2. Introduction

Welcome to Trinity College and to the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare. This handbook is intended as a guide to various aspects of the course, and it sets out the organisational framework of the course as well as its content. However, it should be stressed that there is space within the design for the participants to address other issues that may emerge during the course and there will be opportunities to explore these during the year.

The reading lists included are intended to provide references to research and literature on the different subjects. They are designed to be a long term as well as short-term resource. We would also recommend that you make use of the wide range of materials available online through the TCD library, and that you regularly consult the contents of online journals. The university is also a full member of the North South Child Protection Hub which means that registered students have full access to the site.

We hope you find the year with us on the course both stimulating and enjoyable.

Stephanie Holt (Course Director).
Eimear Berry, James Forbes, Robbie Gilligan, Siobhan Greene, Paul Sargent, Siobhan Young, Nicola O’Sullivan (Course Tutors).
Rebecca Brady (Executive Officer).
3. Student Support Services

Students can see a full range of the services available to them at www.tcd.ie/students/supports-services/. This includes library services, careers advisory services and more. Four key student services for online postgraduate students are the Postgraduate Advisory Service, Student Learning and Development, Trinity Online Services and the Library. More detailed information about student services can be found here.

Postgraduate Advisory Service
The Postgraduate Advisory Service (PAS) is a unique and confidential service available to all registered postgraduate students in Trinity College. It offers a comprehensive range of academic, pastoral and professional supports dedicated to enhancing your student experience. The Postgraduate Advisory Service is led by the Postgraduate Support Officer who provides frontline support for all Postgraduate students in Trinity. The Postgrad Support Officer will act as your first point of contact and a source of support and guidance regardless of what stage of Postgraduate study you are at. In addition, each Faculty has three members of Academic Staff appointed as Postgraduate Advisors who you can be referred to by the Postgrad Support Officer for extra assistance as needed.

The PAS exists to ensure that all Postgrad students have a contact point who they can turn to for support and information on college services and academic issues arising. Representation assistance to Postgrad students is offered in the area of discipline and/or academic appeals arising out of examinations or thesis submission, supervisory issues, general information of Postgrad student life and many others. All queries will be treated with confidentiality. For more information on PAS please see their website.

Student Learning and Development
Student Learning and Development (SLD) are here to help you achieve your academic potential while studying in Trinity. They have a range of online resources for postgraduate students. For more information on SLD please see their website.
Support Provision for Students with Disabilities
Trinity has adopted a Reasonable Accommodation Policy that outlines how supports are implemented in Trinity. Student seeking reasonable accommodation whilst studying in Trinity must apply for reasonable accommodations with the Disability Service in their student portal my.tcd.ie. Based on appropriate evidence of a disability and information obtained from the student on the impact of their disability and their academic course requirements, the Disability Staff member will identify supports designed to meet the student’s disability support needs. Following the Needs Assessment, the student’s Disability Officer prepares an Individual Learning Educational Needs Summary (LENS) detailing the Reasonable Accommodations to be implemented. The information outlined in the LENS is communicated to the relevant School via the student record in SITS.

Student responsibilities for departmental assessments/course tests
- Students are required to initiate contact with the School/Department and request reasonable accommodations as per their LENS report, or email received following their needs assessment for particular assessments for School/ Department administered assessment. Students are advised to make contact at least two weeks prior to the assessment date to enable adjustments to be implemented.

Trinity Online Services
Trinity Online Services are responsible for the quality and the delivery of online content. They will also be the point of contact for resolving any issues relating to the online environment that arise throughout the running of the course. Issues that can arise include access to material, submission of assignments etc. The preferred way of contacting Trinity Online for issues regarding the use of the online learning environment is through the discussion forum dedicated for this purpose in SS760 Course Information module on Blackboard. They can also be contacted at helponed@tcd.ie. These channels are monitored regularly during College business hours.
Library
The Library's history dates back to the establishment of the College in 1592 and it is the largest library in Ireland. Today it has over 6 million printed volumes with extensive collections of journals, manuscripts, maps and music reflecting over 400 years of academic development. The most famous of its manuscripts, the Book of Kells and the Book of Durrow, were presented by Henry Jones, Bishop of Meath and former vice-chancellor of the University, in the 1660s. The Library was endowed with Legal Deposit privilege in 1801 and continues to receive copies of material published in the United Kingdom and Ireland.

The Library supports the learning and research needs across all disciplines of the College; it is a major research library of international repute; it provides services to a wide range of external users and institutions. The subject librarian for the School of Social Work and Social Policy is Siobhan Dunne.

The majority of journals listed in the various course outlines are now available online to registered students and there will be a training session during Week 1 which will show you how to access the online databases and make the best use of the technical resources available. Students will be expected to make extensive use of online resources available. Students will be expected to make extensive use of online journals.

Off Campus Access
Access is available to licensed electronic resources (books, databases and journals) to registered students and staff, irrespective of where they are located. Off campus access is not available for UK electronic legal deposit, eLD (UK), material.

College members linking to an electronic resource from outside Trinity College Dublin campus locations will select a resource from Stella Search. When they click on the link to the resource, they will be directed to a secure login page to authenticate with their College username and network login password. Please see the website for more information here.

Graduate Studies
The Graduate Studies Office offers centralised information on admissions, assessment, progression and funding. For more information about their services please see their website.
Co-Curricular Activities
Central Societies Committee
The Central Societies Committee (CSC) is the sole body on campus with the power to grant recognition to societies. As the governing body of societies, the CSC represents their interests in dealings with College authorities. More information about College Societies and the CSC can be found at here.

Dublin University Central Athletic Club
Dublin University Central Athletic Club (DUCAC) is the governing body for Sport Clubs at Trinity. DUCAC is responsible for the overall administration of DU Sports Clubs in cooperation with Club Officers and for their interests and development in Trinity. More information about DUCAC can be found here.

TCD Graduate Student Union
The Graduate Students’ Union (GSU) is an independent body which represent all postgraduate students in Trinity. Every postgraduate student is automatically a full member of the GSU upon entering their course. The GSU is available to assist you with academic and welfare issues and provides you with facilities including the 1937 Postgraduate Reading Room and the Postgraduate Common Room. They also schedule social events for postgraduate students. More information about the GSU can be found here.

IT Services
IT Services is responsible for the planning, delivery and support of the University’s main computing facilities. This includes the University’s network systems, web infrastructure, email and calendaring, management services, research IT and student computing facilities. Students are provided with full IT support via the IT Service Desk and a wide range of IT training is also available either online or face to face. More information about the supports and services provided by IT Services can be found on their website.
4. Emergency Procedures

Security Services provide a 24-hour service to the college community, 365 days a year. They are the liaison to the Fire, Garda and Ambulance services and all staff and students are advised to always telephone extension 1999 (+353 1 869 1999) in case of emergency.

Should you require any emergency or rescue services on campus, you must contact Security Services. This includes chemical spills, personal injury or first aid assistance.

It is recommended that all students save at least one emergency contact in their phone under ICE (In Case of Emergency).

For information on College Health and Safety please see the Estates and Facilities website.

5. Course Communication

On all course related matters, we will communicate with you primarily using your TCD email account. From time to time other services in college may use your telephone number or postal address. You can communicate with us using email or telephone. We will endeavour to reply to your communication promptly. Unless otherwise advised you can expect staff to respond to queries in normal business hours i.e. 9.00am – 4.00pm, Monday to Friday.
6. Key Locations

Programme Office

The School Office is located in Room 3063, The Arts Building, Trinity College Dublin. The opening hours are Monday to Friday 09:00-13:00 and 14:00-16:00. Due to the impact of COVID-19 and the associated government guidelines and restrictions, staff may not be available in the office. Office hours will be kept on Microsoft Teams if a face-to-face meeting is requested instead.

Online Learning Environment

Blackboard Learn, which is located at mymodule.tcd.ie, is the College’s Virtual Learning Environment (VLE). You can use this to access lecture notes, online assignments and other activities through Blackboard. More information about Blackboard is available at https://www.tcd.ie/CAPSL/resources/blackboard/.

