

The Hublic Sphere
Season One Episode Seven
'The Power of Reflection'

During the first covid-19 lockdown in Ireland, four early career researchers and two postdocs at Trinity's humanities institute, "The Hub," started chatting about new possibilities for producing and sharing academic knowledge in a way that could bridge the humanities and public life.

Each team member was responsible for an episode around the season's theme, "Modalities of Power," in conversation with experts from academia and activism, connecting debates in their respective fields to current events. For the final episode, we look back and reflect on individual episodes and the broader process of creating the podcast, producing the first season, and now handing it off to the next team!

Thank you all for listening to our first season.
We look forward to welcoming you back to the Hublic soon.

Dawn, Elizabeth, Siobhán, Clare, Sahar, and Lilith