

MPhil Conflict Resolution and Reconciliation Course Overview 2019-20

The MPhil in Conflict Resolution and Reconciliation, Trinity College Dublin at Belfast, is an interdisciplinary course examining conflict and peacemaking in Ireland and around the world, combining high-quality academic education with practical skills and on-the-ground learning. This document provides an overview of the modules on offer in the academic year 2019-20.

At Trinity, course elements are weighted with credits according to the European Credit Transfer Scheme – ECTS. The required ECTS for the MPhil is 90. All Master's students must complete the Research Skills module (10 ECTS), plus a further 50 ECTS worth of taught modules and a dissertation (30 ECTS). Module registration takes place in advance of the beginning of the programme and students must complete and return a module registration form. It should be noted that students may also take for credit or audit modules from two Dublin MPhil programmes, International Peace Studies and Intercultural Theology and Interreligious Studies. This will require Belfast-based students to travel for classes held in Dublin and those who wish to do so should make sure that timetabling clashes can be avoided. The Dublin timetable will be provided.

It is recommended that you balance your modules over the two terms. Please note you may not take more than four modules in one term. You may also audit one module per term if you are taking three modules for credit during that term (i.e. take the class but not for credit). Community Learning is an exception to this rule as it is available over two terms. As part of orientation there will be a course information session where you can find out more about how best to structure your study for the year ahead.

Information provided below is done so in good faith and is correct as of April 2019. Modules may be amended depending on staff availability. In addition, module availability depends on numbers of interested students.

Reconciliation in Northern Ireland EM7452

Co-ordinator: Dr Brendan Ciarán Browne

Time: Michaelmas/Autumn Semester

Overview

This course analyses the origins and dynamics of the conflict across the region with a view to assessing the prospects for peace and reconciliation. Core topics include, inter alia: explanations of the conflict (colonial, economic, religious, ethno-nationalist); Irish republican/nationalist, and Ulster unionist/loyalist perspectives of the conflict; the impact of conflict on children and young people; sport, conflict and reconciliation; and the role of the churches in division and peacebuilding. Students will be invited to form their own views on the current, complex condition of Northern Ireland and to examine the multi-faceted nature of Northern Ireland's transition.

Learning Outcomes

- Identify and analyse the causes of the conflict in the north of Ireland including the merits of different perspectives on the nature of the conflict in Northern Ireland.
- Give a detailed account of processes of change leading up to the 1998 Good Friday/Belfast Agreement and thereafter.
- Analyse the continuing tendencies for conflict in 'transitional'/post-conflict' Northern Ireland and assess the prospects for real and meaningful reconciliation.

Research Skills EM7301

Co-ordinator: Dr David Mitchell

Time: Michaelmas/Autumn Semester

Overview

This module provides an insight into some of the core skills needed to develop as a graduate student here at Trinity College Dublin. The module will reflect on a number of core themes including: theories of knowledge production; qualitative research methods; ethical considerations in research; and data analysis. It has been designed in such a way as to support the successful completion of written assignments in the taught modules and serves as early preparation for the MPhil dissertation. In addition, the sessions will provide an orientation to some of the resources available for studies during the programme and an analysis of academic skills involved in graduate work.

Learning Outcomes

- Understand the different theoretical arguments surrounding the production of knowledge.
- Grasp issues pertaining to qualitative enquiry, including research skills, and data analysis.
- Identify and access hard-copy and electronic resources in library collections associated with the programme (especially ISE, QUB, and the Trinity College Dublin main College library).
- Submit academic work in an appropriate structure and format, with a full bibliography and consistent referencing.
- Distinguish between proper academic use of research material of others and inappropriate plagiarism.
- Develop a coherent plan for the dissertation.

Dynamics of Reconciliation EM7451

Co-ordinators: Dr Johnston McMaster & Dr Cathy Higgins

Time: Hilary/Spring Term (Term to be confirmed)

Overview

This course will introduce students to the concept of reconciliation in an historical and political context. It will recognise that reconciliation in practice takes different shapes and forms when applied to various strands of life and society. The module will critically examine these dynamics through an interdisciplinary approach involving theology, history, politics, interreligious dialogue and gender studies. Social and political reconciliation will be examined in relation to the socio-political and ethical resources inherent in religious traditions. The module will also address issues of commemoration, memory, violence, sectarianism, patriarchy and gender relations. The context for the module will be the Irish conflict, especially in the twentieth century. This will form a working case study. The module will be delivered through lectures, a participatory methodology of education and interactive learning. The mode of assessment is through the submission of a 4000 word essay.

Learning Outcomes

- To understand the nature of social and political reconciliation and its various strands.
- To be able to articulate the resources within Judaism, Confucianism, Christianity and Islam for social and political reconciliation.
- To understand how dealing with commemoration and memory can open up space for building a peaceful and reconciling future.
- To be able to critically evaluate the Judeo-Christian sources that legitimise gender violence and reinforce patriarchy as a theo-political system.
- To be able to identify and critically apply Judeo-Christian sources for gender justice as a liberating paradigm for reconciliation and the mending of creation.
- To be able to critically evaluate religious texts of terror and violence and to understand the Judeo-Christian internal textual critique and the texts of peace.