Berkley, Lecky, Ussher (BLU) Library

The BLU Library can be accessed through the second floor of the Arts Building or from the Ussher Podium. Information about the opening hours is available at https://www.tcd.ie/library/opening-hours/berkeley-lecky-ussher/.

Academic Registry

The mission of the Academic Registry is to provide key centralised administrative services to students and staff supporting the best possible Trinity experience. AR provides administrative support during a student’s time in the University. Their vision is to be an integrated, flexible team with a professional service ethos supporting all stages of the student lifecycle. More information about the Academic Registry can be found on their website.
The principal aim of the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare is to enable practitioners and their employing organisations to meet the requirements of the Child Care Act 1991, the Children Act 2001, the Children and Families Relationship Act 2015 and the Children First Act 2015, by offering an enhanced knowledge base. It does this in a multi-disciplinary and inter-agency context, and has a long-term aim to enhance co-operation and co-ordination by giving students a strong sense of the roles, responsibilities, skills and contributions of the entire child protection and welfare network. In line with the principles underpinning current child care legislation and policy, the course broadly reflects a number of practice principles such as; the paramountcy of child welfare, the benefits of early and sustained intervention, family support, the use of evidence to inform practice, the rights of children and the fullest participation possible of children and families in the child protection and welfare process. More specifically, the course is underpinned by three primary driving principles and philosophies of practice, as follows:

- Relationship Based Practice: Relation Based Practice (RBP) is based on the idea that positive change is best achieved in the context of relationship, wherein the professional seeks to achieve an element of reciprocity and friendship with clients, even in situations where conflict over shared understandings may be evident. While the roots of RBP lie in a questioning of the limitations of reason in producing good results in encounters between professionals and clients, there is, in fact, no absolute opposition between technical/rational and emotive/relational approaches to professional practices with families and children. Rather the evidence suggests that effective outcomes for clients represent a combination of research informed programmes delivered by professionals who are perceived by clients to be warm, engaged, concerned and empathetic in their approach. RBP challenges professionals to acknowledge the humanity of others, leading to an emotional as well as to an intellectual understanding of the challenges faced by clients in the context of their life histories. In Ireland an example of this type of approach may be found in the Signs of Safety programme which seeks to engage clients in developing a shared understanding of and response to, concerns regarding the welfare of children.
• Evidence Informed Practice: It is perfectly possible for good-hearted, well-trained, well-meaning staff, employing the most promising approaches and theories available to them, to make no difference at all to, or even worsen, the condition of those they are seeking to help. Essentially, using evidence competently in child protection and child welfare is a form of accurate tuning in to the needs of service users and begs the questions: ‘how can I know that what I am going to do will make a difference and how can I know that I have made a difference?’ Evidence informed practice is therefore the conscientious, explicit and judicious use of known best practice in assessment, planning, intervention, review and evaluation in pursuit of achievable outcomes. More than that, evidence informed practice should be understood as leaving ample room for the constructive and imaginative judgement and knowledge by practitioners and service users who must be in constant interaction and dialogue with one another for most interventions to succeed. By stressing the importance of evidence in assessment, we are countering any propensity to human bias and error when constructing formulations on risk, need and required resources in child protection and child welfare.

• Child Centred Practice: Each child is a unique individual, each is a person in their own right, and each is entitled to full human rights. Nothing too startling or controversial in those statements, yet acting in child centred ways in support of these principles may not be so easy in practice for frontline professionals. Children may share certain characteristics, but each has their own their lived experience. Each child has a distinctive life journey, their own unique story. Children who are siblings may have more in common, but even they retain their individuality and differences. The challenge for those working with children face to face is fundamentally to respect and uncover that individuality, and their set of experiences. Achieving this respect and insight is essential to reaching the right conclusions, making the right decisions for and with this child – decisions that fit with the real-life circumstances and concerns of this child. It is also important to know about children in general and to respect their collective status, but in working with a given child, a key issue is knowing how this child is, and how they are different. Central to understanding each child is respecting the significance of their history and circumstances. These frame the context - the web of relationships and influences (positive and negative) that plays out in their lives

Being child centred means taking children seriously, not just children in general, but also this child
It means having a meaningful rapport with a child and a grasp of their lived experience and reality. It also means having a connection with, and awareness of, key adults and peers in their lives. It means having a life course perspective for each child, recognising the importance not only of what is happening now, but also how the past impinges, and how the child’s future potential remains waiting to be realised. Being child centred means being hopeful about, and working for, the possibility of a better future for this and every child. Being child centred at a policy level means recognising the importance of evidence about children’s experience and outcomes, and especially the importance of inter-sectionalism – how gender, ethnicity, disability and such cross cutting factors impact on children individually and shape their specific needs individually and collectively. It means formulating and monitoring policy with the child in mind.

In delivering on the principles outlined above, the course offers critical perspectives on current policies and practices in relation to child care issues, and adopts a clear policy of non-discrimination on grounds of class, culture, status or gender. It will keep students abreast of the changes and offer opportunities for discussion and debate during the upcoming development of a new child protection and welfare agency in Ireland and the concurrent implementation of reforms in the sector.

Since its inception, the course has been modified to take cognisance of wider changes in the child care field. In addition, it has addressed the implications and recommendations of Irish child abuse inquiries as well as those from other jurisdictions. In line with the aspiration of the Government to promote community based family support and early intervention, the course aims to promote an ecological perspective on the assessment of the needs of children and families.

Course Structure & Teaching Methods

The Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare spans one academic year, during which students spend nine weeks part-time in the university. Full attendance at all classes is compulsory. Absence is excused only on medical certification*, and attendance lists will be kept. The award of Diploma will be made only on the basis of full attendance. *Absence of greater than fifteen days on medical certification will require the student to apply to the Dean of Graduate Studies for permission
Important information on COVID-19 restrictions and modes of teaching and learning

In order to offer taught programmes in line with government health and safety advice, teaching and learning in Semester 1 for your programme will follow a blended model that combines online and in-person elements to be attended on campus. This blended model will include offering online lectures for larger class groupings, as well as in-person classes for smaller groups: the differing modes of teaching and learning for particular modules are determined by your home School. Information on the modes of teaching and learning in Semester 2 will be available closer to the time.

Trinity will be as flexible as possible in facilitating late arrivals due to travel restrictions, visa delays, and other challenges arising from the COVID-19 pandemic. If you expect to arrive later than 28th September, please alert your course coordinator as early as possible.

For those students not currently in Ireland, according to current Government health and safety guidelines, please note that these students are expected to allow for a 14-day period of restricted movement after arrival and prior to commencement of their studies, and therefore should factor this into their travel plans.

For those students currently on the island of Ireland, we remind you of the Irish Government’s advice that all non-essential overseas travel should be avoided. If you do travel overseas, you are expected to restrict your movements for 14 days immediately from your return, during which time you will not be permitted to come to any Trinity campus. Therefore, as you are required to be available to attend College from the beginning of the new teaching year on 28 September, please ensure you do not return from travel overseas any later than 13 September.

Teaching takes place primarily on campus in ‘face to face’ mode, with some live streaming of lecturers into the classroom and a small number of fully online lecturers towards the end of the academic year. In line with Government Health and Safety Advice, students and lecturers are required to wear masks or visors and to complete a Health Check at the start of each teaching week.
While teaching methods and student engagement primarily takes place in the traditional face to face manner, it is important to note that for online classes, the online environment lacks the face-to-face element of regular discussions and interactions, where people can rely on body language and tone of voice to capture the full meaning. In the online environment, without these visual cues, miscommunications and misunderstandings can occur and some extra care when interacting can be warranted. Netiquette has slowly developed into an informal standard that helps transmit tone and emphasis when online and helps to address many of these communication issues.

Keeping the few simple rules of netiquette in mind will help ensure that what you say will be better understood by those listening and reading.

1. Typing in ‘all caps’ (all upper case letters) denotes anger when communicating online. A message delivered in all caps is likely to be read as if sent in an aggressive tone. When possible, refrain from using all caps, even when emphasising certain words in sentences (italics may be used as an alternative for emphasis).

