Common questions

• I’m a JH student which department do I go away through?

You can go away through exchanges organised by either department (or the college).

You must get the approval of both departments to the exchange. This involves you researching the modules that are available, coming up with a study plan and submitting it to the departments for approval. The study plan needs to contain information (links) to module content.

• How do college wide and departmental applications operate?

SS&P and Business have a single application process, other departments and schools have different processes, as do College-wide exchanges.

If you apply through multiple processes you may get multiple offers and you can choose which to accept. If you are rejecting an offer from us please let us know asap, as if you do so early enough we can offer the place to someone else.

• How are decisions made

It’s a competitive process, based on your suitability for the destination and your academic performance.

In the event of underperformance in the SF year offers may be withdrawn.
Module suitability & frontloading

• Study plans need to be signed off on by all subjects
• Module titles alone are not sufficient for us to judge the suitability
• Module content is what matters not who teaches it
• If suitable modules in a subject are not available then it may be possible to frontload that subject
  • You need specific permission from both subjects to do this
  • It is not possible to take more than 25 economic credits in one semester at Trinity
• Around 10 credits of econometrics is a requirement for the economics capstone
