Introduction

Lifelong learning is a continual process for every one of us, whether it is for personal interest or professional development. Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin, offers a wide range of evening and short courses in many different fields which result in the gaining of new ideas, new knowledge, and in some instances, new qualifications.

Today, the continuing nature of education is more important than ever. Old skills become obsolete, new skills come to be in high demand. The people who can participate most effectively in our fastmoving modern society are those who are most open to new ideas, most adaptable and willing to continually re-educate themselves and broaden their perspectives.

In addition to degree and diploma courses, there is a wide range of short courses to choose from at Trinity, from history of art to social work, Greek and Roman mythology and religion to physics and a wide variety of languages among others. We hope that you will find a course that appeals to you in this booklet.

Réamhrá

Próiseas leanúnach dúinn uile is ea an fhoghlaim ar feadh an tsaol, bíodh sí ar bhonn suime pearsanta nó ar mhaithe le forbairt ghairmiúil. Cuireann Coláiste na Tríonóide, Baile Átha Cliath, Ollscoil Átha Cliath réimse leathan cúrsaí tráthnóna agus gearrchúrsaí ar fáil in ábhair éagsúla a chruthaíonn smaointe úra, a chuireann eolas úr ar fáil agus, i gcás cuid acu, cáilíochtaí úra freisin.

Sa lá atá inniu ann, tá an t-oideachas leanúnach níos tábhachtaí ná riamh. Tá seanscileanna ag dul as feidhm agus tá éileamh ar scileanna úra. Na daoine a ghlacfaidh an pháirt is éifeachtaí i sochaí nua-aimseartha tapa an lae inniu ná na daoine sin atá sásta glacadh le smaointe nua, atá solúbtha agus toilteanach filleadh ar an oideachas go tráthúil agus a ndearcadh ar an saol a leathnú.

Chomh maith le cúrsaí céime agus dioplóma, tá réimse leathan gearrchúrsaí ar fáil i gColáiste na Tríonóide – ó stair na healaíne go hobair shóisialta, ó mhíotaseolaíocht agus creidimh na Gréige agus na Róimhe go fisic agus rogha leathan teangacha, i measc ábhar eile.

Autism Diagnostic Observation Schedule (ADOS2) for the Clinical Setting (Online Course)

ADOS-2 is a semi-structured, standardised assessment of communication, social interaction, play/imaginative use of materials and restricted and repetitive behaviours for individuals who have been referred because of possible autism spectrum disorder (ASD).

Fundamentally new to the ADOS-2 than ADOS-G are the procedures involved in the algorithm computation and the Comparison Score for module 1 through 3 which were revised on the basis of the findings of recent validation research. The new comparison score provides a way of indicating a participant's level of autism spectrum related symptomatology and it can also be used to interpret an individual's own change in autism spectrum related symptoms over time.

ADOS-2 also includes a toddler module, which is designed for very young children who do not use phrase speech but who are between the ages of twelve and thirty months. The toddler module has its own algorithms that provide 'ranges of concern' instead of cut-off scores.

A variety of specialists will use the ADOS-2, their use of results in writing reports and making recommendations to inform medical diagnoses, special education classification and occupational therapists and speech and hearing professionals might use for treatment planning.

Training in the ADOS-2 is now available online for use in the clinical setting through the Department of Psychiatry, Trinity College Dublin. The training is aimed at professionals with a mental health background who have some familiarity with the tool and it focused on teaching correct administration of the instrument.

The online course is structured around 3 components:

1. A precourse self-directed component (approx 4 hours self directed learning);
2. A live online course over two days (2 x 5.5 hours) on ADOS Module 1-4 administration;
3. A post course assignment.

ADOS-2 Toddler Module will be available as a post-course optional online learning module. The access to this Module will be granted after successfully completed training in Modules 1-4 and post-course assignment that assesses their reliability.

Lecturer: Prof. Louise Gallagher.

BOTANY

Practical Course in Botanical Art

Well known Botanical artist Yanny Petters (www.yannypetters.net) will be running a two-day practical course in botanical drawing and watercolour illustration based in the Trinity Botanic Gardens at Dartry, Dublin 6 (nearest Luas Station, Milltown). Yanny is a member of the Irish Society of Botanical Artists and exhibits regularly in Ireland. Some of her works are in the Shirley Sherwood Collection in Kew Gardens, as well as in the OPW collection in Glasnevin and Wicklow Mountains National Park.