2. Emoticons, also known as emojis, are commonly used in online communication to transmit the tone in which the message was sent. Emoticons/emojis can take the form of a series of characters or be little images of faces which aid in the transmission of the sender’s facial expression when communicating. For example:
   - ‘I got a great result in my first assignment. Yay! ☺’
   - ‘I am unable to attend this evening due to work commitments, sorry. :-(‘

   These can be more useful than it first seems to ensure messages are received in the spirit in which they were sent.

3. Be careful when using irony and sarcasm online. This can be easily misinterpreted by those receiving your message.

4. Conduct debates and discussions in a respectful manner. Do not attempt to provoke personal debates and remember that it’s better to reply when calm should you ever feel provoked. If you feel angry it is often best to take a moment to think about what you are posting online. Keep all messages on the topic and aim never to get personal. Healthy disagreement can be very informative and lead to key learning but be constructive in any criticism you give and always aim to be respectful.
Course Content
The course consists of six modules; Child Protection Perspectives and Practices, Interventions with Children and Families, Law, Contemporary Issues, Child Development and Research Methods. Each of the modules is comprised of courses on relevant topics; teaching and learning is through the media of lectures, seminars, workshops, online learning, demonstrations, class presentations and study time consisting of reading, researching, data collection and preparing assignments. The Postgraduate Diploma carries 60 ECTs (See Appendix C for a breakdown of ECTs).

Students are encouraged to develop research skills, and are now required to make formal presentations of their project work, in order to promote the dissemination of their course work amongst colleagues in their own agencies. Opportunities for debate and discussion are a core component of the course.

Learning Outcomes
Upon completion of the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare, successful candidates should be able to demonstrate:

1. That they can apply their knowledge and comprehension, their critical awareness and problem solving abilities, within the context of research, or in the development of professional skills, in broader or multidisciplinary areas related to their fields of study;
2. The ability to meet the requirements of the Child Care Act 1991, the Children Act 2001, the Children First Act 2015, the Children and Family Relationships Act and related legislation through increased knowledge of child care law;
3. An increased base of theoretical and applied knowledge about child abuse;
4. The ability to critically analyse current child protection and welfare policies and practices;
5. A clear understanding of the roles, responsibilities, skills and contributions of the entire child protection and welfare network;
6. An understanding of the impact of negative social factors on parental capacity and child development;
7. The ability to complete a clearly written innovative practice project that demonstrates an integration of new learning to the student’s work within his or her organization.

Her teaching areas currently include Families and Social Policy, Introduction to Social Policy and Research Methods. She has a strong track record of applied policy research including for the HSE Crisis Pregnancy Programme/Crisis Pregnancy Agency, the Equality Authority and the Combat Poverty Agency. She co-authored, with Evelyn Mahon and Lucy Dillon Women and Crisis Pregnancy published by Government Publications in 1998. Academic publications include lead authored articles in Gender & Society (Women (Re)Negotiating Care across Family Generations: Intersections of Gender and Socioeconomic Status. 28, (5) 729-751, 2014.) and Qualitative Research (Emergent Reconstruction’ in Grounded Theory: Learning from Team Based Interview Research. 15, (1) 39-56, 2015). She co-edited (with Aideen Quilty and Sinead Kennedy) The Abortion Papers Ireland Volume Two published by Cork University Press in 2015. An interest in innovative translation of applied policy research led to a translation of her PhD research with women concealing pregnancy into an Opera performance in collaboration with colleagues in Music and English entitled ‘The Pregnant Box’. Her current research focuses on women’s experiences of using the Irish abortion care services introduced in January 2019.

Dr Susan Flynn
Susan is an Asst. Professor in the School of Social Work & Social Policy, Trinity College Dublin. She holds particular research interests in the areas of disability and child protection, critical disability studies, and disability in the context of austerity and poverty. She has publications in a range of high ranking journals such as Disability & Society and the British Journal of Social Work. Her practice experience spans a range of cognate roles predominately centring around child protection and welfare social work and residential social care practice. She is presently conducting mixed method quantitative and qualitative research on disability and statutory child protection in the Republic of Ireland.

Dr Nicola Carr
Dr Nicola Carr is an Associate Professor in Criminology at the University of Nottingham. Her research interests intersect criminal justice and child protection and welfare. She has carried out a wide range of research including studies exploring the over-representation of children in care in the justice system, youth homelessness and young people’s experiences of the justice system. She is the editor of the Probation Journal. Prior to becoming an academic Nicola worked as a probation officer in adult services and in youth offending teams in London. She is a graduate of the PG Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare at Trinity College Dublin.

Dr Louise Caffrey
Dr. Louise Caffrey is an Assistant Professor Social Policy in the School of Social Work & Social Policy, Trinity College Dublin. Substantively, Louise's published research focuses on the challenges organisational complexity presents for policy implementation, organisational safety, interprofessional working and evaluation of services. Her work theorises service-user engagement and evidences the intended and unintended consequences of public management approaches. Louise's research has investigated these issues in both Child and Family Services and Health Services. Louise has published in the areas of child protection, child contact, inter-professional working, domestic violence, health research systems, welfare to work policy, public management and gender equity initiatives. Methodologically Louise specialize in complexity-focused methodologies, including systems approaches and Realist Evaluation. Louise is currently leading on a Realist Synthesis of Signs of Safety.

The European Credit Transfer and Accumulation System (ECTS) is an academic credit system based on the estimated student workload required to achieve the objectives of a module or programme of study. It is designed to enable academic recognition for periods of study, to facilitate student mobility and credit accumulation and transfer. The ECTS is the recommended credit system for higher education in Ireland and across the European Higher Education Area.
The ECTS weighting for a module is a measure of the student input or workload required for that module, based on factors such as the number of contact hours, the number and length of written or verbally presented assessment exercises, class preparation and private study time, laboratory classes, examinations, clinical attendance, professional training placements, and so on as appropriate. There is no intrinsic relationship between the credit volume of a module and its level of difficulty.

The European norm for full-time study over one academic year is 60 credits. 1 credit represents 20-25 hours estimated student input, so a 10-credit module will be designed to require 200-250 hours of student input including class contact time, assessments and examinations.

ECTS credits are awarded to a student only upon successful completion of the programme year. Progression from one year to the next is determined by the programme regulations. Students who fail a year of their programme will not obtain credit for that year even if they have passed certain components. Exceptions to this rule are one-year and part-year visiting students, who are awarded credit for individual modules successfully completed.
Module SS7130 Child Protection: Perspectives and Practice

9.1 SS7130 Child Protection: Perspectives and Practice

Lecturers: Trevor Spratt, Stephanie Holt, Mary Kelleher, James Forbes, Susan Flynn, Louise Caffrey.

This module consists of classes on child protection policy and practices. Topics covered include; child protection policy and practice, and the impact on children’s safety and welfare of domestic violence, parental drug misuse, alcohol misuse, mental health problems, disability and issues concerning the disclosure, assessment and treatment of child sexual abuse. It also addresses broader issues regarding the child protection and system and the need for robust inter-agency and inter-disciplinary practices, underpinned by an empirical research foundation.

On completion of this module, students should be able to demonstrate:

❖ A critical understanding of child protection policy
❖ Knowledge of the full range of national procedures and protocols in respect of vulnerable and at-risk children
❖ In-depth knowledge of the range of Irish children’s services including innovative programmes
❖ An increased evidence base on the impact of parental factors on the welfare of children
❖ The ability to write an essay demonstrating of new learning on child protection practices and perspectives

9.1.1 Child Protection and Practices

Lecturers: Trevor Spratt, Stan Houston

These lectures address the challenges involved in identifying and responding to the needs of children. The course begins with an outline of the historical antecedents to today’s child protection and welfare system, including definitional issues, historical and cultural contexts and the contemporary influences of politics/media and public opinion on current work with children and families. Sessions are devoted to child neglect, child physical abuse and child sexual abuse. We further draw attention to the contemporary developments in research in child protection and how these may inform interventions, including assessment of parenting and decision-making.