Community Learning and Reflective Practice EM7454

Co-ordinator: Dr Brendan Ciarán Browne

Time: Michaelmas/Autumn Semester and Hilary/Spring Semester

Overview

This module – an internship with an identified partner organisation - allows students to gain real-world experience of community work in Northern Ireland and connect this experience with what is being learned in the classroom. If you already work for a non-governmental organisation, we hope that the community-based learning component of the course will help you to reflect on what you do, share those experiences with others, and enhance your work. Those who do not are encouraged to seek out a placement opportunity in line with their interests and abilities or consult with the Module Co-ordinator to identify an appropriate organisation. In this module, students are expected to work a minimum of 96 hours with the organisation between October 2018 and April 2019, and spend at least 24 hours in personal study/reading and reflection. Students will be asked to keep a reflective journal and make use of this journal when writing their coursework reflective essay. Students enrolled in this class must also take the 'Reconciliation in Northern Ireland' module to ensure that their experiences in the community are grounded in a sound understanding of the socio-political context. Students will be assessed by way of written assignment, a supervisor's report and maintained timesheet. Please note, this module will be awarded a pass/fail grade.

Learning Outcomes

- Engage in 'reflective practice'.
- Connect 'theory' from the classroom with 'practice' in various organisations.
- Identify skills gained through community-based work.

Conflict Transformation EM7443

Co-ordinators: Dr. Wilhelm Verwoerd and Mr. Alistair Little*

Time: Michaelmas/Autumn Semester

Overview

At the heart of conflict transformation lies the challenge of transforming relations after violent political conflict, in particular between former enemies who have been directly involved in and/or affected by the violence. This course addresses the above challenge in two complementary ways. Firstly, it combines academic material with the practical wisdom of former combatants who have become peace practitioners (within the conflict in and about Northern Ireland, in South Africa and in Israel/Palestine). Sub-themes include

- A central source of resistance to conflict transformation, namely the dynamics and dilemmas of betrayals when former enemies engage;
- The complexity of processes of ‘apology’/‘acknowledgement’, ‘forgiveness’ and ‘responsibility’, especially where politicized (former) combatants are involved;
- The transformative potential of compassion, empathy, and care across the barriers political conflict puts between groups and individuals.

Secondly, this course provides an opportunity for students to fully experience and afterwards critically reflect on a particularly promising process of interpersonal, small group conflict transformation, namely the inclusive sharing of life experiences (“storytelling”).

* NB: The storytelling component is offered as a three day intensive residential at the Corrymeela peace centre in Ballycastle on the North Coast. Students will be invited to draw on their own life experiences during this residential, supported by a team of experienced facilitators.

Learning Outcomes

- Critically analyse key features and challenges of conflict transformation at the interpersonal level, especially between politicised former combatants, including Transforming the dynamics of betrayals
- Dynamics of “reconciliation”/ “humanisation” (acknowledgement, forgiveness, responsibility, compassion)
- Critically analyse the promise and pitfalls of ‘storytelling’ within conflict transformation

Contemporary Conflict and Peacemaking: Global Perspectives EM7448

Co-ordinator: Dr David Mitchell

Time: Hilary/Spring Semester

Overview

This module examines the nature of contemporary conflict and peacemaking through a series of significant and diverse country/regional case studies, including Israel-Palestine, the former Yugoslavia, South Africa, Sri Lanka, and the Korean peninsula. In each instance a series of questions are posed: what are the causes of inter-group tension and violence?; in what forms has the conflict manifested itself over time?; what role have regional and transnational factors played?; how have political leaders, civil society and third parties sought to resolve the conflict, and how successful have those efforts been?; and what are the prospects for, and the contextual constraints on, reconciliation? By taking a global approach, this module highlights successes, dilemmas, challenges, and cross-national learning, in contemporary conflict resolution.

Learning Outcomes

- Appraise the context of global conflict resolution today, including the distinct features of contemporary violent identity conflict.
- Compare and contrast a number of cases of violent inter-group conflict, identifying similarities and differences.
- Evaluate the variety of strategies which have been used in these cases to manage and transform conflict.

Foundations of Conflict Resolution Research EM7450

Co-ordinator: Dr David Mitchell

Time: Michaelmas/Autumn Term (Term to be confirmed)

Overview

This course examines some of the key concepts and debates in the field of peace and conflict research. It discusses the emergence of peace/conflict/conflict resolution as a subject of academic scrutiny. It explores influential ideas which have driven the pursuit of peace and justice such as liberalism, Marxism, feminism, religious faith, as well as the non-violence and Just War traditions. Furthermore, the module provides students with a theoretical understanding of the causes and dynamics of ethnic conflicts and approaches to their resolution.

Learning Outcomes

- Identify the contributions made to peace theory and practice of different traditions of thought
- Grasp the nature of ethnic nationalism and the causes and dynamics of ethnic conflicts
- Assess the different kinds of intervention strategies that are used by third parties to manage, resolve and transform destructive conflict
- Further demonstrate the transferable skills of independent study and research, critical analysis and clear presentation of complex ideas

Mediation and Conflict Analysis Skills EM7449

Co-ordinator: Dr. Yaser Alashqar

Time: Hilary/Spring Semester

Overview

The Mediation and Conflict Analysis Skills Module is taught as a one week intensive in March 2020. The aim of the module is to provide a theoretical and practical introduction to mediation and conflict analysis skills. Students gain an understanding of the processes involved and begin to develop some of the skills of approaching mediation and conflict analysis. In addition, the module offers an insight into political negotiations and conflict management practices, and outlines how to prepare for, and conduct negotiations. The emphasis is on practical skills and experiential learning, though there will be some theoretical inputs. The learning process includes presentations, pair-work, simulations, role-plays and guest-speakers. Assessment involves class activities and a reflective essay on the learning and skills which the students have gained.

Learning Outcomes

- Develop an understanding of mediation and conflict analysis models.
- Connect theory to practice in the context of mediation and conflict resolution.
- Gain key skills in the area of mediation.
- Learn about, and practice, political negotiations and conflict analysis tools.

Select Readings