In this course, and following previous years' very successful model, all abilities will be catered for, as each participant will receive individual tuition.

A botanical drawing session occupies the first part of the day one and participants produce preparatory drawings to work from in the watercolour course in the afternoon and day two. Plants are sourced in the extensive gardens and glass houses on site and all drawings are done from life.

How to Apply

Please email Yanny at yannypetters@gmail.com to confirm your participation. Places are very few in number and strictly limited.

Fee

The course will cost €140 for two days. Tea and coffee will be provided and materials will be supplied. Full payment in advance by 1st August 2020 for the autumn course is essential and required to secure your place. Please note all monies are non-refundable except in the event of course cancellation.

Date and Time

Autumn 2020: 9th and 10th September in the Trinity Botanic Gardens opposite Palmerston Park at Dartry, Dublin 6 (nearest Luas Station, Milltown). All sessions start at 10.30am and end at 4pm.

Spring 2021: 12th and 13th May in the Trinity Botanic Gardens opposite Palmerston Park at Dartry, Dublin 6 (nearest Luas Station, Milltown). All sessions start at 10.30am and end at 4pm.

CLASSICS

Greek and Roman Art and Architecture

There are a limited number of places available on this course. This lecture-only module is an introductory survey of the development and major artistic and technical achievements of Greek and Roman architecture, sculpture and painting. The course places art and architecture in its social, political and cultural context. It explores themes such as the representation of the human form, the use of narrative and mythology in art, and urbanisation, and it looks at the works of individual artists. It traces the development of architectural forms, such as temples, theatres and Roman baths with attention to many of the iconic buildings and sites of the ancient world, including the Parthenon, Delphi and Olympia, the Colosseum, the Pantheon and Pompeii.

Lecturer: Dr Hazel Dodge.

CLASSICS

Greek and Roman Mythology and Religion

What is myth? How do myths deal with fundamental human concerns about who we are and the world we live in? What is the relationship between myth and religion? Why did the Greeks and Romans worship many gods, believe in oracles, or perform animal sacrifice? This lecture-only module is an introduction to the major myths and religions of the classical world using the full range of primary source material: literary, artistic and archaeological. It explores the functions of myth within society and the various theories of myth. The first half of the course will focus on themes such as the creation of myths in the wider context of Near Eastern mythology, the character of the Olympian gods, heroes and their monstrous opponents, divine-human relations, and the major mythic cycles of the Trojan war, and the Atreus and Theban sagas. The second half of the course will explore the nature of Greek and Roman religion in its social context. It considers key elements of ritual action: sacrifice, rites of passage, festivals, as well as the diverse ancient beliefs on death and the afterlife and the role of mystery religions. This lecture-only course will be illustrated.

Lecturer: Dr Suzanne O'Neill.

CENTRE FOR GENDER AND WOMEN'S STUDIES

Gender: History, Culture and Representation

'The story is no longer about the things that have happened to women and men and how they have reacted to them; instead it is about how the subjective and collective meanings of women and men as categories of identity have been constructed.'

(Joan Scott, Gender and the Politics of History, New York, 19988, p.6).

This lecture-only module will examine the histories and representations of gender, seeking to understand how gender is constructed by societies, institutions and individuals, through the critical analysis of texts, works of art and public actions. Gender, its role, its construction and its historiography will be brought together by scholars across the school in an interdisciplinary module. The operation of gender 'as a tool of analysis' will be examined in histories of the body, sexuality, medicine, religion, politics, institutions and representations in a variety of texts and contexts which will show the inherent instability and elusive nature of many gendered identities.

HEALTH POLICY AND MANAGEMENT

Health Economics

This short course looks at the role of economic principles in understanding behaviour of users and providers of healthcare, in setting priorities and in financing access to care. Key issues to be examined include: the ways in which individuals respond to incentives; how we can best set healthcare priorities by evaluating the costs and effectiveness of healthcare interventions; and what are the advantages and disadvantages of different ways of financing health services. By the end of the course, participants should:

- Understand principles of demand and elasticity as applied to health and healthcare, and the implications for policies on charging for services and health promotion.
- Appreciate options for financing health services, and how different methods affect access to care and performance of providers of care.
- Describe the methods used in economic evaluation of health.