Recommended Reading
Apart from specialised lists, the reading list below consists mainly of published texts and policy reports. Most peer reviewed child protection research is published in the form of journal articles. It is expected that students will identify and source peer reviewed journal articles themselves through the library databases. Some materials, as well as handouts from lectures will be uploaded to Blackboard. To access Blackboard, type http://mymodule.tcd.ie, log in with your username and password

As well as conducting key word searches, students are advised to regularly review the websites of relevant journals such as:

❖ Child and Family Social Work (Wiley-Blackwell)
❖ Child Abuse Review (Wiley Blackwell)
❖ Critical Social Policy (Sage)
❖ Child Abuse and Neglect (Elsevier)
❖ Child Care in Practice (Routledge)
❖ Children and Youth Services Review (Elsevier)
❖ British Journal of Social Work (Oxford University Press)
❖ Irish Journal of Family Law (Round Hall)

9.1.2 The Impact of Domestic Violence on Children
Lecturer: Stephanie Holt

This module consists of five sessions, beginning with an overview of domestic violence and abuse, including an examination of the prevalence, dynamics and different forms of violence and relationships in which it occurs. While the impact of this experience on all those who live with violence is explored (children, women and men), the second session will focus specifically on the child’s experience, taking a systemic and child centred approach to understanding impact and informing practice responses in a holistic and community based setting. The impact of domestic abuse on parenting (both mothering and fathering) are critiqued in the third session while the particular challenges and concerns for child protection and welfare in the context of post-separation contact are explored in the fourth session. Finally, the fifth session highlights the relevance of domestic abuse for intimate partner homicide. The issues and dilemmas facing child protection and welfare practitioners in responding to these complex issues, with a particular focus on Coercive Control, will be explored throughout the five sessions.

On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:
1. Articulate a theoretical understanding of the prevalence, dynamics and nature of domestic violence and abuse;
2. Understand the relevance of domestic and domestic violence and abuse for child protection and welfare practice;
3. Appreciate the issues and debates child protection and welfare practitioners encounter when responding to domestic and abuse;
4. Describe the elements of good practice when responding to domestic and abuse.

Aims:
❖ To look at the debates and controversies surrounding the labelling or conceptualisation of drinking problems in diagnostic systems
❖ To explore the precise mechanisms whereby parental drinking problems can have a negative impact on children
❖ To identify the capacity for generic or non-specialist human service professionals to work directly with problem drinkers – as opposed to referring such clients to specialist alcohol services

9.1.4 Parental Mental Health and the Family
Lecturer: Dr. Mary Kelleher

This course consists of three seminars as follows:

Seminar 1: Mental Health and Families.

Aims:
- To examine models of understanding mental health and contemporary intervention approaches.
- To examine the current legal and policy context to mental health care provision in Ireland.
- To critically analyse theoretical perspectives on parenting, attachment and mental health and how these impact on contemporary approaches to service delivery for families.

Seminar Two: Parental Mental Health Difficulties.

Aims:
- To review the current knowledge base regarding the prevalence, nature and impact of parental mental health difficulties on the whole family.
- To consider the experience of parents attending mental health services – Service User Input.
- To consider approaches to assessing the needs of families experiencing parental mental health difficulties.
- To examine contemporary approaches to assessment and management of risk to children in this context.

Seminar 3: Supporting Families Effectively

Aims:
- To critically review current International best practice guidelines in this area.
- To examine the challenges to effective interdisciplinary work and how these can addressed.
- To critically examine some contemporary Irish practice models for supporting families in the context of parental health mental difficulties - Practitioner input.

Module SS7131: Interventions with Children and Families

9.2.1 Family Support and Early Interventions
Lecturers: Robbie Gilligan, Fergal Landy, Carmel Devaney and Tara Kelly

On completion of this module, students should be able to demonstrate:
❖ A critical understanding of the theory underpinning early intervention and family support services
❖ The ability to use a strengths-based approach which enhances a family’s capacity to provide emotional, psychological and physical care and nurturance to their children
❖ A grasp of some of the tools necessary for effective family support
❖ An awareness of some of the emerging family concerns presenting to child and family welfare practitioners

Social Support and Social Inclusion (Robbie Gilligan)

In this sequence, I aim to help students explore notions of support and the forms it may take. Support may involve relationships, attitudes and activities. Three aspects of support will be examined: support as presence, perceived support, and enacted support. There is often a gap between what is intended and what is experienced. Support comes from many sources. One key challenge is whether people can actually feel able to access support that is available. This highlights the need to think about barriers to accessing support - when it is available. Issues addressed will include work with adolescents, with migrant and ethnic minority families, with families in relation to disability. Students will be encouraged to reflect on support work using different lenses, including resilience, recognition theory and the potential ecology of support. They will also be encouraged to look at family and social support issues from the perspective of the child and young person

9.2.2 Focusing on Youth Justice: BALANCING RESPONSES TO DEEDS AND NEEDS
Nicola Carr

The requirement for separate treatment of children and young people in the criminal justice and child protection and welfare systems has been a long-standing area of policy and practice debate. In Ireland children and young people are deemed criminally responsible from age 12 (and in some cases from age 10) and as such can be prosecuted in the criminal justice system. However, in most cases children who offend are dealt with by means of diversion from formal court processing through the Garda Youth Diversion Programme. The rationale for this scheme is that diversion from the criminal justice system lessens the potentially harmful effects of labelling a young person as an offender. The institutional divisions between justice and welfare are evident in the fact that separate primary legislation governs both areas (Children Act, 2001 and the Child Care Act, 1991). However, extensive research demonstrates that there are significant overlaps between children who require interventions in the child protection system on the basis of needs and those who come into contact with the criminal justice system on the basis of deeds. This session will provide an overview of current approaches in youth justice and consider the Irish system with reference to international trends and comparisons. It will also explore the continued tensions between welfare and justice and the research evidence in this area.

Key reading:

SESSION 2: Older Young People with Multiple Needs: The Complexity Challenge.

Nicola Carr

The structures of child protection and welfare system as well as operational guidelines and prioritise interventions based on risk and need. In practice and at a discursive level the child protection system operates an age-graded approach, with infants and younger children viewed as more vulnerable than older children and teenagers. This means that the needs and vulnerabilities of this group are often overlooked, as various inquiries including a series of reports published by the National Review Panel on the adversities experienced by older young people attest. This session will explore some of the challenges of meeting the needs of older young people, particularly when they present with multiple complex needs including mental health difficulties, substance misuse and involvement in offending. Insights from national and international research will be drawn upon to explore current debates and examples of best practice.

9.2.3 Children, Diversity and Minority Status

Lecturer: Robbie Gilligan

This module covers some of the experiences of children from minority backgrounds arising from their minority status. The course will explore the issues related to children and diversity with special reference to the experiences of children of ethnic minority community, children of migrants and children with disabilities. Key concepts will include social status, social stigma and social exclusion. The module will draw on Irish and international evidence.

Module SS7132: The Law of Child Protection and Welfare

Lecturer: Sonya Bruen, Partner (Mason Hayes & Curran Solicitors), NQSW

On completion of this module, students should be able to;

- Demonstrate a clear understanding of the domestic and international legislative framework for Child Protection practice in Ireland
- Apply key legal principles of Child Protection Practice in a wide range of settings
- Explore the statutory roles in Child Protection and Welfare settings and the responsibilities of TUSLA Child and Family Agency and other agencies in Public Law proceedings
- Consider the inherent difficulty of balancing parent’s rights and children’s rights in Public Law matters
- Have a good understanding of fair procedures for parents and families, including issues such as informed consent and the rights of parents to access legal representation
- Apply key principles for evidence on Child Care Proceedings, including hearsay, cross-examination and reports

This course will be delivered in a series of workshops that focus on key legal issues for Child Protection Practitioners and case examples from practice. The course will examine the practical application of the Child Care Act 1991 and other relevant legislation in a multi-disciplinary context.

