

So you're thinking about studying abroad?

Erasmus exchanges in Philosophy

Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität, Munich

- www.lmu.de/en/international/incoming
- 2 places x 9 months
- Proficiency in German highly recommended but not mandatory; modules taught in English are limited.

Koç University, Istanbul

- <https://oip.ku.edu.tr/>
- 2 places x 5 months
- All modules taught in English.

Other EU exchange options

In addition to the Erasmus exchanges, it's also possible to go on exchange to other European universities through the Coimbra Exchange Network.

Contact the Study Abroad office at study.abroad@tcd.ie for more information about applying to these exchanges.

Selecting schools

A list of the Erasmus exchanges available through the School of Social Sciences and Philosophy can be found here:

<https://www.tcd.ie/ssp/undergraduate/study-abroad/outgoing/destinations/>

In selecting schools to apply to, you'll need to check and make sure that there are enough suitable philosophy modules for you to take, and that the modules are taught in a language that you are proficient in.

If you're applying to any schools besides the two that the Philosophy Department has Erasmus agreements with (LMU Munich and Koç University), please send me a list of the philosophy modules that you'd like to take at each one (preferably with links to their online descriptions, if possible).

Applying

The opening and closing dates for applications for Erasmus exchanges available through the School of Social Sciences and Philosophy are as follows:

Opening date – Friday, 23 October

Closing date – Friday, 27 November (@ noon)

Information about the application process can be found here:
<https://www.tcd.ie/ssp/undergraduate/study-abroad/apply/>

If you accept an offer...

If you accept an offer to go on exchange, you'll need to complete a Personal Declaration Form (which you send to your programme administrator), and a Learning Agreement (which you send to your exchange coordinators, including me).

Information about these forms, along with further steps you may need to take before going abroad, can be found here:

<https://www.tcd.ie/ssp/undergraduate/study-abroad/outgoing/>
