- F.1: 30 – 39%
- F.2: 0 - 29%

In cases where an assessed work component is not submitted, a grade of 0% will be awarded.

For language modules, the maximum grade is capped at 80%.

For the marking criteria which will be applied to your work, see the information provided for individual modules.

4.6 Attendance Requirements

In certain modules, students are required to meet specific attendance criteria and complete non-examined written work. It is the responsibility of students to understand and fulfil the requirements for all modules they are enrolled in. If you are uncertain about any expectations, please consult the module coordinator.

Reference:

- Calendar Part II, B: General Regulations and Information, 'Attendance'

4.7 Absence from Examinations

There are varied modes of assessment in different modules in your programme. Please consult information provided by module coordinators to understand precisely what is required of you in assessed exercises and in examinations. Please also note that it is the responsibility of each student to establish the time and date of examinations and be aware of examination regulations by consulting the College Examination Office website.

Sources:

- Calendar Part II, B: General Regulations and Information, 'Absence'
- Academic Policies

4.8 External Examiners

External examiners review work in the Sophister years and are responsible for ensuring that the standard of assessments is both fair and in line with best practice nationally and internationally.

In the academic year 2025-26, the External Examiners are:

- Professor Sarah Pearce (Southampton) – Antiquity
- Professor Eugene Rogan (Oxford) – Modern Middle East
- Professor Aslı Niyazioğlu (Oxford) – Ottoman Studies

Where Externals are based outside the  EU/EHEA (European Union/European Higher Education Area), your personal information, i.e. exam script and coursework, will be sent outside the EU/EHEA.

4.9 Transcript Requests

If you wish to request a copy of your academic transcript, contact the Undergraduate Office (undergraduate.slcs@tcd.ie).