Topics will include the following – one topic per week

1. Children’s and Parental rights in Child Protection Practice in Ireland
   - Impact of United Nations Convention on Rights of the Child (UNCRC) & European Convention of Human Rights (ECHR) on children’s and parental rights in Ireland
   - Voice of the child in court proceedings
   - State intervention in families; fair proceedings and proportionality

Module SS7133: Contemporary Issues
Lecturers: various contributors from the policy sector

Learning outcomes: Students who successfully complete this module should be able to demonstrate:

❖ Knowledge about policy initiatives, programmes and innovative projects in different sectors of children’s services
❖ An understanding of how policy responses are devised and developed in response to child protection and welfare issues and high profile incidents ❖ Ability to critically evaluate policy in terms of the evidence base and the political context in which it is developed
❖ An understanding of the methods for evaluating and reviewing policy
❖ An understanding of theoretical perspectives on youth and the relevance of these to social policy

Lecturer: Various contributors

This module deals with contemporary strategies, programmes and specific pieces of legislation in Irish child care. It will be delivered by personnel involved in the design and delivery of policy. The course will highlight the interface between research, politics and policy making, and outline the fundamental principles and aims of a number of initiatives, including:

❖ Policy Development in the Department of Children and Youth Affairs
❖ Policy and strategy in Tusla: Child and Family Agency
❖ The operationalisation of children’s rights in Ireland
❖ The role of inquiry reports in child protection & welfare
❖ Contemporary issues for Young People in Care
❖ Standards and regulation in respect of child care and child protection
❖ The Children’s Ombudsman
❖ Inter-agency working in child protection
❖ Development of Child Protection and Welfare policy for An Garda Siochana
❖ HSE/Tusla Hidden Harm Initiative
❖ Coercive Control: Law, Policy & Practice

9.5 Module SS7134: Child Development and its Implications for the Welfare and Safety of Children
Lecturers: Patricia O'Connell and Nicola O'Sullivan

This module spans the nine weeks of the programme and is grounded in the theoretical concepts of child development and attachment, across the developmental stages from infancy through to adolescence. The significance of these theoretical constructs for practice in child protection and welfare settings will be illuminated using applied case studies.

Learning outcomes: Students who successfully complete this module should be able to demonstrate:
❖ A sound theoretical knowledge base on child development
❖ An understanding of different psychological theories on child development and the ability to discriminate and argue the merits and relevance of each
❖ An understanding of the impact of parenting factors such as attachment or problem behaviours on child development
❖ Ability to assess the needs of children and young people at various developmental stages
❖ Knowledge about best practice in working in direct work with children

9.5.1 Child Development and Attachment Theory
Lecturer: Patricia O’Connell

This course will be delivered over nine months of the programme and will provide a theoretical overview of the key concepts of Child Development and Attachment Theory. The influence of environment, family and caregiver relationships on the development of the child will be explored through an educational and psychoanalytic framework. Using clinical case presentations, the impact of neglect on a child’s attachment pattern will be discussed. There will be a focus on the development of emotional resilience in childhood and adolescence. This will incorporate working with parents using a mentalisation based framework. The application of attachment theory to child protection and welfare within an organizational context will be examined. The process and techniques of Direct Work with children will be covered and students will have the opportunity to bring material from their own work for discussion.

Parent infant mental health is unique in its attention to early development and emerging relationships, requiring a dramatic shift in focus on the infant, the parent and their developing attachment relationship. It integrates diverse theories – including – attachment theory, psychoanalytic theory, neuroscience, and biology, and psychology, social, systemic and contextual theories. Parent Infant mental health is a distinctive literature that unites theory with effective clinical practice.

These classes will explore key concepts surrounding the growth and development of the infant in their respective families and communities. The lectures will look at infancy as a key developmental stage both for the mother and infant. Attention will be paid to the mental health of the infant, the link between this and the mental wellbeing of their parent(s) and the challenges which emerge therein (the relationship). Attachment theory and its application in this context will be explored. In addition, students will consider the practitioner at work with parents and infants, particularly in the field of child protection and welfare.

We will focus on areas of development, including the brain that are affected by trauma and disruptions in attachment relationships. Students will be presented with material drawn from clinical cases and have an opportunity to discuss degrees of risk as well as possible interventions. These lectures will include thinking about the worker in the work, and the challenges of working with disturbances in families, particularly in child protection and welfare contexts. In seminar three students will hear about research into the experiences of child protection social workers working with infants and their families where abuse or neglect of the infant was a feature.

Module SS7135: Research Methods

9.6: Research Methods

Lecturer: Dr Catherine Conlon

Learning outcomes: Students who successfully complete this module should be able to demonstrate:

❖ Writing skills of an acceptable academic standard
❖ The ability to review a research article
❖ An understanding of the interface between research, policy and practice in children’s services
❖ An understanding of ethical issues in research for practice.
❖ A basic knowledge of qualitative and quantitative research methods
❖ Competence in evaluating the quality of a research study
❖ Competence in applying research to practice
❖ Competence in data gathering, analysis and writing up of a mini research study
❖ Competence in planning and managing a research project
❖ Competence in communicating research findings to diverse audiences

This course will cover the research process, beginning with workshops on designing a research project and ethical issues in carrying out research. It will consider the concept of evidence-based and evidence-informed practice, and the factors which impede or enable the application of research in practice. Students will be introduced to the foundations and techniques of carrying out social research with a particular focus on qualitative methodologies. Topics include: overview of research paradigms, planning for a practice research project, the ethics of conducting research, data collection and analysis, and writing/presenting research findings. The following methods of data gathering and analysis will be covered in detail: interviewing (structured/semi-structured/in-depth), focus groups, surveys, and mixed methods (combining qualitative and quantitative data collection techniques).

10. Twinning Visits
As part of Module SS7132, Interventions with Children and Families, each student in the class will spend a day shadowing a colleague on a typical day in their workplace. In turn, that student will reciprocate by hosting a return visit to their workplace by the other student - thus the title of twinning for the exercise. In choosing their twinning partner, students should select a classmate from a different discipline and a different employer. Arrangements for the twinning day are made between the students themselves. In the course of the twinning day the students spends time on site, with his/her fellow student completing the hosts work agenda for the day, for example working with clients or attending meetings etc.

The point of the exercise is to promote greater mutual understanding across disciplines. One session each week will be spent on presentations given by class members, the aim of which is to highlight the individual’s own perspective on the nature of the service in the agency he/she visited, and to and process inter-agency and inter-professional issues. Occasionally a student may observe a piece of ‘best practice’ that may be worthy of sharing with classmates, or perhaps he/she might gain new insight into some presumption pertaining to the work of the classmate. The purpose of the twinning exercise is not to act as a critic of any service but to use the opportunity as a unique learning exercise in the context of the overarching aim of the course i.e. to promote understanding of the breadth and depth of child protection and welfare services and multi-disciplinary and inter-agency work.
11. Academic Writing

As a postgraduate student, you will have to demonstrate your ability to produce essays and assignments based on investigative research, critique and analysis. It can be challenging to produce written work for academic purposes, particularly if it has been a while since you last had to do so. However, academic writing is a skill that is worth mastering. There is a common form to academic writing that can be used across multiple assessment types. It is worth getting to know this form and reproducing it in your own work. There are many resources available to help and guide you on writing at a postgraduate level. Please explore this resource:

Plagiarism

Plagiarism of any kind is unacceptable in academic work and is penalised. To ensure that you have a clear understanding of what plagiarism is, how Trinity deals with cases of plagiarism, and how to avoid it, you will find a repository of information at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism

We ask you to take the following steps:

i. Visit the online resources to inform yourself about how Trinity deals with plagiarism and how you can avoid it at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism. You should also familiarize yourself with the 2018-19 Calendar entry on plagiarism and the sanctions which are applied which is located at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism/calendar (also set out below).

ii. Complete the ‘Ready, Steady, Write’ online tutorial on plagiarism at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism/ready-steady-write. Completing the tutorial is compulsory for all students.

iii. Familiarise yourself with the declaration that you will be asked to sign when submitting course work at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism/declaration

iv. Contact your College Tutor, your Course Director, or your Lecturer if you are unsure about any aspect of plagiarism.
Plagiarism

66. General

‘It is clearly understood that all members of the academic community use and build on the work and ideas of others. It is commonly accepted also, however, that we build on the work and ideas of others in an open and explicit manner, and with due acknowledgement. Plagiarism is the act of presenting the work or ideas of others as one’s own, without due acknowledgement. Plagiarism can arise from deliberate actions and also through careless thinking and/or methodology. The offence lies not in the attitude or intention of the perpetrator, but in the action and in its consequences. It is the responsibility of the author of any work to ensure that he/she does not commit plagiarism. Plagiarism is considered to be academically fraudulent, and an offence against academic integrity that is subject to the disciplinary procedures of the University.

