

TRINITY COLLEGE DUBLIN, THE UNIVERSITY OF DUBLIN

Faculty of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences

Trinity Research in Social Sciences (TRiSS)

Postgraduate Research Fellowships 2021: Call for Applications

Trinity Research in Social Sciences (TRiSS) would like to invite PhD students from its member schools to submit proposals for the 2021 TRiSS Postgraduate Research Fellowships (PRFs). The aim of PRFs is to support postgraduate research projects in the social sciences. Thanks to generous financial support from the Dean of Research, it is expected that the number of awards this year will be greater than in previous years, when usually only 2-3 projects were funded in the typical year. The total number of awards will depend on the number of fundable applications and their required budgets. It is expected that the typical project funded will receive support of between €500 and €1,500.

The types of activities that may be funded include, but are not limited to: surveys and data digitization/collation; conference and workshop registration and travel; access to databases; workshop organisation; and research expenses.

Proposals should use the application form, taking note of the word limits in each section, and will be assessed as follows:

1. Quality of detail about the proposed project, including its potential contribution to the relevant field (4 marks). This includes how a description of the project, its methodological approach and expected outputs, and how the project relates and contributes to existing research in the field.
2. Budget justification, and a description of the potential impact of the funds associated with a Fellowship, and value for money (3 marks).
3. Description of applicant track record and potential impact of proposed project (3 marks). Those evaluating proposals will be looking for a clear link between existing research and the proposed project and evidence that the PI is able to deliver on the proposed project.

Decisions on applications will be made by a Review Committee drawn from the TRiSS Executive Committee, which consists of the Director of TRiSS and representatives of each of its constituent Schools and disciplines.

Applications should be submitted by email to triss@tcd.ie by 5pm on Friday 7 May, 2021. Please note the terms and conditions, which follow on the next page.

Terms and Conditions

- PhD students, or equivalent research-based postgraduate students, who have more than six months remaining are eligible to apply for awards.
- Successful applicants should note that proper acknowledgement of support from TRiSS and Trinity's Dean of Research must be made in any resulting research output, such as a publication or conference presentation.
- The funds must be used by 30 June 2022. Any unused resources will be returned to TRiSS.
- Only one application per individual will be considered in any one year.
- On completion of the project, a written report is required and Fellows will be expected to give a TRiSS research seminar/bitesize talk on their research.

About TRiSS

Trinity Research in Social Sciences (www.tcd.ie/triss) brings together researchers in the social sciences from across Trinity College Dublin. It provides a single identifying physical and intellectual location for social science research in Trinity connecting social science researchers across multiple schools for the purposes of collaboration. TRiSS has eight member Schools and a total of 15 member units, listed below.

- School of Education
- School of Law
- School of Linguistic, Speech and Communication Sciences
 - Centre for Language & Communication Studies
 - Clinical Speech & Language Studies
 - Centre for Deaf Studies
- School of Religion
 - Irish School of Ecumenics
 - Loyola Institute
- School of Psychology
- School of Social Sciences & Philosophy
 - Economics
 - Political Science
 - Sociology
- School of Social Work & Social Policy
- Trinity Business School