Teaching Dates

This short course is comprised of six three-hour sessions and usually starts in the late autumn. Precise dates would be provided to interested applicants on request.

How to Apply

Interested applicants please contact the Centre of Health Policy and Management, E: mscinhsmtcd.ie. Admission criteria: Applications will be considered from applicants with health service management experience. In addition, applicants should hold a good honours degree in a professional discipline or hold other qualifications deemed appropriate by the course committee. HISTORIES AND HUMANITIES

A History of The World in Sixteen Objects: The Human Story

This series explores The Human Story through the fascinating journeys of 16 objects through history. In 1944, as Paris was on the point of being re-claimed by the Allies, Hitler ordered the Bayeux Tapestry to be transported to Berlin. In 2018, at the height of the Brexit negotiations, President Macron offered to send the Bayeux Tapestry to Britain? Why was an object created in the 11th Century still at the heart of military conflict and cultural diplomacy almost a millennium later? In this series, Trinity's specialists in the Classics, History of Art and Architecture and History bring you the story of 16 objects from the Parthenon (or 'Elgin') Marbles to the Contraceptive Pill.

Objects are always created by a particular culture and at a particular moment in time. As such they tell throw open a window on the society that produced them. But once created, they embark on journeys of their own through history. Objects take on meanings that transcend any one moment in history and they become coveted and contested between the cultures and nations who claim those same objects as their own. In other words, they tell the Human Story.

HISTORIES AND HUMANITIES

Introduction to Irish Family History

This course will run subject to sufficient numbers applying.

Family History isn't just about the past: learning about our origins allows people to get down to the granular details of our ancestors' lives. It enables people to construct their own family narrative and their personal identity. This lecture-only module is taught through a series of eight lectures per term over two terms by Fiona Fitzsimons and Brian Donovan of the Irish Family History Centre (Eneclann). The course covers a broad sweep of Irish history (1650s to 1950s), and is deeply rooted in the sources. The focus is on the records generated by churches, central and local government, enterprises, families and individuals; exploring what section of the Irish population is documented in these records, and how to interpret the evidence. Where record collections were destroyed, do any collateral records survive that contain relevant information?

The fee includes free access to the largest Irish collection online, www.findmypast.ie as well as free access to EPIC and the Irish Family History Centre in CHQ. It will also provide support for all participants to construct a simple family history portfolio over sixteen weeks, including creating a family profile; research to collect documentary evidence; building a family tree; and writing a simple report.

Please note: This is a lecture-only course and does not include access to computers on campus. Participants must have access to their own computers at home for follow up clinics and research.

HISTORIES AND HUMANITIES

Irish Family History: Intermediate Level

Note: You must have completed the introduction module to enrol on this course.

Building on the theoretical foundations of the first year, we begin to move into experiential learning with the option of project work in term 2. We explore the Irish diaspora in all its aspects (military, mercantile, civilian, political and criminal exiles and convicts, adventurers, orphans) anywhere they went, and where sources survive, in Irish and overseas archives. In term two we will turn a spotlight on demographic groups that are more challenging to trace: finding women in the sources; researching Irish Travellers before 1950; and children in care 1840s to 1952. There will be a continuing emphasis on the appropriate methodology to use in family and social history, for a successful research outcome.

Please note: This is a lecture-only course and does not include access to computers on campus. Participants must have access to their own computers at home for follow up clinics and research.

There is a one-week break in each term when no lectures will take place.

HISTORY

Kingship and Warfare: Ireland, c.1000-1318

This module begins with the rise of Brian Boru from modest origins to become Ireland's most famous high king – a spectacular career that ended in the iconic battle of Clontarf in 1014. We explore how Irish society and kingship changed in the aftermath of Clontarf as a result of inter-provincial warfare and the changing role of the church. The second half of the module examines the causes and implications of the English (or Anglo-Norman) invasion of the late 1160s, perhaps the single most formative development in Irish secular affairs.

We study the interaction of cultures in its aftermath and the Irish opposition to English rule that saw the emergence of England's ongoing Irish problem through later centuries. The module closes with the most serious challenge to English power in medieval Ireland: the Scottish invasion (1315-18) led by Edward Bruce, brother of Robert Bruce king of Scots.