67. Examples of Plagiarism

Plagiarism can arise from actions such as:

(a) copying another student’s work;
(b) enlisting another person or persons to complete an assignment on the student’s behalf;
(c) procuring, whether with payment or otherwise, the work or ideas of another;
(d) quoting directly, without acknowledgement, from books, articles or other sources, either in printed, recorded or electronic format, including websites and social media;
(e) paraphrasing, without acknowledgement, the writings of other authors.

Examples (d) and (e) in particular can arise through careless thinking and/or methodology where students:

(i) fail to distinguish between their own ideas and those of others;
(ii) fail to take proper notes during preliminary research and therefore lose track of the sources from which the notes were drawn;
(iii) fail to distinguish between information which needs no acknowledgement because it is firmly in the public domain, and information which might be widely known, but which nevertheless requires some sort of acknowledgement;
(iv) come across a distinctive methodology or idea and fail to record its source.

All the above serve only as examples and are not exhaustive.
68. Plagiarism in the Context of Group Work

Students should normally submit work done in co-operation with other students only when it is done with the full knowledge and permission of the lecturer concerned.

Without this, submitting work which is the product of collusion with other students may be considered to be plagiarism. When work is submitted as the result of a Group Project, it is the responsibility of all students in the Group to ensure, so far as is possible, that no work submitted by the group is plagiarised. In order to avoid plagiarism in the context of collaboration and groupwork, it is particularly important to ensure that each student appropriately attributes work that is not their own.

69. Self-Plagiarism

No work can normally be submitted for more than one assessment for credit. Resubmitting the same work for more than one assessment for credit is normally considered self-plagiarism.

70. Avoiding Plagiarism

Students should ensure the integrity of their work by seeking advice from their lecturers, tutor or supervisor on avoiding plagiarism. All schools and departments must include, in their handbooks or other literature given to students, guidelines on the appropriate methodology for the kind of work that students will be expected to undertake. In addition, a general set of guidelines for students on avoiding plagiarism is available at:

http://tcdie.libguides.com/plagiarism

71. If plagiarism as referred to in paragraph (1) above is suspected, the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) or his/her designate will arrange an informal meeting with the student, the student’s Supervisor and/or the academic staff member concerned, to put their suspicions to the student and give the student the opportunity to respond. Students may nominate a Graduate Students’ Union representative or PG advisor to accompany them to the meeting. The student will be requested to respond in writing stating his/her agreement to attend such a meeting and confirming on which of the suggested dates and times it will be possible for them to attend. If the student does not in this manner agree to attend such a meeting, the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate), or designate, may refer the case directly to the Junior Dean, who will interview the student and may implement the procedures as referred to in Section 5 (Other General Regulations).

If the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) forms the view that plagiarism has taken place, he/she must decide if the offence can be dealt with under the summary procedure set out below. In order for this summary procedure to be followed, all parties noted above must be in agreement and must state their agreement in writing to the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) or designate. If one of the parties to the informal meeting withholds his/her written agreement to the application of the summary procedure, or if the facts of the case are in dispute, or if the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) feels that the penalties provided for under the summary procedure below are inappropriate given the circumstances of the case, he/she will refer the case directly to the Junior Dean, who will interview the student and may implement the procedures set out in Section 5 (Other General Regulations).

72. If the offence can be dealt with under the summary procedure, the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) will recommend one of the following penalties:

(a) Level 1: Student receives an informal verbal warning. The piece of work in question is inadmissible. The student is required to rephrase and correctly reference all plagiarised elements. Other content should not be altered. The resubmitted work will be assessed and marked without penalty;

(b) Level 2: Student receives a formal written warning. The piece of work in question is inadmissible. The student is required to rephrase and correctly reference all plagiarised elements. Other content should not be altered. The resubmitted work will receive a reduced or capped mark depending on the seriousness/extent of plagiarism;

(c) Level 3: Student receives a formal written warning. The piece of work in question is inadmissible. There is no opportunity for resubmission.

Provided that the appropriate procedure has been followed and all parties in (6) above are in agreement with the proposed penalty, the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) should in the case of a Level 1 offence, inform the Course Director and, where appropriate, the Course Office. In the case of a Level 2 or Level 3 offence, the Dean of Graduate Studies must be notified and requested to approve the recommended penalty. The Dean of Graduate Studies may approve or reject the recommended penalty, or seek further information before making a decision. If he/she considers that the penalties provided for under the summary procedure are inappropriate given the circumstances of the case, he/she may also refer the matter directly to the Junior Dean who will interview the student and may implement the procedures as referred to under conduct and college.

Notwithstanding his/her decision, the Dean of Graduate Studies will inform the Junior Dean of all notified cases of Level 2 and Level 3 offences accordingly. The Junior Dean may nevertheless implement the procedures as set out in Section 5 (Other General Regulations).
73. If the case cannot normally be dealt with under summary procedures, it is deemed to be a Level 4 offence and will be referred directly to the Junior Dean. Nothing provided for under the summary procedure diminishes or prejudices the disciplinary powers of the Junior Dean under the 2010 Consolidated Statutes.'

When using the work of others’ you must either:

   i) quote their words directly in quotation marks and provide page numbers, or

   ii) paraphrase them.

 Either way, an explicit citation of the work being referred to must be given. To fail to do this is to risk being accused of plagiarism. A guide to referencing is available on the College Library website at http://www.tcd.ie/Library/help/howtocite.php. In order to support students in understanding what plagiarism is and how they can avoid it, the University has created an online central repository to consolidate all information and resources on plagiarism. Up to now, information has been spread across many sites, which can lead to confusion. Through the provision of a central repository, it is hoped to communicate this information to students in a clearer and more coherent manner. The central repository is being hosted by the Library and is located at: http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism.

Proceed on the general assumption that any work to be submitted for assessment should in fact be your own work. It ought not to be the result of collaboration with others unless your lecturer gives clear indication that, for that assignment, joint work or collaborative work is required or acceptable. In this latter situation, you should specify the nature and extent of the collaboration and the identity of your co-workers.

It is important to understand that stating that your intention was not to cheat and that you did not understand what constituted plagiarism will not be accepted as a defense. It is the action and not the intention that constitutes plagiarism.

The University has established regulations in relation to suspected cases of plagiarism and other forms of cheating. The University’s full statement on Plagiarism is set out in The University of Dublin Calendar, Part 1 and Part 2. Students are strongly advised to read these documents carefully and follow all conventions described.

The Student Counselling Service provides seminars to help students in referencing, using information ethically, avoiding plagiarism and time management.
12. Coursework Requirements – Assessment

To be eligible for the award of the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare, students must have had full attendance and have passed all written assignments. All coursework must be submitted by the specified date and extensions will only be granted in exceptional circumstances. Students who fail any piece of work may (at the discretion of the Head of Department) be permitted to re-submit within one month of their work being returned to them. Assessment is carried out throughout the year, and there are no examinations. Students are assessed on the basis of attendance, written assignments and a practice based project. Non-assessed work includes an article review, and ‘twinning visits’ where students visit the agency of a course colleague from a different background. In addition, small groups of students undertake joint visits to child care agencies or organisations of their choice, occasionally outside the Republic, and formally present a profile of the service to the class.

External Examiner
The work of the students is moderated by an External Examiner appointed by the University. For 2020 Professor John Devaney from the University of Edinburgh will act as external examiner for the course.

Essays
Students are required to complete and pass three essays as part of the assessment of their course work. The pass mark is 40%. Each essay should not exceed 2,500 words and the word count should be shown on the cover page.

You will need to submit the following:
❖ 1 electronic copy submitted to Blackboard

Students are expected to complete and submit all course work assignments on time.

Please include a cover sheet on each assignment with your name, student number and assignment details (you may choose your own format).

