3rd Annual Syncope Training Day

28th February 2014
Durkan Lecture Theatre,
Trinity Health Sciences Building

Exciting New Format

Interactive | Case Driven | Cases and Traces | Video Real Life Cases | Topical Debates | Most up to date information

Keynote Speakers:

Professor Gert Van Dijk
Leiden University Medical Center, The Netherlands

Dr Nicholas Gall
King’s College Hospital, London

Transient Loss of Consciousness (T-LOC) can be used to describe a wide range of conditions such as syncope, cataplexy, narcolepsy and epilepsy. Professor Gert Van Dijk, a Professor of Neurophysiology at Leiden University Medical Centre is a world leader in the field of T-LOC and has a remarkable collection of cases and video presentations.

A number of patients with T-LOC have episodes not directly attributable to syncope or epilepsy. These patients often present to the Emergency Department and these episodes may psychogenic in nature. This difficult area of T-LOC will be explored from the cardiac perspective by Dr Nicholas Gall, Consultant Cardiologist and Cardiac Electrophysiologist. Dr Nicholas Gall is an Arrhythmia Management Specialist with extensive expertise in the management of T-LOC.

Other Topics will include:

Speakers:
Professor Joseph Harbison, Consultant Stroke Physician, St. James's Hospital, Dublin
TBC

Atrial fibrillation is an under recognized cause of falls and syncope but once transient runs are detected how should patients be managed?

Speakers:
Dr Dr Geraldine Mc Mahon, Consultant Physician, Emergency Medicine, James’s Hospital, Dublin
Falls and Syncope are the commonest reason for an adult to attend the Emergency Department. What are the best systems for risk assessment and stratification?

Speakers:
Professor Rose Anne Kenny, Director of Syncope Unit, James's Hospital, Dublin
Syncope Management Units (SMU). What are they? What are the guidelines for SMU’s?

Speakers:
Dr Norman Delanty, Consultant Neurologist, Beaumont Hospital, Dublin
Driving and Syncope

Supported by an unrestricted Education Grant

Bookings:
www.eventbrite.ie/e/3rd-annual-syncope-day-registration-9984986363

Enquiries:
syncopetraining@stjames.ie

Early registration €40
Late registration €60

Applied for CDP Accreditation

In association with: