Trinity College Dublin’s Taught Masters (MPhil) in Contextual Theologies and Interfaith Relations explores how religious traditions articulate their identities over time and across space, borrow and re-shape philosophical and political ideas, address their own internal diversities, and engage with other religions and ideologies.

MODULES INCLUDE

- Religions, Politics and Ethics in a Pluralist World
- Reimagining Ecumenical Theology: Dialogue and Difference
- Liberationist and Interreligious Theologies
- Issues in Buddhist-Christian Dialogue
- Muslim God, Christian God: Islam and Muslim-Christian Comparative theology
- Engaging Religious Fundamentalism
- Religions, Conflict, and Peace in International Relations
- Nature, Grace and Place: Theology, Maps and Territories
- Research and Methods in Contextual Theologies and Interfaith Relations

CONTEXTUAL THEOLOGIES AND INTERFAITH RELATIONS

Students probe pressing questions of our day about the prospects and legacies of faith’s complex relationships with social class, caste, race, ethnicity, nationhood, gender, sexuality and ecology. Modules draw on a range of critically engaging scholarly perspectives – including constructive theologies, contextual, ecumenical and interreligious theologies; liberation, feminist, queer, and peace theologies; historical theology and theological anthropology; Buddhist, Hindu, Islamic and Jewish Studies; postcolonial and postmodern critical theories; politics; sociology; and ethics.

HOW TO APPLY

This taught Masters course may be studied full-time over 12 months, or part-time over 24 months. It is also possible to study for a Postgraduate Diploma in Contextual Theologies and Interfaith Relations over the same time periods.