Essay 1 Perspectives on Child Protection
Submission date: Monday 4th January, 2021
Pick one of the following topics

1. Intergenerational aspects of violence and abuse: challenges for child protection and welfare work
2. The causes and consequences of either child physical abuse; child sexual abuse or child neglect
3. Contemporary developments in child welfare/protection practice: challenges and opportunities
4. The case for early intervention

Whichever essay is picked should illustrate an evidence-based understanding of the topic; it should appropriately reference the Irish legal and policy context and include recent Irish and international research on child protection and welfare. Essays should contain only a minimum amount of description and should take a theoretical and critically reflective approach to the topic. Students should draw on their own professional experience in order to integrate theory and practice. Students should discuss their essay topic with tutors in Week 1. See the following section on essay marking criteria.
Essay 2 Practicing Child Protection and Welfare: A Case Example

Submission Date: Monday 22\textsuperscript{nd} February 2021

This essay focuses on the practice of providing or managing a child protection and welfare service (or role as part of a bigger service) and requires you to use a case example from your work to illustrate how you utilise your ‘personal framework for practice’, e.g. how you integrate and reconcile formal knowledge, professional experience, personal values, the norms of your organisation and the broader regulatory framework. The essay offers students an opportunity to outline the models of work that are most relevant and useful as well as the theories, principles and perspectives that shape their practice. Overall, the essay should demonstrate their means of coping with conflict, and their methods for resolving dilemmas. It should also demonstrate values and attitudes in relation to child protection and welfare work. Students will be expected to show how they incorporate principles of inclusiveness and the paramountcy of child welfare in their work and critically evaluate their own organisational systems and structures. Links must be made between practice and relevant literature.

13. General Guidelines for the Presentation of Written Work

All essays should show evidence of wide reading, including the use of recent sources. Students should demonstrate an ability to critically assess theories, and apply theory to practice. The essay should be clearly introduced and concluded, the introduction demonstrating an understanding of the essay title, highlighting key issues to be covered, and outlining the approach to be taken in the essay. Points should be well developed, using the literature as well as examples from work experience. Headings can add greatly to the clarity of the presentation. The final conclusion should briefly review and points raised in the essay, and draw out the implications of your arguments or assertions. All names and identifying information concerning clients and colleagues should however be disguised. Credit will also be given for work that shows breadth as well as depth and that draws appropriately on material addressed in other courses.

Loose generalisations such as "research shows that" must be avoided. All statements and assertions must be complemented by evidence e.g. a piece of published work, or an official source of information, to support them.

Referencing is very important and must be done carefully. Your bibliography should direct a reader straight to the source that you have quoted, and sources may be checked by examiners from time to time.

Use the Harvard referencing convention as follows:
After a quotation in the body of your essay, give (in brackets) the author’s surname and date of publication. If you are using a direct quote or discussing a specific idea or argument, give the page number inside the brackets e.g. (Parton, 1991:23).

At the end of the work, before the appendices, give a full bibliography detailing all sources that you have cited, following a recognised convention such as the Harvard referencing system (Handouts will be provided). Use single line spacing.
❖ Arrange the works alphabetically by author, and work by the same author should be arranged chronologically. In the case of more than one work being published in the same year by the author, distinguish these as 1991, 1991b and so on. Be sure to give the original date of publication even if you use a later edition.

❖ Follow the author’s name with the date and name of the reference.

❖ If the reference is a book, italicise the title, then give the place of publication and the publisher.

❖ If the reference is an article, give the title in inverted commas, followed by (i.e. journal or book).

❖ If the source is a journal, give the name of the journal in italics, followed by the volume number and page numbers.

❖ If the source is a book or collection of essays, begin as for (d) but then and from: followed by the editors initials, surname (ed.) the title of the book or collection (italicised), place of publication, publisher and page numbers.

❖ Every work that you refer to in your assignments must appear in your bibliography, as should all the sources you have used but not mentioned directly.

Examples:

If other conventions are used they must be consistent in format. Marks will be deducted if referencing conventions are not followed, or if references are omitted from the bibliography.

Plagiarism (‘cogging’) is the unacknowledged use of other people's ideas and is unacceptable in academic work and is heavily penalised. Always acknowledge any author or source, even if unpublished, whose ideas you cite or paraphrase. Unless essential, avoid quoting long or multiple passages from a text and always use quotation marks and specific page references. Recommended word lengths must be observed. Very short work or work that exceeds the recommended length by more than 20% will be returned for revision. Please show the word length on the title page.

Assessed written work must be typed - in 1.5 spacing - on one side of the paper with adequate margins on each side of the page. The word count must be shown on the title page. Pages should be clearly numbered, as tutors who are marking assignments provide written comments which refer specifically to your text. All written work should be proof-read before submission to avoid mistakes in spelling, grammar and referencing. Careless presentation, particularly in relation to referencing, reduces the impact of the content and loses marks.

Students are strongly encouraged to give or send drafts of their written work to their tutors prior to final submission.
This is the most important single element of the course in terms of student learning and must be passed. The pass mark is 40%. The written project may be between 8,000 and 10,000 (maximum) words and the word count should be shown on the title page.

You will need to submit the following:

❖ 1 electronic copy through Blackboard

As shown below, elements of the DPP must be submitted to tutors on assigned dates between January and May.

The exercise is designed to serve as a bridge between the college-based element of the course and the student's work. The student is required to carry innovative piece of work within their organisation, which can be either an evaluation of an existing service or development or a small piece of exploratory research on a topic relevant to the agency. It is hoped that this process may assist not only the learning of the student but also that of their colleagues, - thus the title 'demonstration practice'. This project is designed to exemplify the course's commitment to making a difference in the work place, that is, not risking the possibility of merely being an interesting academic course which fails to impinge on the 'real world'.

The Demonstration Practice exercise has a number of objectives:

❖ to extend the professional repertoire of the student
❖ to extend the capacity of the student's work team/organisation to respond to needs in the area of child protection and welfare
❖ to promote the processes of innovation and evaluation in the work of the student and that of his/her colleagues
❖ to familiarise the student with the practical steps involved in research and evaluation
❖ to encourage the writing up good work / practice to encourage the active dissemination of information about good practice within the student's organisation and more widely

The concluding chapter of the project is important and should be reasonably substantial. It will be pivotal in demonstrating how the aims of the project have been met. Students will be required to reflect at this point on the implications of their findings both for themselves and for their organisation, i.e. how the process of conducting the project and reaching their conclusions has modified their attitudes and their practice, how it may effect change in their organisations and how they plan to disseminate their findings.

Students should begin planning the Demonstration Practice Project from the outset of the course, in consultation with their tutors. A series of written submissions must be made to tutors which reflect the student’s attempts to clarify and put shape on the project.

Deadlines for submission of DPP work
Students must submit the first chapter of their DPPs on Monday 25th January. This chapter will outline the topic, its policy context, why it is considered a suitable subject for study, which aspects of it will be considered. It should also signpost the remainder of the written project, i.e. provide an outline of chapters.

The literature review for the project must be submitted on Monday 22nd March. This should cover the theory and research evidence relevant to the topic under study.

The methodology chapter should be submitted on Monday 10th May, outlining and justifying the research methods chosen, and describing the process by which the research will be conducted.

A full draft of the project will be due for submission to tutors on Monday 24th May, and each student will make a 15 minute presentation of their project during the week of May 24th.

The final date for submission of the completed projects is Monday 4th June by 4.00pm.
The importance of tutorial support for the success of this exercise cannot be emphasised too strongly and the onus lies with the students to make the most of this source of support which is readily available as part of the course package.

An example of the layout and title page of the DPP is in Appendix A. For advice and requirements in relation to general writing skills, please see Section 14.

Writing the Report: Checklist

If you were writing a critique of a piece of research done by someone else, you might ask the following questions. Subject your own report to the same sort of examinations.