Lecturer: Professor Seán Duffy.

HISTORY

Early Christian Ireland c.400-1000

This module deals with what has traditionally been known as Ireland's "Golden Age". Having begun with a brief introduction to prehistoric Ireland, it covers in more detail the period from the arrival of Christianity in the fifth century to the eve of the first Viking attacks at the end of the eighth. The focus is wide-ranging, from early Irish politics and the emergence of a high-kingship to St Patrick and the impact of Christianisation, from Brehon law and the bonds of society to the study of landscape and settlement and early Irish farming, and from Hiberno-Latin and Gaelic literature to the visual art that culminated in the creation of the greatest masterpiece of the Golden Age, the Book of Kells.

HISTORY

Life in Modern Ireland

What do we mean by modern Ireland? Where is modern Ireland and when did it begin? Having broached these questions, this course will investigate what life was like on the island of Ireland across the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Reflecting the increased focus on social and cultural themes in Irish historiography, this course addresses the ways in which historians are tackling a broad range of societal questions. What characterised peoples' family, working and social lives? How did people interact with the apparatus of the state and of religious bodies? How did the evolution of media affect daily life? What forces and ideas shaped the provision of education and welfare? What impact did emigration have on both host and home societies? Key to the course is an understanding of what differentiated experiences; how did gender, class, geography and moral/status hierarchies of different kinds shape individual lives? It will also place the social history of Ireland in comparative and global contexts, in order to question ideas of Irish insularity and exceptionalism.

War and Peace in Modern Europe

In this module, we discuss how Europe was defined and redefined through war, military occupation, civil conflicts, and peace agreements in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Drawing on examples of various—through often interrelated—conflicts, we discuss several major questions: How did international and civil conflicts shape European culture and politics? Why was the twentieth century so violent? How did Europe become divided into “right” and “left,” and “East” and “West”? How are these conflicts and political extremes remembered or forgotten today? Comparing writings and films from across the continent, including Britain, Poland, Spain, Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Germany, we ask how the map of the continent has changed over the past century and whether it is possible to write a single history of Europe.

The Hundred Years War c.1337-1453

The Hundred Years War was in reality a series of wars, on both land and sea, arising primarily from the political and dynastic conflicts of the kings of England and France. It was fought mainly in France but also engulfed Brittany, Scotland, the Iberian kingdoms, the Netherlands and other countries. The first part of the wars is retailed in considerable detail by the contemporary chronicler, Jean Froissart, whose powerful portrait of warfare and political rivalry is set against a backdrop of chivalric endeavour and glory.

Climate in the Ancient and Medieval Worlds

Climate history is a rapidly evolving field of study that aims (1) to reconstruct climate conditions over past centuries and millennia and (2) understand how societies perceived and responded to changing climates and extreme weather. These aims can be best achieved by combining evidence from both natural and human archives. In this module we will examine the historical development of natural archives such as tree-rings and ice-cores and introduce how they can be used to reveal climate variations in the past. We will then examine how this information can be combined with evidence from human archives, including written and archaeological records, to understand the social impacts of climate change and extreme weather. In doing so, we will draw upon case studies of major episodes of climate change from the ancient and medieval eras. These case studies will bring us from ancient Egypt and Babylonia to the ancient American Southwest, and from there to Medieval Ireland, Japan, China and beyond. In these places we will examine the role that explosive volcanic eruptions and rapid changes in the Sun's output of energy played in causing extreme weather that was often accompanied by major human impacts such as famine, disease and conflict, before studying the ways in which ancient and medieval societies attempted to cope with these impacts and adapt to changing climates.

HISTORY

Europe 1500-1800: Power and Culture

This module explores the political and cultural history of Europe during the early modern period. It analyses the efforts of reformers to revive their churches and societies during the sixteenth century.

It then examines the legacy of these reform movements, and considers how cultural divisions as well as competition for power led to prolonged periods of conflict within states and between states during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. This module then charts the emergence during the eighteenth century of new ways of thinking about private life and popular culture and of new ideas about science, society and the self of the Enlightenment. Finally, it explores how these ideas contributed to political crisis following the French Revolution.

HISTORY

Imperialism to Globalism: Europe and the World 1860-1970

Global integration is not only a fact of modern life, but of modern history writing. The interconnectedness of distant societies and states, and powerful forces making for social, cultural and economic interaction have prompted significant scholarly assessment.

