

Be a part of South Africa's future!

USE YOUR

LANGUAGES!

Did you know that it is a universal human right to speak our mother tongues?

Don't lose it

All of the languages that we speak are important for our future development, including for our friendships, our families, our jobs and even for our brains and our health! So, don't lose the languages you speak at home - you'll certainly regret it later in life if you do!

Mother tongues matter

Our mother tongues play a very important part in our lives - they are not only a badge of belonging, but also a resource for creativity, for mental health, and for career prospects.

Get a great job

African language speakers have a crucial role to play in the future. Speaking indigenous languages brings lots of career opportunities in technology, research, business, the creative arts, journalism and much more!

Use it if you don't want to lose it!