Ask yourself:

1. Is the meaning clear? Are there any obscure passages?
2. Is the report well written? check tenses, grammar, spelling, overlapping passages, punctuation, jargon.
3. Is the referencing well done? Are there any omissions?
4. Does the abstract give the reader a clear idea of what is in the report?
5. Does the title indicate the nature of the study?
6. Are the objectives of the study stated clearly?
7. Are the objectives fulfilled?
8. If hypotheses are postulated, were they testable? Are they proved or not proved?
9. Has a sufficient amount of literature relating to the topic been studied?
10. Does the literature review, if any, provide an indication of the state of knowledge in the subject? Is your topic placed in the context of the area of study as a whole?
11. Are all terms clearly defined?
12. Are the selected methods of data collection accurately described? Are they suitable for the task? Why were they chosen?
13. Are any limitations of the study clearly presented?
14. Have any statistical techniques been used? If so, are they appropriate for the task?
15. Are the data analysed and interpreted or merely described?
16. Are the results clearly presented? Are tables, diagrams and figures well drawn?
17. Are conclusions based on evidence? Have any claims been made that cannot be substantiated?
18. Is there any evidence of bias? Any emotive terms or intemperate language?
19. Are the data likely to be reliable? Could another researcher repeat the methods used and have a reasonable chance of getting the same or similar results?
20. Are recommendations (if any) feasible?
21. Are there any unnecessary items in the appendix?
22. Would you give the report a passing grade if you were the examiner? If not, perhaps an overhaul is necessary.

17. Guidelines for the Presentation of the DPP

You are required to consult your tutor about the precise format for your report, as this will vary according to the nature of the project. Typical section headings, however, might be: Objectives; Literature Review; Agency Context; Methodology; Analysis; Findings/Outcomes; Evaluation; Recommendations; References; Appendices.

Length
There is a limit of between 8,000 and 10,000 words, and this must be observed.

Presentation
The report should be typed on A4 pages, in 1.5 spacing, leaving a 1 inch margin on all sides. Pages should be numbered consecutively at the centre of the bottom page, with page 1 commencing after the table of contents. The report should be divided into sections which are numbered 1, 2, etc., with a section heading.

Layout
The report should start with a title page, followed by an abstract, reface/acknowledgements and table of contents in that order. The table of contents should list the chapters with page numbers.

Abstract
The abstract should contain no more than 200 words and should provide a succinct summary of the aims and results of the study.

Format
The format outlined above should be followed. Only items referred to in the text of the dissertation should be included as references.

Footnotes
As an alternative to a style, which places references to published works in the text, students may wish to use a footnoting style. Footnotes should be identified by a number which appears in the text. They should be numbered consecutively and followed by complete numbered references at the end of the Report, the detail of which should be the same as that outlined above. The important point to remember is that whatever referencing style you adopt be consistent

Appendices
Background material that would not be appropriate in the text of the report such as sample questionnaires used, should be placed in appendices, labelled A.... to Z. The appendices should follow the list of references, at the end of the Report.
18. Demonstration Practice Project – Criteria for Marking

Marks will be awarded according to how well the project meets the following criteria:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Introduction</th>
<th>Literature review</th>
<th>Methodology</th>
<th>Findings &amp; Analysis</th>
<th>Recommendations</th>
<th>Presentation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>15%</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>15%</td>
<td>25%</td>
<td>10%</td>
<td>15%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Shows a capacity to identify a relevant practice or policy issue or problem.
- Demonstrates an ability to source the most significant theory and research evidence relevant to the issue.
- Indicates an ability to choose, justify and employ appropriate research methods and apply them to the problem.
- Demonstrates the ability to present a balanced account of the findings.
- Demonstrates an ability to reflect appropriately on the research and identify key learning from it.
- Layout consistent with the guidance provided.

Provides sufficient contextual information to situate the problem.
- Demonstrates ability to organise and analyse the literature.
- Shows that rigorous and ethical data gathering took place.
- Discusses the findings from the research in the context of the literature.
- Shows the capacity to relate the findings to child protection and welfare policy.
- Logical and coherent presentation, inclusion of tables and charts if relevant.

Forms a useful questions for exploration.
- Identifies where this project will fill an existing gap in evidence.
- Includes evidence of tools used to gather evidence.
- Demonstrates an ability to draw implications from the findings.
- Recommendations appropriately targeted at different levels in the relevant sector or organisation.
- Correct referencing conventions applied consistently. Proof-read, with correct spelling and punctuation.
19. Tutorials

Each student is assigned a course tutor. The tutorial relationship is intended to be a key learning resource for the student throughout the course. The tutor’s task is to help the student get the most from the opportunities presented by the course. Students should ensure to arrange a tutorial appointment in each College-based week, or between weeks where appropriate.

The tutor's tasks include the following:
❖ to assist the student at the outset to identify relevant learning objectives which will constitute the student's personal learning agenda for the course as a whole
❖ to guide the student in relation to the completion of written assignments
❖ to assist in the identification and development of a theme / topic for the student's Demonstration Practice Project and to approve the final choice
❖ to monitor and assist the student's progress towards the successful completion of the Demonstration Practice project, in particular through the setting of agreed tasks for completion between College based weeks
❖ to examine, with other course staff, the student's course assignments, and to offer detailed written feedback to the student. (N.B. Law essay is examined by the Law course teacher and externally examined by Dr. Aisling Parkes, Senior Lecturer in the Department of Law in the National University of Ireland, Cork)

While tutors provide as much guidance as possible within the context of the course programme, students have ultimate responsibility for submitting written work on time and for the quality of this work.
20. M.Sc. in Child Protection and Welfare

Eligible candidates have the option of registering for the M.Sc. programme in Child Protection and Welfare. Admission will be confined to candidates who achieve a 60% average in the Postgraduate Diploma year. The M.Sc. will be awarded on successful completion of the Postgraduate Diploma course programme in Year 1 and a 20,000 word dissertation in Year 2. Registered students will have access to supervision and a programme of seminars. A briefing session on the M.Sc. Option will be held during the year.
21. General Regulations

College Calendar

As well as containing key dates, part 3 of the College Calendar contains all information concerning graduate studies in Trinity College, Dublin including all general regulations. See http://www.tcd.ie/calendar.

College Policies
Students are expected to familiarise themselves with and adhere to the College’s policies. Details are available at http://www.tcd.ie/about/policies/.

Attendance
Attendance is expected at all tutorials. When students are not able to attend they should inform Rebecca Brady via email as early as possible. Full attendance at all classes is compulsory. Absence is excused only on medical certification*, and attendance lists will be kept. The award of Diploma will be made only on the basis of full attendance.

*Absence of greater than fifteen days on medical certification will require the student to apply to the Dean of Graduate Studies for permission to repeat all or part of the course

Peer Support and Respect
Along with academic staff, every student shares the responsibility to help create a supportive and respectful learning environment. This involves accepting that there will be different learning needs in every group, allowing peers to contribute and treating colleagues and lecturers with respect. For effective group learning, class members need to know that interactions will be conducted in a safe and confidential environment. Please be respectful of others’ contribution and don’t discuss individual details outside of the class. Refer to the College Dignity and Respect Policy for more details.

Problems, Complaints and Grievances
If you have an academic-related problem you should discuss it first with the lecturer or supervisor concerned. General issues affecting the class should be channelled through your student representative to the Course Director. If you have a course related problem you should contact the Course Administrator who may refer it to the relevant service. If you have a problem with a Trinity service, you should contact the relevant service. If you have a complaint which discussion with the relevant academic, Course Administrator or Trinity Service cannot resolve, you should contact the Course Director. If the problem remains, you should consult the Head of School or the Dean of Graduate Studies. More information about the Student Complaints Procedure can be found here.

Student Evaluation and Feedback
Information about the College requirements for evaluation and feedback can be found at https://www.tcd.ie/teaching-learning/quality/quality-assurance/evaluation.php.

Note to Students
To ensure that you have a clear understanding of what plagiarism is, how Trinity deals with cases of plagiarism, and how to avoid it, you will find a repository of information at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism
We ask you to take the following steps:
(i) Visit the online resources to inform yourself about how Trinity deals with plagiarism and how you can avoid it at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism. You should also familiarize yourself with the 2018-19 Calendar entry on plagiarism located on this website and the sanctions which are applied;
(ii) Complete the ‘Ready, Steady, Write’ online tutorial on plagiarism at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism/ready-steady-write. Completing the tutorial is compulsory for all students.
(iii) Familiarise yourself with the declaration that you will be asked to sign when submitting course work at http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism/declaration;
(iv) Contact your College Tutor, your Course Director, or your Lecturer if you are unsure about any aspect of plagiarism.
