Private E-Cargo Bikes & Everyday Mobility in Ireland

SEEKING INTERVIEW PARTICIPANTS FOR PRIVATE E-CARGO BIKE STUDY

The TCD Centre for Transport Research in partnership with the SEAI Behavioural Economics Unit are conducting research to explore how e-cargo bikes are used and experienced across Ireland by people who own or have private access to an e-cargo bike within their household.

This research is being carried out to help inform policies and programmes that can help to advance more sustainable mobility across Ireland.

We are looking for individuals who either own or have access to a private e-cargo cycle in their household to participate in this study.

Participation would involve taking part in a semi-structured qualitative interview lasting up to one hour. This interview would take place either in-person or online through Zoom, depending on your preference. In advance of the interview, participants will be asked to complete a short pre-interview questionnaire to gather basic information.

Any individuals interested will be provided with a plain language statement with more information on the project, along with an informed consent form.

Participation is entirely voluntary, and participants can withdraw from the study at any time without providing a reason.

If you are interested in participating or would like more information, please email the Principal Investigator, Dr. Robert Egan (eganr5@tcd.ie).