This lecture-only module investigates some of the events and processes which have led to a more integrated world order between the mid-nineteenth century and the later twentieth century. For most of that period much of the world was carved up between a number of inter-continental empires centred in Europe. How those empires grew, exerted control and in due course retreated will be the particular focus of the module. But other processes, too, will be considered, not least the integrating force of economic changes and the spreading power of capitalism across the globe. Attention will be given to the evolution of ideologies of imperialism and social Darwinism and to whether or not such ideologies impacted upon changing global power relationships. The module, while broadly chronological in approach, will focus on a wide range of themes in cultural, economic and political history.

HISTORY OF ART

Introduction to the History of Art I

This module offers a survey of art up to the end of seventeenth century, with a focus primarily, although not exclusively, on the Western world. It provides an introduction to the critical analysis of artworks, including painting, mosaic, fine metalwork, manuscripts, and sculpture. The module considers such matters as the iconography of major religious and mythological subjects, issues of style, the functions of works of art, as well as the range of technical methods employed by artists. Art works are considered in the context of influential factors such as historical period, geographic location, inter-cultural influences and the prevailing social, political and religious environments.

HISTORY OF ART

Themes in Irish Art I

This course presents a thematic introduction to Irish art, architecture and design in its broader international context. Subjects will be connected across periods and styles – the focus not on presenting individualised summarised histories but rather considering how aspects of Irish visual history are connected and have evolved over time. Lectures will include the identification of key works from Irish art and architecture, addressing fine, applied and popular artforms. Throughout the course, Irish visual history will be discussed within its artistic, social and cultural contexts and will be cognisant of its place within a broader European perspective.

Lecturer: Dr Angela Griffith and academic staff from the department of History of Art and Architecture.

HISTORY OF ART

Global, Post-Modern and Contemporary Art

This course examines global postmodern and contemporary art from the 1950s to the present day. It will discuss transformations in media, authorship, spectatorship, display, and distribution, along with the globalisation of art through art markets, biennales, artistic networks, and museum franchises. Students will learn about key developments such as Pop, Minimalism, Conceptual Art, Performance, Computer Art, and the Social Turn, with particular emphasis upon how these have been interpreted, expanded, and challenged by artists outside of Western metropolitan centres in, for example, Brazil, China, India, Ireland, Japan, and Oceania. In addition to the themes and contexts of postmodern and contemporary art, students will engage with relevant debates concerning economic and cultural globalisation, transcultural exchange, Indigeneity, and postcolonial politics.

HISTORY OF ART

Painting and Sculpture in the 17th century

This course examines painting and sculpture at European courts in the seventeenth century, paying particular attention to works produced in papal Rome and the courts of Brussels, London, Madrid and Paris. The relationship of artists and their patrons is examined. The development and function of religious art in a Counter-Reformation context is studied in depth in the work of such artists as Caravaggio, Bernini and Rubens. Also included is a detailed account of evolving stylistic debates around the values of classicism during the period.

The use of portraiture and mythology in the projection of courtly and royal ideals will be analysed through the works of Velasquez, among others. Close attention will be paid to the rise of secular art in the seventeenth century in the form of genre, still life, and landscape painting.

Lecturer: Dr Philipp McEvansoneya.

HISTORY OF ART

Arts of Japan

This module will examine cultural highpoints in the arts of Japan from the fourteenth to the nineteenth centuries. Artefacts in all media – painting, ceramics, lacquer and textiles – will be examined in the context of the influence of China on Japan, the creation of the Shogun Court, the rise of the merchant classes and the establishment of the pleasure districts in burgeoning Tokyo. Particular attention will be paid to lacquer ware created for the domestic and European market, the arts associated with the tea ceremony and traditional Japanese theatre. Themes of Japonisme will be explored, particularly in nineteenth century Ireland as Japan emerged after 250 years of self-imposed isolation from the outside world

HISTORY OF ART

Age of Rembrandt and Vermeer

This course will examine some of the wealth of artistic production in the Netherlands in the seventeenth century. The module will be based around the study of Rembrandt and Vermeer as contrasting and complementary figures who represent some of the diverse tendencies of the time. This will entail the study of the development of individual styles and subject matter ranging from history painting to portraiture, landscape and genre painting. The distinct artistic character associated with centres of production, even ones that were geographically close, will be assessed with an emphasis on Amsterdam, Delft and Utrecht. The final block of the module will look at the posthumous reputations of Rembrandt and Vermeer, examining questions of attribution, authenticity, canonicity and rediscovery.

