Stethoscope Ceremony

Welcome to the TCD School of Medicine's annual Stethoscope Ceremony. This afternoon we would like to welcome the incoming Year 3 clinical students to the profession of Medicine. We have chosen the stethoscope as our symbol as very often the use of the stethoscope is one of the first physical interactions between the patient and the student or doctor and signifies the importance of listening to the patient!

The ceremony is a ritual to symbolise and mark the important transition for Medical students from the classroom into the clinical setting. It also provides an opportunity for faculty to set up a framework for students to understand the education that is to come over the course of the next 3 years. Taking an oath of initiation and being supported by the community places the student at the beginning of the development of a professional identity. We believe this ceremony is a valuable first step in the professional development of a competent and caring doctor, fostering trust in oneself and the profession by being open, honest and acting with respect and integrity.

Francis W. Peabody - American Physician of the 1930s