HISTORY OF ART

Islamic Art and Architecture of the Mediterranean

This module considers objects and places from the medieval world that have accumulated multiple meanings over time. Challenging the narrative of a ‘clash of civilisations’ between Islam and Christianity, it focuses on the entangled histories of art and architecture in the medieval Mediterranean, examining through case studies the mediatory role of art, material culture and architecture from the 10th to 15th centuries.

IRISH

Irish Palaeography

This lecture-only course in Irish palaeography will give a taste of Irish palaeography from the oldest sources up to the present day. Selections of important Irish-language manuscripts from the Library of Trinity College Dublin, the Royal Irish Academy and the National Library will be examined, including the famous Book of Leinster and the Book of the Dun Cow but also law manuscripts, annals, genealogies, sagas, poetry collections and so on. The study will take us down to the controversies of the late nineteenth century regarding the choice between cló Gaelach and cló Rómhánach, the 'h' and the 'ponc'. Selections will be read and explained each week in class. No preparation will be required though preparation would enhance the experience. The emphasis will be on transcription and understanding the writing system but translations of texts read will also be provided. The course will extend over a twelve-week term commencing on September 28th, at 6pm, with a one-week break in the term (9th – 16th November 2020). Suitable for new and continuing students.

Course co-ordinator: Damian McManus.

PHYSICS

The following course is particularly aimed at graduates in earth or life sciences that did not take physics as part of their degree and who wish to teach physics up to Junior Certificate level. Successful completion of this course will serve as part-fulfilment, along with a postgraduate qualification in education and an appropriate primary degree, of the Teaching Council's conditions for registration as a post-primary teacher in Ireland. Students registered on a full-time course in Trinity will need the written permission of their Course Director or Head of School to be allowed take this course concurrently with their degree. Other interested people are also welcome to take this course and their attention is drawn to the entry requirements.

Foundation Physics for Earth and Life Sciences

This course is aimed at students who may have no prior background in physics but who would like to learn about how physics affects the world around them, in particular the impact physics has on the earth and life sciences. This course may be of particular interest to those considering a career in post-primary teaching. It carries 10 credits (ECTS). It is a foundation course of 44 hours of lectures or tutorials and 12 hours of experimental laboratory work and includes the following topics: physics of motion (mechanics), biomechanics, physics of hearing and seeing (waves), electricity and magnetism and bioelectricity, radioactivity, nuclear physics and related medical applications, heat, pressure and fluids and some of their biological, geological and medical applications.

Learning Outcomes:

- Demonstrate the application of classical physics within the biomedical and earth sciences.
- Connect the study of wave phenomena and electromagnetism with ultrasound diagnostics and vision.
- Relate basic knowledge of atomic and nuclear physics to radiation diagnostics and therapy, and to geological applications.

- Prepare a brief report, including error analysis, on a simple physical experiment.
- Through homework: (i) to identify the appropriate concepts, principles, and relations that apply to the problem; (ii) to provide a reasonable and appropriate explanation of why they apply; and (iii) to solve physics problems at a foundation level.

Admission Criteria

Applications will be considered from students or graduates of degrees in earth or life sciences or from others who can demonstrate the necessary ability in mathematics e.g. have completed first year mathematics in an undergraduate degree in a technical subject.

How to Apply

Interested applicants should contact the School Manager, School of Physics, Dr. Colm Stephens, T: +353 (1) 896 2024, E: colm.stephens@tcd.ie.

Fee

€1,000 (waged), €500 (unwaged).

Dates

This is a daytime course and there will be two separate intakes of students in the academic year 2020/21. Please indicate when applying which intake/module you are applying for. Applicants should note that confirmed dates for the running and assessment of the course cannot be definitively confirmed at time of going to press due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Module: PYU11F10: Semester 1, 2020/21

The course is expected to begin in September 2020 and be completed by the end of 2020. A three-hour end-of-course examination will be scheduled most likely in early 2021. Application deadline: Monday, 7 September 2020.

Module: PYU11F20: Semester 2, 2020/21

The course is expected to begin in early 2021 and be completed by summer 2021. A three-hour end-of-course examination will be scheduled on completion of the course. Application deadline: Monday, 18 January 2021.

Lecture and Lab Class Times

In each semester lectures/tutorials are likely to take place on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays (Daytime). A number of these lectures may be given remotely and students may participate online. The three-hour practical class will be held on four weeks on either Friday morning or afternoon.

PSYCHOLOGY

Psychology: The Science of Behaviour and Mind

This lecture course will present an overview of contemporary psychology and introduce participants to cutting-edge research undertaken by School of Psychology staff.

Topics include: how babies learn to talk, brain imaging, experimental neuropsychology revelations from the broken brain, using emotions to overcome emotional distress, perceiving our world, early adversity and later development, social neuroscience, childhood sexual abuse and its psychological consequences and many more*. Participants who attend at least seventy-five per cent of the course will receive a certificate of attendance.

* Lecture topics may vary depending upon staff availability in the current year.

Please note: Due to COVID 19 social distancing measures, all lectures in the first semester from October to December 2020 will be delivered online using Zoom. Depending upon Public Health advice, the lectures in the second semester in 2021 will either remain online or will take place in the TCD.

Fees

€180 for eighteen weeks.

A concession rate (€95) is available to second and full time third-level students, unemployed persons and those in receipt of a social welfare pension. Payment and proof of status MUST accompany the application form. This may be, for example, a letter from second/third level institution, proof of receipt of social welfare pension or unemployment benefits.

How to Apply

The application form will be available to download from the Evening Course website www.psychology.tcd.ie/evening-course from the first week in August 2020. Applications in person for 2020-21 courses are temporarily unavailable. You may apply online or by post as follows:

Online: Apply in advance by emailing the completed application form (together with with proof of status if seeking a concession rate) to Lisa McCormack, Evening Course Coordinator at psyeve@tcd.ie. Applicants may pay their fee online using a Credit or Debit Card or via our PayPal Facility available on the Evening Course website (from early August).

Post: Applicants may alternatively post their completed application form (together with a cheque/bank draft/postal order made payable to Trinity College Dublin No. 1 Account) to Lisa McCormack, Psychology Evening Course Coordinator, School of Psychology, Áras an Phiarsaigh, Trinity College Dublin, the University of Dublin, Dublin 2. Please remember to include a copy of your proof of status if seeking a concession rate with your application form.

Term Dates

This course will run for a duration of 18 weeks, commencing in October 2020. First term, commencing Wednesday 14th October 2020 (nine weeks). Second term, commencing Wednesday 1st February 2020 (nine weeks). Please note that it is not possible to join the course for a single term.

Time and Place

Wednesday evenings, 7-8.15pm. In the first semester, lectures will be delivered online using Zoom. Depending upon Public Health advice, the lectures in the second semester in 2021 will either remain online or will take place in the TCD (Venue To Be Confirmed).

RELIGION

From Invasion to Exile: The Ancient Histories of Israel and Judah

This module aims to facilitate students' deeper acquaintance and critical engagement with the narratives from Joshua through 2 Kings. This module offers an opportunity for critical engagement with some of the most famous texts of the Hebrew Bible including those concerned with the Israelite conquest, the stories of the Judges (including Samson), the rise and fall of the kingdoms of Israel and Judah and the careers of royal figures such as David, Solomon, Ahab and Jezebel. Reflection on the historiographical value of these traditions will be facilitated by situating them within the context of the material culture and historiographical traditions of the Ancient Near East, while particular emphasis will be paid to the interface of power and violence within the traditions.

Creaturely Ethics

This module aims to introduce and engage in contemporary scholarly reflection on critical animal studies, posthumanism, and ecotheology. It allows students to engage with theological perspectives on the definitions of “humanity,” “animality,” and “creatureliness.” Students will explore a number of theo-ethical topics in this area from animal conservation to food.

Ethics is written and studied by animals, you and me. Recent questions in ecological ethics swirl around “the question of the human” and “the question of the animal.” Theological and ethical concepts that define human beings as unique, with souls created imago dei, in the image of God with dominion over the planet are critiqued as being morally complicit with species decline, animal suffering, and habitat loss. On a planet undergoing the sixth great wave of animal extinction, this critique is no small matter. We’ll ask how we understand the human in relation to other nonhuman creatures that occupy the planet. We’ll think about animal ethics, the blurry lines between wild and domestic, human and nonhuman, living and extinct, veganism and vegetarianism, human and posthuman. We’ll ask how these conversations cause us to rethink theological understandings of “creatureliness” and “creation” and “kinship.” And we’ll ask how definitions of what it means to be “human” are already entangled in our theo-ethical and ecological concerns.

Researching Religion: Theories and Practice

This module provides a survey of both “classical thinkers” on religion and recent developments in the academic study of religion that combine the study of culture with cognitive, evolutionary and economic studies. Theories are explored on the basis of case studies that enable an understanding of the role of religion in a diversity of historical and contemporary settings.

Throughout the 19th century, religion was a core element of the intellectual history of Europe. Thinking about religion also meant to think about the cultural, economic and political crises of the era. The rising sciences (evolution theory, sociology, psychology, anthropology, archaeology) provided explanations for “religion” as a global phenomenon; and theories of religion reflected questions about what makes a modern society, the relation between “the West” and the World and the place of humans within. Engaging with original texts assesses their impact both as documents of their time and as a starting point for an analytical understanding of religion. While observing the transformations of “religion” as a concept we keep track of how the theories responded to the problems of their time, and to their historical, philosophical and social contexts which shape our understanding of religion until today.

Cosmology, Religion and Science

Cosmology traces developments in the mythological and natural-scientific study of the universe in its complex history. This module aims to first present these developments as they have been interpreted and received from biblical, theological and philosophical perspectives and then trace how they conflicted and/or converged with cosmologies from the natural sciences particularly since the 16th century.

This module will investigate and compare conceptions of the origins and ends of the world, as they have been formulated in the Bible, in the histories of theological and philosophical thinking and in natural science, as a key aspect of the religion-science debate. It will first examine the different eras and contexts of biblical texts and discuss what the theological concept of creatio ex nihilo sought to defend in relation to rival philosophies (e.g. Greek and Gnostic thinking). It will then compare these stories of origin with models of creation, exploring their intentions, scope and limits (theism, deism, pantheism, panentheism). The third part will examine the challenge that natural-scientific insights and worldviews have constituted for these concepts of creation: the shift from geo- to helio-centrism, entropy and thermodynamics, the emergent universe models (teleology, contingency) and evolutionary theory in biology. The different approaches will be illustrated with key texts from philosophical and theological authors and with cases from the natural and environmental sciences.

Classical Thinkers on Religion

This course explores “classical” theories of religion, and how in early psychology, anthropology, the study of religion and sociology religion became a crystal point of reflection.

Thinking about religion has been an important element of the intellectual history of European modernity, especially when those changes we call modernisation and secularisation began to impact on political life and people's daily experience. Theorizing religion also meant to think about societies and power, about culture and what makes a human being human, and thinkers such as Karl Marx, Max Weber, Emile Durkheim, Edward B. Tylor or Jane Harrison lead the way into an understanding of religion from a cultural and evolutionary point of view.

Applying a “double reading” of original sources, the module explores the social and political contexts of these thinkers, and the worldviews they responded to; at the same time, we will understand how cultural sciences develop and how knowing the early foundations of thinking about religion provides us with an understanding of both the role of religion today, and the debates and challenges that are related to it.

THE LIR ACADEMY

Introduction to Acting

The Lir Academy's Introduction to Acting course is perfect for those who are both inquisitive about a future career in acting and those who simply want to challenge themselves by stretching their creative muscles. Led by some of The Lir Academy's core teachers, this workshop-based evening course is taught over 10 weeks. Each two-and-a-half-hour session consists of a physical warm-up followed by a voice or movement/improvisation class and culminates with a 90-minute acting workshop. The course will cover key elements of actor training including Voice, Movement and Improvisation, but will also introduce participants to classical and contemporary play texts, using both scenes and monologues to hone your craft. These workshops act as both a taste of drama school training and as a broad and basic introduction to the craft of acting.

Fee

Date, Time and Place

Tuesday evenings, 7pm – 9pm at The Lir Academy, Pearse Street at Grand Canal Quay, Dublin 2. This course runs at least three times during the year, September, January and April. Please check the website for further dates.
